TO CURB ILLEGALLY-PASSING MOTORISTS

Policemen may ride shotgun on school buses

Central Saanich police chief Robert Miles indicated Thursday officers may ride on school buses if motorists continue to ignore the flashing red lights when the buses are stopped to let children on and off.

Bus drivers in Saanich school district are seeking a crackdown by police on motorists who pass school buses illegally in either direction when the lights are flashing.

Lew Wright, co-ordinator of services for the school district, said the drivers were concerned about the number of occasions when motorists pass school buses which have stopped to unload passengers.

Section 142 of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act requires motorists approaching a school bus from either direction to stop if the bus indicates by a sign or flashing red lights that it is stopped to receive or discharge school children. Drivers must remain stationary until the bus resumes motion, or until the driver signals it is safe to proceed.

Penalty on conviction is three demerit points against the driver.

Miles said he sent a letter to the school board requesting information as to the problem area and was informed the bad spots were on West Saanich Road, near Wallace Drive and Mount Newton, and on Lochside Drive.

Miles said Central Saanich municipality has ordered a number of road signs which read "School Bus Stop Ahead, Caution."

The police chief said the main violators are motorists coming toward the stopped bus.

He said if the problem persists in his area, he will order his men to ride on the buses with walkie talkies or a notebook to copy down the licence numbers of offending vehicles. The registered owner of the vehicle will then be charged.

Israeli gunboats shell Beirut

Colonist wire services

BEIRUT — Israeli gunboats Thursday night shelled western Beirut and Jerusalem and informed Washington that the action was intended to thwart a planned operation by the Al Fatah Palestinian guerrilla organization.

The shelling was also interpreted as an apparent warning to Syrian peacekeeping troops to stop battering Christian areas in the eastern part of the city.

The Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the vessels fired on a Palestinian guerrilla naval base in southwestern Beirut. The official Lebanese radio said three gunboats fired on the Ramlet Baida residential quarter, then withdrew when Syrian artillery opened fire on them. No casualties or damage were reported.

A U.S. state department spokesman said in Washington the Israelis had informed the department that "the Israeli naval units shelled Fatah installations in the Beirut area on Oct. 5."

The spokesman added: "We were told that the Israeli intention was to thwart a planned Fatah operation."

Western Beirut was the stronghold of leftist Moslem militias and Palestinian guerrillas during the 19-month civil war that ended in November, 1976. It has remained outside the battle between Syrian troops and Christian militias in the eastern sectors.

Israel has vowed not to allow Lebanon's Christians to be destroyed but had refrained from intervening in Lebanon—apparently for fear of endangering Egyptian-Israeli peace talks set to begin in Washington on Oct. 12.

The Israeli army radio station quoted sources in the Knesset (Israeli parliament) as saying Thursday that "the decisive moment is near" for Israel. The radio also said Defence Minister Ezer Weizman would report today to an emergency meeting of the defence and foreign affairs committees of the Knesset.

Police said the casualty toll had climbed to 1,000 killed and 1,700 wounded in eight months of Christian-Syrian battles for control.

At the United Nations in New York, a well-placed source said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was considering sending Sadruddin Aga Khan, a Moslem, to Lebanon to try to organize a ceasefire.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Lebanese-American groups said in Washington that Christian leaders in Beirut had issued an "S-O-S" for United Nations intervention.

"In the absence of direct military intervention the Christians will be crushed by the Syrian onslaught," said Dory Chamoun, son of former Lebanese president Camille Chamoun and a leader of a principal right-wing Christian faction.

In a statement issued in Geneva, the Lebanese Red Cross said: "The civilian population, hospitals, dispensaries, asylums, shelters, nothing is being spared. In the name of humanity, in the name of the most elementary principles of human rights, in the name of the children, women and aged people who are dying by the hundreds, we urge you to act."

Soviets, U.S. huddle

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union consulted on Lebanon Thursday and an American official said the United States will probably ask the UN Security Council to force a ceasefire if the fighting in Beirut does not end by the weekend.

A top U.S. official said late Thursday that the Security Council could be pressed into action as early as today.

He also said if the fighting continues it could "adversely affect" the Camp David peace initiative. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has spent the last 10 days in New York trying to drum up support for the historic accords.

Asked whether Washington would ask the 15-member Security Council for a meeting if there were no ceasefire by early today, the state department spokesman replied, "I think we probably will."

The official said he expected other countries, primarily Western nations, to join in the appeal. Asked whether Moscow would lend its backing, he replied, "All I want to say is, we've been in touch with the Soviets — and leave it at at that."

The official said President Carter had sent a message to Syrian President Hafez al-Assad in Moscow expressing "deep concern and the need for an immediate ceasefire to stop the bloodshed."

There was no immediate reply from the Syrian leader, whose troops were involved in fighting with Christian militiamen in the Lebanese capital.

TALKS FAIL WITH MILITANT INSIDERS

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-member conciliation board Thursday admitted failure in its attempt to settle the bitter dispute between the post office and the militant Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

The union will be in a legal strike position Oct. 12 following the release of three separate conciliation reports which graphically described the hostility in relations between the parties.

"I do not believe the Holy Trinity could conciliate the present parties," wrote Roy Heenan, the employer's board nominee. "There is a fundamental distrust between the parties which has lead to a total absence of communication."

Louis Courtemanche, board chairman, noted "with a little bitterness that the parties seem to be following already a path leading to an unavoidable confrontation."

"Indeed, some of the employers' officials have already announced that a strike by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers would be brought to an end by special legislation and, for its part, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers has already set up its strike machinery," Courtemanche said.

The parties remain poles apart on the key issues of wages, technological change and the use of casual, non-union labor in the post office.

Irving Gaul, the union's nominee on the board, called for immediate resumption of negotiations and urged both parties to "demonstrate flexibility and imagination."

Courtemanche said he found his employer's wage offer adequate when combined with continuation of a cost-of-living adjustment clause, but Gaul rejected the offer in his report.

Courtemanche recommended that the basic salary for a third-year mail handler, now $6.13 an hour, be increased to $6.30, retroactive to July 1, 1977, and to $6.58, retroactive to last July 1. He also recommended that the cost-of-living allowance of 46 cents, gained on June 30, 1977, be included in the basic salary on Jan. 1, 1979.

Long-term care program clogs hospitals—doctor

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist reporter

The provincial long-term care program was put into effect last January without sufficient planning and has created severe overcrowding in Victoria's acute-care hospitals, the outgoing president of the Victoria Medical Association said Thursday.

Not only will the situation get worse before it improves, but the provincial government is insisting that long-term care patients blocking acute care beds in the city's two general hospitals will not necessarily be moved out of the hospitals as quickly as alternative accommodation becomes available, Dr. Douglas Critchley said.

The long-term care program, instituted without sufficient planning last Jan. 1, has greatly increased the severity of the bed shortage, Critchley said. The low co-insurance of $6.50 a day is one factor in the increase in the number of patients seeking long-term care, and ending up in hospital.

"We have a very deplorable situation with acute care beds now. Doctors can't get anyone into the hospital except an acute emergency."

Furthermore, doctors can't get many of their patients out of the hospital because there are not sufficient facilities to handle those whose conditions are stable, but still require long-term nursing care.

The latest figures show that 164 of Royal Jubilee Hospital's 625 acute care beds and 76 of the 469 beds at Victoria General Hosptal are now occupied by non-acute patients who have nowhere to go be-

Second 'test-tube baby' born in Calcutta home

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — A three-man research team went on Calcutta television Thursday night to announce that a "test-tube baby"—the world's second—was born this week.

Earlier, the state-owned Calcutta station broadcast Bengali and English language news bulletins reporting the team's claim that a seven-pound, six-ounce baby girl was born Tuesday at an undisclosed nursing home in the city.

The three researchers said in a television interview that their procedure was different in some respects from that which led to the July 25 birth in Oldham, England, of Louise Brown, the world's first baby conceived outside the human body.

The television station said the names of the Calcutta parents were being kept secret, apparently because the stigma of laboratory conception might jeopardize the baby's future marriage prospects in the conservative Hindu society.

The three men who carried out the delicate fertilization and transfer of the embryo were identified by the station as Dr. Sunit Mukherjee and Dr. Subhash Mukherjee of Calcutta Medical College and biology researcher Saroj Bhattacharya of Dajadavpur University.

The three said the mother's egg was fertilized after it was kept in an incubater for 3½ days.

In England, two specialists, Dr. Patrick Steptoe and Dr. Robert Edwards, developed a method whereby they removed an egg from the mother's ovaries, fertilized it with sperm from the father in the laboratory and then implanted the egg in the mother's womb.

In the early television reports, Bhattacharya was quoted as saying that, as in the Brown case, the laboratory method was tried because the mother's Fallopian tubes were blocked.

Day's notice for air time edict for PM

OTTAWA (CP) — The next time Prime Minister Trudeau wants television air time he must let the CBC know at least 24 hours in advance, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission was told Thursday.

Under a new policy worked out recently, opposition parties in the Commons will also have an automatic right to reply after the prime minister's statements, said Knowlton Nash, director of news and public affairs for the corporation.

Nash told a reporter later that the new policy had been about eight months in the making and it preceded by months accusations by Peter Kent, former CBC newsreader and now its Africa correspondent, of political intererence in CBC affairs by the prime minister's office.

Kent, who is to appear later this week before the CRTC to make his own arguments, said decisions not to cover Trudeau on television had been changed after the prime minister's office telephoned CBC officials.

Nash told the commission he would resign if he even thought an editorial decision was changed as the result of political pressure.

At no time has this ever occurred in his job, Nash said.

The appearance of Trudeau on CBC-TV in August to announce cuts in government spending—one incident cited by Kent—conformed to this policy, declared Nash.

Marc Thibeault, Nash's counterpart in the CBC's French-language service, also defended his news staff against accusations it was biased in favor of Quebec independence.

Thibeault said Radio Canada's code of ethics for reporters called for absolute impartiality and that Radio Canada went to great efforts to see that was so.

Thibeault said every reporter suffered some constraints by virtue of the organization he worked for and the assignments he was given.

In the case of Radio Canada which took its mandate from Parliament, its reporters did not have the right to become commentators on issues such as separatism.

The network's natural audience is the five million French-speaking Quebecers who also look to the provincial government rather than Ottawa, Thibeault said.

ALCOHOL RATIONING FOR GREENLANDERS

GODTHAAB, Greenland (Reuter) — Greenland's leaders have devised a new tactic to curb drinking in the Danish Arctic province—an alcohol licence.

Under the new scheme, each Greenlander over 18 will be issued with a permit allowing him to buy 24 bottles of beer, three bottles of wine, and a half bottle of spirits each month.

The provincial council, due to become Greenland's home-rule government next May, decided on the system Wednesday. It could become law at the start of next year.

Now they're bullish on the buck

MONTREAL (CP) — Corporations which had been avoiding the Canadian dollar for months began buying into the troubled currency Thursday, helping it make a healthy gain against its American counterpart.

At the close of the interbank wholesale market, where banks trade currencies in huge amounts, the dollar was quoted at 84.85 cents U.S., more that one-third of a cent above Wednesday's close of 84.50 cents.

Foreign exchange traders said the market was orderly.

"People who were worrying for so long began questioning their fears," one relieved trader explained. "The whole trend seems to be one of bullishness on Canada."

Salted away?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is close enough to reaching an agreement to limit nuclear arms that he is working on plans for a signing ceremony at a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in December, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

B.C. must pay interest on corporate refunds

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Supreme Court ruled Thursday that the provincial government will have to pay the interest on refunded tax overpayments to two of B.C.'s major forest companies.

Crown Zellerbach and B.C. Forest Products appealed the assessment of forest, timber and tree farm land for taxes during 1976 and 1977.

The resulting reversal of assessments meant a refund of overpayment to Crown Zellerbach of more than $1.3 million and $125,000 to B.C. Forest Products.

The payments were made in June without any interest for the time the money was withheld by the provincial government.

The court decision said that because the government had use of the money while the appeals were being heard, the two companies were entitled to receive the interest. Interest rates have yet to be negotiated.

Bennett plans major cabinet shuffle

By JIM HUME
Colonist reporter

FORT ST. JAMES — A major revamping of several provincial government ministries with accompanying changes in cabinet responsibilities is scheduled within the next few weeks, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

The premier told the Colonist that he would very shortly be divesting himself of Energy, Transport and Communications duties held since Jack Davis resigned from the provincial cabinet.

Davis was found guilty of fraud charges last month and has now resigned his seat in the Legislature.

The premier was asked during his trip north on the B.C. Railway how long he intended to keep the extra portfolio. "Not much longer," he said. "Very shortly I expect to be announcing some organizational changes in several ministries. I have always said that some ministries have responsibilities they shouldn't have while others are not responsible for obvious things. We shall be shuffling some of the duties and responsibilities around so there will possibly be some cabinet moves to conform with those changes."

The premier would not say which ministries would be involved or which ministers might be facing new duties.

Asked if British Columbia would be facing a byelection in North Vancouver Seymour before Christmas, the premier said he didn't think so.

He said that while Davis had announced his resignation from the North Vancouver Seymour seat and had presumably forwarded the resignation to Speaker Harvey Schroeder the document had not been officially received.

The Speaker's office has confirmed that Davis delivered a sealed envelope to Schroeder's office but with the speaker in Europe it remains unopened.

The Provincial Elections Act states that a byelection must be called within six months of the resignation being received by the speaker.

With cabinet responsibility changes due in the near future, it now appears unlikely that the premier will call a general election this year. He still declines to eliminate that possibility publicly but indications are that he will now make his cabinet changes and give the ministers time to grasp their new duties before going to the people for a new mandate.

Cost-pinched Jubilee could face Vancouver-style staff revolt

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist reporter

Unless Royal Jubilee staff get some relief from stringent cost-cutting measures, the hospital could face a revolt similar to that at Vancouver General Hospital recently, the vice-president of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board warned Thursday.

"The feedback we get through the administration is that there is concern among the staff. Many long-time employees are saying that it is no good the way it is," Terry Prentice said.

Prentice said a stringent cost containment program which the hospital had been on, at the request of the health ministry, for the last two years, was now reaching its limits.

Last year the hospital reduced its operating expenditures by about $1 million, mainly through staff attrition, according to the 1976 annual report. More than 100 hospital jobs were eliminated in that way.

"In every area, people had to pick up a little more, but you can only spread them so thin. When this goes on for an extended period of time, employees get concerned about whether patients are getting care."

"They have so far done the extra work willinging, but if we are always short-staffed, they may start saying 'this is not one of my duties and I'm not going to do it.'"

A lack of staff at Vancouver General Hospital resulted in the resignation of several key nursing administrators and widespread staff dissatisfaction which eventually resulted in the hospital's board of directors being replaced by a health ministry-appointed official charged with straightening out the situation.

"We don't want that type of thing happening here," Prentice said. But continual refusal on the part of the health ministry to give the hospital what it thinks it needs in the way of a budget is forcing the hospital to cut some services.

He cited staff training as one area where the cost containment measures had cut deeply.

"You have to have staff and time for training. Without sufficient staff you can't release a person for training, and that's one of the first areas to be cut."

"When you bring new people into areas like obstetrics, emergency, open-heart surgery, or intensive care, and even into general medical areas, you want to make sure that they are aware of the way things are done in this particular hospital."

Without sufficient training along this line, "patient care has to suffer."

The Jubilee board wants to make it clear to the health ministry that the staff is getting "close to the line," Prentice said.

cause of a serious shortage of long-term care beds in the Capital Region. Another 19 such patients are in the 75-bed acute-care wing of Saanich Peninsula hospital.

These patients require some form of long-term care, either extended care, (full time nursing care for non-ambulatory patients in stable condition), or intermediate care (part-time nursing care for ambulatory patients who cannot live at home) but no facilities are available.

The region's central registry of patients awaiting admittance to a long-term care facility contains 516 names, 199 awaiting extended care, and 317 awaiting intermediate care, including both patients who are not in the hospital and those who are still being cared for at home.

The provincial government says the patients will be put into beds as they become available according to their ranking on the list, meaning that some patients now staying at home will occupy beds before patients who are in hospital now.

The reason given is that doctors might be tempted to put patients into hospital as a means of getting them into extended care beds, and that families having to take care of patients really in need of extended care require relief more urgently than the hospitals, suggestions with which Critchley took issue.

"You only go in if you have to, and you only stay in if the family can't handle you," Critchley said, adding that doctors are just as eager to keep scarce beds available for acute-care patients as the provincial government is.

"One can only believe that a person in hospital is sicker than someone at home."

Because of the shortage of beds, 780 elective surgeries were cancelled in the first nine months of this year, Jubilee administrator Dr. Archibald Pickles said Thursday.

This creates dislocation for the families who have arranged their affairs in expectation of a hospital stay, and for physicians, who must often change their schedules at the last moment, cancelling appointments with patients to accommodate the hospital's bed situation, Critchley said.

Because the hospitals are not paid the full per diem for long-term care patients, even though they must often staff the wards for acute care, their budgets take a beating, Pickles said. He estimated Royal Jubilee has lost about $550,000 in revenue over the last year because of the lower per diem rates paid for long-term care patients.

This was one of the factors which contributed to a $60,000 deficit at the hospital this past year, Pickles said.

One recent setback is that a 150-bed extended-care addition at Glengarry Hospital has been delayed by two months. Scheduled to open Nov. 1, the addition will now not be ready until Jan. 1 because an elevator required to operate the hospital was not delivered on time, regional hospital planning director Murray Halkett said Thursday.

Acute-care hospital officials were hoping the addition would empty some beds in their buildings before the heavy winter sickness season set in.

Swedish coalition falls

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Sweden's first non-Socialist government in 44 years fell Thursday after failing to solve a nuclear energy dispute.

Sweden's public radio said Prime Minister Thorbjorn Falldin, who headed a three-party coalition, was handing in his resignation to the Parliament Speaker and would hold a news conference later.

Falldin resigned after failing to strike a compromise with his liberal and conservative coalition partners over the long-simmering nuclear energy issue.

Falldin pledged to stop "the march into the nuclear society," but was forced to approve the fueling of the country's sixth nuclear power plant after the takeover.

The dispute that tore Falldin's government apart came to a head when his coaliton partners, Conservative leader Gosta Bohman and Liberal head Ola Ullsten, refused to go along with the Center Party demand to set a maximum number of nuclear power plants.

Cyclamate ban stays

OTTAWA (CP) — There will be no change in the ban against cyclamates in foods and soft drinks despite evidence the artificial sweetener does not cause cancer, the health department announced Thursday.

However, cyclamates will be permitted as sweetening agents in drugs, the department added, and will also continue to be available in table-top sweeteners.

"Since 1969, additional information and many new and more sophisticated testing procedures have led to a general agreement that cyclamates are not carcinogenic (cancerous)."

ing east, then north, for Mackenzie.

At a public meeting in Fort St. James, founded 165 years ago by Simon Fraser and sitting on the shores of Stuart Lake, the premier ran into his first hecklers and some belligerent questioning during his now-traditional question period at the close of each meeting.

Most of the questions were on price differentials between north and south B.C. where in the north gasoline prices run 20 to 30 cents a gallon more than in the south.

Bennett said he was well aware of the problem but that a simple solution was proving difficult to find.

During his speech to about 250 citizens, the premier said again that his next budget would contain benefits leading to property-tax reduction and pledged again that more crown land would become available to the people of B.C.

"If this government has had any embarrassing failure, then that failure has been in our inability to make more crown land available to our people," he said. He intended to continue "to take the type of action which will give you the right and the ability to own your own land."

Following his speech he was guest at a formal but very late dinner at the famous Douglas Lodge, once the summer resort of movie stars going back to Ronald Coleman and Mary Pickford.

It was well after midnight before the official day was over.

At 7 a.m. Thursday, with first light touching the treetops, the train was again on its way and roughly at the midpoint of the trip which ends Saturday in Fort Nelson.

At a mid-day stop at Mackenzie the premier and the official party visited sawmills and pulp mills served by a special BCR spur.

In the late afternoon there was a brief stop at Chetwynd and shortly after 7 p.m. the premier arrived at Fort St. John for more speeches, more bands, another reception and banquet. He was scheduled to leave Fort St. John for the last leg of his northern journey at 4:30 this morning.

Smith foresees big gains

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said Thursday that he hopes his visit to the United States will lead to Western diplomatic recognition and reinstatement of Rhodesia as a member of the free world.

He expressed pleasure that U.S. officials relaxed their opposition and agreed to issue a visa for his visit, despite the lack of diplomatic relations between white-ruled Rhodesia and the United States.

Smith told American correspondents that the state department was forced to change its mind about letting him visit by the "strong feelings" of the 27 members of Congress who invited him.

He said he hoped to secure support for the "internal" majority rule agreement he has reached with three black leaders and convince Americans the accord embodies what the West has long wanted from Rhodesia's ruling white minority.

"If I succeed, I hope that we will be recognized and reinstated as a member of the free world, which is our correct position," Smith said.

Smith
. . . recognition

"We have always been a part of the free world," he said. "I think we would like to be back and play our role in the major confrontation which I think is looming in the world today, and that is one between the free world and the non-free world."

Smith, accompanied by the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, a black member of Rhodesia's biracial government, plans to fly to South Africa Friday and proceed to New York.

On his arrival, Smith was expected to face strong U.S. opposition to his proposal for an internal majority rule settlement to end the black-white civil war.

He said "the surest way of ending the war" against Patriotic Front guerrillas would be to secure Western recognition. If that were achieved, he said, the insurgents would have no more reason to fight because recognition is what they are trying to prevent.

Diggers uncover regal chamber

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — Archeologists digging in a small hill near Stuttgart said Thursday they had found the funeral chamber of a Celtic prince who ruled southern Germany's Neckarland region 2,500 years ago.

The wood-lined chamber was found inside what appears to be a large earth mound surrounded by a stone wall with an entrance gate at one end. The chamber contained remains of the prince's gold-bedecked body and a rich trove of burial gifts, the Baden-Wuerttemberg State Monuments Office said.

A spokesman, Dr. Dieter Planck, said the discovery was unique because other graves of early Celtic princes had been plundered by grave-robbers by the time they were excavated.

The remains of the prince, reported to have died between 550 and 500 BC, were found resting on a boat-shaped bier made of bronze, supported by eight human figures cast in solid bronze about 30 centimetres high.

With the prince were his golden neckband, his golden girdle, a golden brooch, a dagger in a golden sheath and well-preserved, point-toed leather shoes with golden trimmings, Planck said.

Strikes battle leader's exile

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Police fired on rioting students in the city of Khorramabad Thursday and strikes spread throughout Iran in a protest to force the return of a religious leader—the Shah's arch-enemy—from 15 years of exile.

The religious leader of the Shiite Moslem sect is Ayatollah Khomeini, 80, who was expelled Tuesday from Iraq where for 15 years he has led an attempt to overthrow Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Khomeini has a rank equivalent to a Cardinal in the Shiite sect which has opposed the shah for his reform program that includes taking land from rich religious leaders and distributing it to the poor and for "liberating" women.

In Khorramabad, 305 miles southwest of Tehran, "several" persons were reported killed and many more wounded when police opened fire on students demonstrating in support of their striking teachers, the newspaper Ettelaat reported.

The city shut down after the killings and rioting in which the students burned school furniture, attacked banks and ransacked some government offices. Troops took control of the city.

In Tehran, about 10,000 youths marched through the downtown Shahreza Avenue shouting "Death or Khomeini! Death or Khomeini!"

The holy city of Qom, south of Tehran, closed down to protest the reported expulsion of Khomeiniby from Iraq.

More trouble was expected as the fate of Khomeini was still unclear.

West 5 to press Namibia rights

LONDON (AP) — The British foreign office said Thursday foreign ministers of five Western countries, including Canada, will fly to Pretoria probably in mid-October to press for South African acceptance of a United Nations peace plan for Namibia.

A spokesman reported the agreement came after talks held in Pretoria Wednesday between envoys of the United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Canada, with South African foreign minister Pik Botha. The five Western countries have been trying for more than two years to negotiate arrangements with the South Africans for a peaceful transfer of power to the black majority in the disputed territory of Namibia, also known as South-West Africa.

The visit of the Western foreign ministers will last about four days.

Egypt chooses voice at talks

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egypt's delegation to peace talks with Israel will be led by new defence minister, Lt.-Gen. Kamal Hassan Ali, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram reports.

The paper gives no source for its report. It says the delegation to the talks in Washington next week will include the Foreign Minister Boutros Boutros Ghali and a number of diplomatic and military advisers.

Egyptian officials are not immediately available for comment.

The delegation has not yet been officially announced. However, earlier, informed sources had said former war minister Mohammed Abdel-Ghani Gamassi would lead the delegation.

Hopes raised for Nicaragua

MANAGUA (AP) — An opposition leader expressed confidence Thursday that a three-country mediation team will lead Nicaragua out of the civil conflict in which an estimated 1,700 persons have died this year.

"The United States means business and will go all out to achieve a solution. The alternative is very dark," said Adolfo Calero Portocarrero.

The three-country group of the U.S., Guatemala and the Dominican Republic will mediate the dispute in which Sandinista National Liberation Front guerrillas and civilian backers have fought Somoza's 7,500-member National Guard.

Observers say the talks may get under way this weekend.

What's happening behind that door?

Oh what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to — if not deceive, at least keep important public business secret.

THAT IS THE LESSON to be learned from all the noise and confusion these days over the future of the Cowichan estuary.

The deliberations of a task force considering what development should or should not be allowed to happen at the tidal mouth of this important river near Duncan are proceeding behind closed doors — when there is no reason why the public should not be allowed to observe this process.

Not interrupt or disrupt. Just listen.

Where enough people are sufficiently concerned about an issue, they will strive to find out what is happening behind those doors and they frequently will get only fragments, sometimes distortions, of the picture. If that is what is happening at the moment, then the task force, or whoever directed it operate in secrecy, is to blame.

Of course allowing the public to observe its deliberations would make the job more trying. The task force has been working it's way through drafts, shaping and polishing them until its final report is ready for the cabinet's Environment and Land Use Committee. With a public gallery, each of about 22 task force members who speaks up in the debate probably would consider more carefully whatever case he is trying to make. But is that a bad thing for the public? Hardly.

As it is, bits and pieces of the task force's work are seeping out because the opponents of any more industrial development on the estuary are afraid their interests are not being adequately presented or considered.

Perhaps they have nothing to be afraid of. But they will never be persuaded of this — and neither will we — as long as those doors are closed.

Running on

ONE OF THE GREATEST gifts a politician can have is knowing when to stop talking. Some of the time Sam Bawlf doesn't.

In a recent interview, this cabinet minister said he was fed up with the "needless hysteria" over alleged loss of provincial government jobs in Victoria, where he is one of two MLAs.

Getting some hard facts on the record, Bawlf said the truth is that the number of people employed in Greater Victoria by the provincial government and its Crown agencies increased by 426 from the start of 1977 to the end of May this year.

Without getting into a discussion on the desirability of an ever-increasing civil service, Mr. Bawlf would have successfully dealt with that particular point if he had just stopped right there — but he didn't.

"And that's the advantage of having government members representing you," he added.

This is the most vulgar kind of politicking.

Is he trying to tell the voters in Victoria riding he'll see that the government keeps on hiring locally, whether it needs to or not? If so, God help all taxpayers.

There's an irony in this particular injudicious comment. The person who has made most of the noise about loss of government jobs locally, and therefore the major target of Bawlf's remarks, is Charles Barber of the opposition NDP, the other member of the legislature representing Victoria.

Perhaps Barber made the government sensitive to the local job issue. Perhaps Victoria has also enjoyed an advantage from having an opposition member representing it.

Cause of inflation simple — so's the cure

OTTAWA—Conflicting diagnoses and futile treatments of inflation seem to have succeeded in creating a widespread impression that the blight is an impenetrable mystery. It needn't be. Everything you ever wanted to know about inflation and couldn't find out despite asking is now available in a slim volume (190 pages) of clear-cut explanations. The language is not the usual pseudo-scientific jargon of academic economists but plain everyday English no one can fail to understand.

Written by well-known American economic journalist Henry Hazlitt, The Inflation Crisis, and How to Resolve It (Arlington House, $8.95) is a masterpiece of comprehensive simple explanations of complex issues and problems. One-time New York Times financial writer and Newsweek columnist, Hazlitt spent a lifetime perfecting and polishing the popularizing technique. The result shines in his latest book.

"No other subject is so much discussed and so little understood as inflation," Hazlitt states in the opening paragraph. Why the confusion? Because, he says, "politicians talk of it as if it were some horrible visitation from without, over which they had no control — like a flood, a foreign invasion, or a plague."

Rings familiar? It should. Pierre Trudeau never stops blaming mysterious uncontrollable forces in the nasty outside world for our soaring inflation. Imported food and oil are the chief villains — as if other countries (Japan, for example), lived on air, used free cosmic energy and had no need for all the imports we require, plus many raw materials we export. Yet look at the strength of the Japanese yen and at our sick dollar! How come? Don't the two economies operate in the same world conditions?

"The plain truth," Hazlitt says, "is that our politicians have brought on inflation by their own monetary and fiscal policies." The root cause of inflation, he points out, is "always and everywhere an increase in the supply of money and credit in relation to the volume of goods." In other words, bad management of the economic framework.

This, of course, politicians won't admit. So they invent all sorts of myths and lies to hide the facts and confuse people. Trudeau is right now busy peddling a preposterous concoction of myths and lies about inflation all over the country.

One of the confusing fallacies is that inflation is caused by rising prices. In fact rising prices reflect inflation. Another myth is that inflation is induced by shortage of goods, while we actually have problems with stockpiles of unsold products. Labor is fond of blaming inflation on "excessive profits," manufacturers blame it on "excessive wage demands," retailers on wholesalers' greed, and Trudeau on "external pressures." In the end everybody blames everyone else for the mess.

Confusion about what causes inflation is reflected in confusion about remedies. Yet the cure is simple. Since the root cause is increase of money supply above the value of goods and services produced, the cure is to stop increasing money and credit. So why, if it's that simple, don't we do it?

The answer is, unfortunately, also simple. Because people have been led to demand and expect from government unnecessary services and luxuries while refusing to pay for them fully in taxes, voting for whoever will promise more for less. The result is that irresponsible governments spend like drunken sailors and borrow and print more and more money to "finance" the splurge and waste. With a continuing pile-up of heavy deficits it is, of course, impossible to avoid inflation.

When a government increases the money supply by 150 per cent while the GNP grows only 50 per cent — which is roughly what hapened in Canada during the Trudeau decade — inflationary devaluation of currency (in fact a confession of bankruptcy) is the unavoidable consequence.

Hazlitt's book tells you all you need to know about the destructive process.

Liberals' slip showing in Mackasey nomination

OTTAWA — Something's happening to the Liberals.

Thirty-eight of the last 43 years in power and they're losing their confidence.

It came through the other night when they parachuted former many-times-recycled Trudeau cabinet minister Bryce Mackasey into Ottawa Centre.

No matter that a local lad, David Kwavnick, a Carleton University professor, had been campaigning in the riding for months.

With Senator Keith Davey and James Coutts, the prime minister's Number One muscleman, in charge of operations, they elbowed poor David aside and gave the nomination to good old Bryce.

No hometown boy, Bryce. But that didn't stop him from saying, after pocketing the nomination, that it was "good to be home" — even if the old Mackasey homestead lies 120 miles to the east in Montreal's suburban Verdun.

If there's any place outside of Montreal where the Liberals should be confident, it has to be Ottawa Centre.

It used to be Ottawa West and was Liberal MP (now Senator) George McIlraith's private preserve.

He was so much the boss — it was then, back in 1940, and still is Liberal — that even when John Diefenbaker's Conservatives took five years of power in 1957, they had to get George's OK on anything they wanted to do in Ottawa West.

"Clear it with 'Captain' George," was the word they got, and until they cleared it, there was no way.

So there they were the other night in Ottawa-West-now-Ottawa-Centre, with a "name" candidate, parachuted in with the prime minister's blessing, as good as handed the nomination on a gold platter.

And still they were unsure, nervous, uncertain, lacking confidence.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson, the top Liberal spell-binder, was master of ceremonies, whose message to the troops was that the party had nothing to apologize about.

As if any self-respecting Liberal would even have dared SUSPECT any apology was expected for the discounted dollar, the exhausted economy, the unbelievable unemployment and the disaster of disunity.

Then the usually ebullient Jamieson went on to swear that the Liberal Party was NOT arrogant, a sure signal of his lack of confidence that anyone, even a True Grit by now could believe it.

Then on came Bryce himself, humble if you can imagine it.

And pleading that Liberals not become carbon copies of right-wing Conservatives — an exhortation that might have got him excommunicated only a couple of years ago.

They were watching for

Pierre Trudeau all evening to make one of his dramatic ta-ta-ta-ta roll-of-drums leaps to the platform.

They had been given a hint that the Great Man would make an appearance for his old friend and follower Mackasey.

But he didn't show.

And it was two hours, after the balloting was done, that they first even mentioned his name.

In other greater Liberal days when they were the Chosen People, blessed with the Right to Rule, up would have leaped the crowd, led by bouncy Don Jamieson, to cheer and proclaim coming victory in the election — when Pierre Trudeau plucks up his courage to call it.

Sad to say, there was only scattered applause.

And to cap the evening, the chairman urged the crowd to hurry home "to hear the great triumphal news from Nova Scotia."

Lucky Liberals, they caught it on their car radios just after the meeting, and stunned by their totally unexpected defeat, their captains went into a two-day post-mortem with the prime minister in their funk hole, an old chateau on a Gatineau hill above Meach Lake north of Hull, Quebec.

Germany regains its nerve

LONDON — Germans are great worriers: "Zukunftsangst", last year's catchword in West German politics, sounds far feebler when translated into "fear of the future". But the Germans are now getting over last year's severe anxiety attack and are much less prone to fretting about the viability of their democracy and the worth of their society. They have been through the crisis and lived to tell the tale.

Half-way through its four-year term, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's coalition government is also emerging from under a cloud. Unemployment is still over a million, the terrorists are only biding their time and relations with the United States remain difficult. But the continual crises that shook the government during 1977 have now ended.

The year 1977 was a dreadful year for West Germany. It was around then that West Germans realized that low growth and high unemployment were here to stay, or at least for a long time to come.

Remembering how the Weimar Republic had fallen into the Nazis' hands, Germans have always been plagued by the suspicion that their democratic society was entirely dependent on continuing prosperity. If inflation and unemployment rose beyond a low level, they feared, the country would start sliding again towards disaster. In 1977 the chorus of voices prophecying doom reached a crescendo.

The intense terrorist activity during the year—three prominent public figures murdered, culminating in the Schleyer affair and the Mogadishu hijacking—seemed to be confirming their worst fears. Anarchy was breaking loose, and many commentators detected a growing polarization of German society.

Meanwhile, the coalition government of Schmidt's Social Democrats (SPD) and the smaller, liberal Free Democratic Party (FDP) staggered from one embarrassment to another. It ended the year with a full-scale spy scandal, forcing the resignation of Defence Minister Georg Leber last February. The coalition's narrow margin of 10 votes in Parliament was frequently cut to as little as one by the actions of rebellious left-wing SPD members.

To cap it all, West Germany fell into disagreement with its principal ally, the United States. Schmidt was not impressed by Carter anyway, but a whole series of issues—U.S. pressure on Germany not to sell nuclear reactors to Brazil, American attempts to force Bonn into more rapid economic growth, Washington's reluctance to deploy the neutron bomb—soon turned the gap into a gulf.

It has been a very trying time for the West Germans, but the worst is now past. The change of mood may have begun as early as last November's successful operation to free the hostages at Mogadishu, which had as electric an effect on German morale as the Entebbe raid had for the Israelis.

The Germans looked up and noticed that inflation was the lowest for seven years and the lowest of any EEC country. They remembered that wages were rising and taxes had been reduced, that living standards were high, the balance of payments robust, the streets clean and safe, and strikes rare.

It helps, of course, that much of the pain caused by the loss of a million jobs since 1970 has been borne by departing foreign workers. It also helps that unemployment benefits for the first year are 68 per cent of net previous income, and that about 80 per cent of Germany's unemployed workers find jobs again in that period. But it really does seem proved that unemployment is not the raw material for revolution in today's Germany.

The government has also sailed into calmer waters, and is now managing to look competent again. That may not end the steady drift of opinion in the smaller government party in favor of a change of alliance. Many in the FDP would now prefer a liberal-conservative coalition to a liberal-socialist one, mainly because they fear that nine years in coalition with the SPD is eroding their own voting support.

The opposition Christian Democratic Union (CDU) will probably win the crucial state election in Hesse this October. If the Free Democrats in the state then switch to a new coalition with the CDU, it will probably signal the impending end of the existing socialist-liberal coalition at the national level. This, however, is only part of the normal process of democratic politics.

In other words, West Germany is back to normal—not without problems (what country ever is?) but much more confident that it can handle them without disaster.

Nineteen seventy-seven was not a pleasant year to live through, but it has done more than any other year since 1945 to reassure the Germans themselves that they are just an ordinary country which has had some extraordinary and terrible experiences, not a unique monster that is doomed forever to repeat its past.

Erma Bombeck

I found out about the current pop phenomenon that is taking college campuses by storm quite by accident.

I was vacuuming the family room last summer when my sweeper refused to pick up an object. It was one of my children sprawled in front of the TV set like a piece of sculpture.

"What are you watching?" I asked.

"Shhh! It's All My Children."

"You're kidding."

"The guys at school wouldn't miss it. We schedule our classes around it. If we need the credit to graduate we run in and out of the lounge. After all, it's family."

I leaned on the sweeper and tried to relate to Erica receiving a call from Nick just before she married Tom and went off to St. Croix for her honeymoon. When Chuck left Donna at the reception in order to rendezvous with Tara. Chris and Jeff were headed for Tara for a surprise visit. Edna made inroads with Benny when Phil learned that Chuck and Tara were together when Charlie nearly drowned. Devon dropped hints to Wally they might marry but when Donna was injured in an accident Phoebe convinced Charles to escort her to the wedding.

"That's family?" I asked incredulously.

"It's home away from home," he explained. "All the guys follow at least one soap opera. We look at those families and their problems and suddenly we're not lonely anymore."

I began to watch the soaps after that and decided to give my son the soap opera home he had never had. When he dropped by a couple of days later and asked why he had no clean socks, I smiled and said, "Have you ever seen Erica on her knees shaking the static electricity out of two mismated socks? I also don't cook, make beds, take out garbage, sew or shop. I just touch up my wet lipstick and look worried."

"Where's the car?"

"Have you ever seen a car on a soap opera? Or a TV set? Or a roach? A washer repairman? A teacher? Or a child with lines?"

He sighed. "Okay, you've made your point. Now how about writing me a cheque for my housing and tuition next year?"

"Your father and I have been talking about that," I said, "and frankly you haven't been carrying your share of problems recently, so we're writing you out of the series."

"That sounds like something Tara would do," he said and stomped out of the room.

one man's opinion

IF IT WASN'T so damned serious, the utter stupidity surrounding our government's monetary policies, would rate with any comedy currently showing on prime-time TV. It has become daily farce after daily farce and the wonder of the whole costly charade is that Pierre Trudeau and his incompetent henchmen dare show faces anywhere in this land.

It is actually difficult to comprehend the depths to which our economy has plunged and it is difficult to understand why a single Canadian would still admit to being of Liberal persuasion. It becomes even more difficult to understand why anybody would want to run under the Liberal banner and this includes already committed candidates like David Anderson. No matter how hard he, or the other Liberal candidates try, they will not be able to explain away the Trudeau debacle.

You can completely eliminate most of the rhetoric surrounding the eventual election campaign and put the basics on the line. This government, in the first five months of this fiscal year, overspent revenue by an obscene 47 PER CENT. It means, that in that five month period, the Trudeau band of rag-tag economists, put us into hock for yet another six billion dollars. Last year they managed to overspend by better than $10 billion and that figure could easily be topped by at least $8 billion before this fiscal year of benumbed bewilderment comes to a crashing close.

If you are not truly and properly frightened by this little financial boondoggle, then consider yet another benighted blunder inflicted on all of us. You might recall Mr. Trudeau, when discussing the falling dollar value, state that his government would allow the dollar to find its own value, that his government would not do anything to prop it up.

MR. TRUDEAU, in the light of recent developments, was playing fast and loose with the truth. Or you could say he was a prevaricator, a falsifier, a deceiver. In other words, how can he be believed when we find he has now thrown yet another $4.3 billion down the drain in an effort to prop the dollar he said wouldn't be propped?

Trudeau is participating in the fool's game of mortgaging our future and the end result is not only predictable, but sure — even further monetary problems for all of us.

This waste of money not only did not accomplish the stabilization of the dollar, it might well have had the complete opposite effect. It drew unnecessary attention to the problem and might well have been a strong contributing factor in breaking down foreign confidence in our economy.

Pierre Trudeau, a deceitful sham whose own millions will allow him to ride out the financial hurricane he has created for all of us.

IN ORDER for the proper practice of restraint to be imbued in all of us, there must be strong example from on high—from our leaders. But that restraint has not been forthcoming from any level of government and Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier, with his plan to increase his own salary and the salaries of Saanich aldermen, is not showing the required leadership. He wants a 22.22 per cent salary increase, he wants a 22.3 per cent salary increase for aldermen.

He wants to base the salary figures on population, looking to get 30 cents per person for the mayor's salary and says this is the only rational basis on which salaries can be set.

Apply this 30 cent per capita formula at the provincial level and Bill Bennett would be drawing down something in the neighborhood of $825,000 and Mr. Trudeau would be receiving roughly $6,600,000 at the federal level.

I am not about to even hint that the mayor and the aldermen are not worth the salaries suggested by Mel Couvelier, but I do suggest that in this time of burgeoning bureaucracy, more than lip service must be devoted to the cutting of government cost. And whopping increases in the salaries of elected officials should certainly not be condoned by the public.

THE CRTC, in effect, has the power to tell us what we can or can not receive in the way of television programming. It can knock off a U.S. channel and replace it with a Canadian channel without any consideration re the popularity of programs involved. To start with, this is an unwanted government intrusion and in the case of Victoria and Vancouver, a farce of the worst kind. That commission can tell us what we can see and yet that commission of nineteen people is made up of eight members from Quebec and only one (parttime) from British Columbia. Great odds, what?

Hopes shaken over water supply 'conservation'

Recent forecasts about Victoria's water supply have worried me and shaken my hopes that there might be any thought of "conservation" in the minds of those responsible.

There are three aspects to this question upon which I would like to comment.

First is the question of supply. We now are told that there is capacity for all but that in the future we may have to divert other streams. Can we really believe that, with our added customers, our supply would be adequate through a long, hot summer?

I am old enough to remember some very long, dry summers in Victoria when rationing became the name of the game and was strictly enforced. Since then capacity of storage has been increased, but so has consumption. Therefore we will divert more rivers. The Leech River would be the next victim.

The Leech flows into the Sooke, not very far below the dam at Sooke Lake, and it is the Leech which provides whatever flow there is in what is called the Sooke River. However, perhaps we don't need any water in the river anyway.

Secondly, I would suggest that what is needed is a curb on the waste of water. This could be done by the promotion of water-saving devices both through sales agencies, subsidies, (cheaper to subsidize than to build dams, tunnels, etc.) and taxes and water-rate structures. (Every person should be entitled to an adequate amount to drink and with which to wash—at a reasonably low rate.)

Thirdly, implementation of above suggestions would naturally call for low-water consumption human wastes disposal systems. This would eliminate the need for increasing the collection area of our sewer systems and would, in effect, increase the capacity of our sewer systems now in place.

The overall picture would be, to my mind, far more in keeping with a policy of responsible stewardship of our beautiful land and our gift of wonderful, pure water.

Am I alone in these thoughts?

Letters to the editor

Thief traps hard worker

My son closed his shop at the end of a long busy day on a Monday. He is 24 and has been in business for three years. He has worked morning, noon and night for three years paying his way and drawing wages at a minimum to buy tools and equipment.

He was roused out of bed at 6:40 a.m. and went to his business place to find a stout door hanging by one hinge, his service truck, tools and equipment all gone and most of the tools from his neighbor's shop as well. He was debt clear one day — next day a thief put him in over $7,000 in debt, damaged his truck,and put him out of business for four days. His neighbor had to "limp along" with one set of tools divided among three mechanics.

The thief, also in his early 20s, drew a sentence of four months in a forestry camp and a year's probation. The judge read a report about the thief having a poor home life, using alcohol, etc.

We recovered the tools through an ad in the Colonist and the truck by alerting dozens of our friends to watch for it. In addition the police sent two policemen to Port McNeill to recover our tools and equipment consuming two days of their time plus many hours sorting out a few thousand items.

I raised my son to work for his living, took him to Sunday School (not sent him) and taught him the value of hard work.

Why do the decent, honest, hardworking people have to continually carry the financial load for inept parents breeding lazy, thriftless youths who clog the courts with excuses like drug problems, liquor offences and no work skills? It's about time the value of the work skill was emphasized and all these lazy louts sentenced to long terms of hard work on community projects or be sentenced to work out repayment to those people they have injured.

Why are we the victims now with our earnings in the future mortgaged while the thief costs the country a bundle and then walks out with not a dime owing?

Stickers promoted

I submit herewith an open letter to Robert Whitlock, Superintendent of Motor Vehicles in B.C.

WHY continue use of inefficient decals for licence plates when a much simpler and far more effective system can be used. Decals are at best hardly visible even if a vehicle is washed every day. In many cases because of dust and dirt the numerals and letters on the whole licence plate become invisible.

Britain has for years used a much more efficient system: of colored waterproof stickers on the inside lower corner of windshields (passenger side) — different color each year and with the requisite information printed on them. The stickers are round (diameter three inches) very easily inspected by appropriate authorities and are far less of an annoyance for all concerned.

Vets want bus break

Open letter to Premier Bennett:

A small minority of people feel that they are discriminated against by the provincial government, re: the increase of bus fares. They are veterans, between ages of 54 and 65 years, in receipt of War Veteran's Allowance.

For the information of those, who are not aware, I would like to point out that said veterans must have served in a theatre of war, and due to physical or emotional handicaps be unable to work. This includes both men and women, who have served in the armed forces during the Second World War.

The increased bus fare is indeed a great strain on our already overstrained budget. We therefore expect the same consideration as any other handicapped group i.e. bus passes.

Emotion clouds Minnie proposal

As a recently returned resident of Cadboro Bay, I was not a little astonished to read, in the Sept. 29 Colonist, of the reception given to our mayor after he voted in favor of the Minnie Mountain development.

It might be understandable if he were to be booed for allowing a penitentiary to be established here, or a mental hospital, or a large multiple unit high density housing development for low income tenants. All these things are necessary and for the good of the community, although I would be hard put to give good reasons why they should be placed in other people's backyards rather than my own.

All the same, it is comprehensible that many of us would be opposed to them—even though self-interest would probably be at the root of most of our objections.

However, the examples mentioned are not the issue at all in this case. The issue is whether more homes should be built here and the style in which they should be built. It appears that the proposed development will be, in most respects, superior to the majority of homes already built in Cadboro Bay, and that it can only have the effect of upgrading the neighborhood.

It really makes one wonder how normally intelligent and responsible people can become so emotionally involved over an issue as to try to upset the normal decision-making process of a democratically elected municipal government on a matter which does not involve any deep question of social injustice at all.

On the other hand, if we knew the answer to that one, miracles would happen every day!

Honest John

The way some people are hitting at Jack Davis, you would think he was one of the greatest scoundrels we ever had in politics. He has shown us there is an economy fare and we should profit by his mistake.

I might add all through the years of Canadian politics, there has only been one politician known for his honesty — Honest John Oliver, a Liberal. And if I am not mistaken, he was premier of B.C. around 1919. There is only one book in existence on his life so I have been told. It is in the library at Nanaimo and cannot be taken out, although you can get photostat copies of interesting parts.

Clyne's protest heard in Ottawa

Hooray for Mr. Clyne! I was thrilled to read in your paper that he is still the strong Mr. Clyne, not afraid to stand up for what he believes. If more people would let their voices be known in Ottawa then just maybe all those French men in the East including Trudeau would begin to understand there are a few million English speaking people in Canada and their rights should be considered.

Don't get me completely wrong. I grew up in a school district where it was compulsory for the French children to have a class of French included in their work day. It was voluntary for the English speaking children. I took French from grades two to ten.

On a voluntary basis it should stay and should not be pushed down anyone's throat. My best friends were French speaking children.

In the government economic cutback the French immersion program should top the list. The costs are all out of proportion. Those who don't want it are the ones mostly paying for it.

A sad end to steward, be it Jack, Pat, or Bill

I would not wish you to find it necessary to edit out all words in the following by saying I was delving into something which might be considered to be "sub judice" and so I would like to quote a certain parable which begins: "There was a certain rich man who had a steward and the same was accused unto him that he has wasted his goods. And he called him and said unto him: "How is it that I hear this of thee? Give an account of thy stewardship for thou mayest be no longer steward."

There is no need to go further into the parable except to advise you that the rich man did NOT bury the steward, set up a stone at his head and then kneel beside the grave (as your most excellent cartoonist showed not long ago) and weep crocodile tears and say: "If you can get out of there, Jack, (or it might have been Bill or Hugh, or Garde, or Pat: take your pick) "I'll give you back your stewardship." Instead the rich man called up his law man and handed the poor guy (who had been a bit stupid) to him and that law man set the wheels a-working.

And so it was that Jack, or Pat, or Garde, or Bill (or even it might have been Grace) landed up in disgrace (no pun intended) and was shoo-ed out into outer darkness. Of course there were more crocodile tears and every one was so sorry for the family of Pat, or Jack, or Garde, or Hugh, but not one of the steward's fellow henchmen (or private enemies) thought it worthwhile to say a word on the steward's behalf but were conspicuous for their silence.

Now wouldn't it have been better if the rich man, having heard the rumors of the wasting of his goods, had called the steward in, perhaps demoted him (who am I to try to correct or change the parable?) and then have said: "You have been stupid. Don't do it again or worse may befall!"

But perhaps they all wanted to bury poor Jack, or Bill, or Garde, or Pat, or even Grace, and so that is what happened and I think it was a rather sad end to the career of the said steward, although his name might have been Pat, or Hugh, or Grace, or Garde. I rather think the rich man will not get much credit for kindness or even decent Christian charity by what he did.

Gold, dollar both steadier

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. dollar continued its slide against the West German mark Thursday but steadied against other currencies in late New York trading.

The price of gold, which often functions as a refuge in times of economic uncertainty, closed in Zurich at $222.875 U.S., down slightly from Wednesday's record of $223.125. In London, Europe's other major bullion market, gold finished at $223, compared with Wednesday's $222.50.

The Canadian dollar, meanwhile, closed Thursday at 84.85 U.S. cents, up from 84.50 Wednesday.

Dealers said substantial intervention so far this week by central banks of Switzerland and some other countries as well as the U.S. Federal Reserve Board had begun to break the U.S. dollar's slide. Still, some expressed the belief that pressure on the dollar would continue because of a fundamental re-evaluation of major European currencies.

In Zurich the U.S. dollar closed at 1.5825 Swiss francs, down from 1.5920 on Wednesday. But in later New York trading the dollar's rate was 1.5835 Swiss francs up from 1.5795.

In Frankfurt, the dollar slid to 1.8955 West German marks, down from Wednesday's 1.9015 and in New York the trend was the same. The dollar fell to 1.8953 marks from 1.8965 the previous day.

Other rates for the dollar in late New York trading included 4.2863 French francs, up from 4.2750; and 187.30 Japanese yen, up from 186.80. The British pound cost $1.9835 Thursday, compared with $1.9837 Wednesday.

In Tokyo, however, the dollar bounced back slightly today on the foreign exchange market after a three-day decline, opening at 187.30 yen compared with the previous day's close of 186.675.

The dollar traded in the 187.20-.40 yen range in early transactions.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in active trading on the Canadian bond market Thursday. The short end of the market was unchanged. Mid-, long-term, provincial and corporate issues rose one-eighth of a point. Day-to-day money was available at 9¼ per cent. Three-month treasury bills were traded at an average of 9.22 per cent, up from 9.27 per cent last week and six-month bills at 9.43 per cent, up from 9.34 per cent.

Canada in a box

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government has gotten itself in a box over fiscal policy, says the Bank of Montreal's October business review.

Despite "considerable effort to cut the level of next year's spending, expenditures will still rise by almost nine per cent."

Since revenues must rise sharply to offset increased spending, "the situation leaves the government facing a dilemma: A continuing large deficit, together with the need to contain the growth in the money supply to cope with inflationary pressures makes a tax cut inappropriate," the review says.

"At the same time, a tax cut would be desirable to stimulate a sluggish economy."

Calgary's financial dream sounded

CALGARY (CP) — Some of the $3.4 billion Alberta Heritage Savings trust fund should be used to make Calgary Canada's financial centre, Richard Bonnycastle, chairman of a Calgary investment firm, said Thursday.

He told an oil and natural gas conference the province had the financial resources available to accomplish this and one of the ways that goal might be accomplished was if some funds were used to find the Alberta stock exchange a new home.

The province could then require all companies having dealings with the government to be listed on the exchange.

The province could then obtain an advantage over Ontario, "perhaps by allowing foreign brokers to become members," he said.

The exchange could allow foreign brokers ownership of 40 per cent, which would allow imports into the province, including expertise that could be needed to develop Alberta's economy.

"Then I would also suggest the fund could do all of its business through these brokers."

The fund was established by the Alberta government in 1976, when the province transferred $1.5 billion from its general revenue fund.

By the end of March, it had grown to $3.4 billion with another $200 million being added by the end of June.

The government takes 30 per cent annually from the sale of non-renewable resources, primarily oil and gas, from general revenue for the fund.

Oil firms contribute another $9 million

British Columbia's October sale of oil and natural gas rights brought in $9.1 million in tender bonuses, fees and rentals, paid by various exploration companies who operate in the Peace River area.

Results of the most recent competition, announced Thursday, were for 75 parcels.

Highest price for a drilling reservation was $396.50 per hectare in a $1.25 million bid by Heath & Co. for a parcel located 40 kilometres west of Fort St. John. Average price per hectare for drilling reservations was $294.79 (or $119.30 per acre).

Northstar Resources, Zephyr Resources and Canadian Obas Oil Ltd. combined to pay $1,165 per hectare for a lease parcel located 80 kilometres northeast of Fort St. John.

Economy. Will it be the luxury of the future?
THE NOW ALTERNATIVE:
The Peugeot 504 diesel.

The economy of the Peugeot XD2 engine is only one of its most convincing attributes. Add its legendary durability, and the simplicity of the diesel mechanism, and you will begin to appreciate why the diesel engine is fast becoming the most acceptable alternative for today's automobiles.
Basically, it is a non-pollutant engine; anti-pollutants which affect fuel consumption are unnecessary. Peugeot has been manufacturing diesels by the millions since the 19th century. And everyone knows that millionaires watch their pennies!
The manoeuvrability of the 504D is a match for any demand by the most skillful driver. Here, at last, is a car that combines ease of parking with fingertip steering.

The comfort found in a 504D is conducive to relaxed and restful driving. It holds the road superbly. And the beauty of its finish epitomises the constant striving for perfection evident in the total 504D concept.

What would Quebecers use for money?

MONTREAL (CP) — A common currency between Quebec and Canada after Quebec's independence would help the new state gain the confidence of investors and the public, two economists from Laval University said Thursday.

People are naturally suspicious of a recently-formed country because it lacks a track record as an independent entity, Henri-Paul Rousseau told a conference of economists from Quebec universities.

But some of the suspicions would be dispelled if Quebec were to keep a common currency with Canada after separation.

Rousseau pointed to the example of Ireland which kept the same monetary policy as Britain for 13 years after its independence in 1922. Since an Irish central bank was created in 1942, it has kept the Irish pound at a fixed exchange rate equal to one British pound.

The Irish example has often been made by Parti Quebecois cabinet ministers in their proposals for continued economic association between an independent Quebec and Canada.

Rousseau's colleague at Laval, Bernard Fortin, said an independent Quebec would require a monetary union with Canada to ensure a stable exchange rate.

The exchange rate is a key factor for countries with a relatively small economy, which tend to depend heavily on international trade, he said.

Vely Leroy, economics professor at the University of Quebec in Montreal, said Canada should decentralize some of the activities of the Bank of Canada by setting up five regional banks—in the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia.

These regional central banks, said Leroy, would make the economic system more responsive to regional needs, allowing for more regional development.

Under this system, financial institutions would place their reserve requirements in the regional banks instead of in the Ottawa bank.

Two economics professors from the University of Montreal, Robert Lacroix and Yves Rabeau, said transfer payments from the federal government to the provinces had failed to rectify unequal development among the regions.

They proposed that the government initiate economic activity instead of simply distributing money.

Pierre Fortin of Laval said the unemployment rate in Quebec could be cut to about 7.5 per cent from its current 11 per cent through the use of standard expansionary policies.

He said it is "imprudent, excessive and erroneous" for the provincial and federal governments to refrain from promoting economic expansion out of fear of stimulating inflation.

The chart above shows you all the standard features Le Car gives you that other small cars don't. But there are other reasons for buying Le Car that no chart can show you.

A small car with big-car roominess.

No chart can show you how much comfort you enjoy when you drive Le Car.

The kind of comfort that comes from having more room than you'd expect inside a small car. And more room than you'd get from some big cars: more front headroom and legroom, for example, than luxury cars like the BMW 530i and the Jaguar XJ6L.

A new standard in small-car ride.

No chart can show you the remarkably smooth ride that Car and Driver says sets "a new standard for small cars." Underneath a body even shorter than Honda Civic's is a wheelbase longer than any other car listed above. This longer wheelbase gives Le Car an exceptionally bumpless, shockless, stable ride.

A small sedan that outperforms sports cars.

No chart can show you the kind of handling and performance that have steered Le Car to 52 racing victories in the Sports Car Club of America's Showroom Stock Class "C," beating out-and-out sports cars like MG's, Triumph Spitfires, and Fiat X 1/9's.

And no chart can show you all the little touches of luxury, craftsmanship, and thoughtfulness that make Le Car such a pleasure in normal driving. Touches like side-window defoggers, individual front seats that move up as they move forward to make getting into the back seat easy, an optional sunroof larger than those on any other car in the class, and the amazingly solid sound of a well-made car that you get whenever you slam one of Le Car's doors.

So if you're considering small cars, make sure Le Car is one of them. Between its features and its price, if you buy a small car without driving Le Car first, you could be making a big mistake.

Millions in car racing

By GEOFF HOWARD

MONTREAL (CP) — As the official starter calls on motor sport's elite to start their engines for the Canadian Grand Prix this weekend, some Montrealers will be waiting for the money to begin rolling.

An interesting aspect of the race—aside from the competition itself at the Ile Notre Dame track, situated on a man-made island in the St. Lawrence River built for Expo 67—is that the organizing committee has predicted the event will rev up a total of almost $5.8 million in direct benefits for Montreal's economy.

A study prepared for the committee by the University of Quebec at Montreal estimates about $3.2 million of that spin-off will be spent by out-of-town visitors on accommodation, food and activities.

Big ballpark

The study describes its estimate of the event's economic impact as conservative, and organizing committee president Maurice Brisebois suggested recently a ballpark figure of $18 million in direct and indirect benefits.

Direct benefits include the cost of constructing the track and its safety installations, as well as operational expenditures of about $250,000 and another $254,000 in pay cheques for construction workers and service employees.

Construction costs for the 4.5-kilometre track and other installations, completed over a 10-week period, have exceeded original estimates and now are "well over the $2 million mark," Brisebois said in an interview.

The city's administration did not contribute, leaving race organizers to pick up the tab, Brisebois said. But the committee has a legal agreement with Montreal which gives it a five-year renewable contract on the site.

Not for Drapeau

"The mayor (Jean Drapeau) isn't about to get into anything like this again," he said. The civic administration is the target of current Quebec government public hearings into cost overruns for Montreal's 1976 Olympic Games that resulted in a $1-billion deficit.

And some government officials and opposition city councillors had earlier protested against the race on environmental grounds. Residents across the river have complained noise levels from the first test trials of the high-powered machines were shattering and some were forced to leave their homes.

One opposition councillor said the complaints, ranging from "awful" to "intolerable," appear to contradict a report from the city's own sound experts.

However, the city itself may scoop up about $350,000 in amusement taxes, bus and subway fares, concession revenues and its two-per-cent municipal share of taxes on the money which will be spent on lodgings and restaurant dining.

And the track site will be available for other motor races and bicycle competitions as well as cross-country skiing events, Brisebois said.

Crowd expected

The study estimates a three-day attendance of 125,000, considering the increasing popularity of previous Canadian Grand Prix events at Ontario's Mosport track.

Organizers also hope they will attract an overflow crowd of racing fans from last weekend's Grand Prix event in Watkin's Glen, N.Y.

This would be a bonus not accounted for in the study which says it conservatively estimated that spectators from outside the Montreal area will make up about one-quarter of the attendance. It reckoned accommodation expenditures on an average stay of two nights.

It estimates about 75 per cent of the visitors will stay in hotels or motels and spend a daily average of $60 on lodging and food, while the other 25 per cent, rooming with relatives or friends, are expected to spend at least $30 a day.

Young spenders

The study also concluded from comparisons with Mosport and Long Beach, Calif., Grand Prix events that 48.5 per cent of the spectators will be aged 18-34, a group which is statistically considered most willing to part with a buck.

At least 40 per cent of the expected motor-racing enthusiasts earn annual wages of more than $15,000, the study added.

RIDE & POWER:
The Chevette won't ride like a Datsun 210, because it doesn't have the 210's independent front, 4-link coil rear suspension. And it's power to weight ratio is less than that of the 210.

MANOEUVERABILITY & MODEL CHOICE:
The Omni and Horizon can't turn in the 210's 32.8 ft. circle. And they only offer 2 different body styles versus 4 for the 210.

COMFORT & CARGO ROOM:
You get 3.0" more legroom in a new 210 than the 40.0" in Corolla. And Corolla's cargo area is less than the roomy 9.0 cubic feet in the 210.

All 79 Datsuns are covered by the Datsun 6 Year Anti-Rust Plan.

ECONOMY:

WHERE OTHER ECONOMY CARS LEAVE OFF, THE '79 DATSUN 210 KEEPS RIGHT ON GOING.

The Datsun 210 – new for '79. Put it all together for yourself. Sit in it. Stretch out. You'll find you have more head and shoulder room than you'd have in a GLC.

Ride in it. With an independent front suspension, a 4 link coil rear suspension, and wider track, you'll be enjoying a much smoother ride than you'd have in either a GLC or a Chevette. Park it. You'll need a lot less turning space for this than you'd need for an Omni or Horizon. Drive it. You'll go at least 150 kilometres* further on a tank of gasoline than you would in a VW Rabbit.

The new Datsun 210 comes with an impressive list of standard features, too. And Datsun dares to put its six year anti-corrosion policy in writing. The new Datsun. See it at your local dealer.

Look-alike goof at UN

The scheduled speaker at the UN Thursday afternoon was the foreign minister from Sri Lanka. At least everyone thought he was until he started accusing India of "mass genocide." It dawned upon someone that a mistake had been made. The microphones were quickly cut off, the security men moved in. The stocky, balding man was not Foreign Minister A.C.S. Hameed at all, but an imposter who looked enough like him to somehow have gained the rostrum at the General Assembly. As the intruder—later identified as K.K. Vaikunthavasam, a former Sri Lankan judge now practising law in London—rambled on, two security men stepped to his side, one gently taking him by the arm, the other grabbing his speech and wadding it into a ball.

Prince Charles, already an accomplished helicopter pilot, sea captain, parachutist, deep sea diver and polo player, is making his debut as a painter. His three watercolors to be unveiled Saturday at the Royal Glasgow Institute of Fine Arts's annual show, in London, put him firmly in the great tradition of British weekend painters that includes Winston Churchill and Prince Philip.

Country music singer Tammy Wynette, victim of a bizarre two-hour kidnapping without apparent motive, said in Nashville Thursday, "I'll never go out alone again." Her clothes torn and soiled, Miss Wynette told police, "They tried to kill me. I don't know why, but they tried to kill me."

The Not-Ready-For-Prime-Time Players are back for a fourth season as the resident zanies of NBC, and Mick Jagger and New York Mayor Edward Koch are joining them for the premiere Saturday. Koch will be guest host of the late night program noted for its bizarre humor.

Photographer Hans Wendt of San Diego can keep the money and any honors he gets for the dramatic photos he took of a doomed jetliner crashing in flames—except for $9. Wendt, 44, an employee of San Diego county's public information service, must reimburse the county for costs of film and processing, which amount to about $9.

A 17-year-old girl from Georgia won the women's world chess championship from another Georgian who held the crown 16 years, according to the official Soviet news agency, Tass. It reported from Pitsunda, Georgia, that Maya Chiburdanidze and defending champion Nona Gaprindashvili drew on the 94th move in the the 15th game of the championship, which began Aug. 19. This gave Miss Chiburdanidze a score of 8.5 points to 6.5 points for Miss Gaprindashvili.

In Windsor, England, police said a woman who burned herself to death on a path within sight of Windsor Castle was Pamela Cooper, a director of the exclusive Piccadilly specialty food store Fortnum and Masons. Miss Cooper, 54, poured rubbing alcohol over herself then set herself alight after leaving a note indicating she was going to kill herself.

This isn't Easy Street

John Wojtowicz, the feisty bisexual who turned bank robber six years ago to finance a sex-change operation for his male 'wife', stands on street corner in New York City. He has been released from jail but must find work before the end of the month or return to prison.

Prize surprises author

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Isaac Bashevis Singer, who insists he is "nothing more than a storyteller," said Thursday he did not believe his wife when she told him he won the Nobel Prize for Literature.

"She had to really convince me I had won," Singer said. "I was very surprised to win the award. I did not even know I was being considered for it.

"I didn't write for prizes, but if it comes it's good. If it doesn't come, I would have been writing anyhow," he said.

Singer, 74, born in Radzymin, Poland, said he was out for a walk when his wife came out to tell him the news.

"I didn't jump. I didn't dance. I couldn't believe it," he said. "But I said to her, 'In any case, let's eat breakfast. We have to eat. What do you think—you stop eating because of happiness?"

Singer, a U.S. citizen since 1943, still writes his stories in Yiddish about "people who speak Yiddish because they are the people I know best."

He will teach a semester of creative writing at the University of Miami early next year.

"I will tell the students things other professors may not tell them," Singer said. "I think the main function of literature is to give pleasure to the reader. I don't believe in writers trying to make readers feel guilty."

Singer said he became interested in writing when he was a boy of 12 in Poland and read a translation of a Sherlock Holmes story. He said he was also influenced by some 19th century writers, like Tolstoy, Dostoyevsky and Flaubert.

"They were right by trying to entertain the readers," he said. "I don't believe only in ponderous writing which is all intellect, but without images or stories. I have been a storyteller all my life."

On the same day that Singer was awarded the prize, two film producers completed the major portion of photography for the first movie to be made from one of Singer's novels.

Torontonians balk at $250 disco deluxe

TORONTO (CP) — Even with more than 2.5 million people in this city's metropolitan area, there just aren't enough so-called beautiful people who will cough up $250 to make a success of a ritzy, glossy, members-only disco.

Le Club, designed to attract the city's glamorous, sophisticated and stylishly-aware set, opened at the Inn on the Park hotel less than a month ago and already has had to abandon its $250 membership fee. It has had to allow its posh interior to be frequented by waitresses, receptionists, junior executives and anyone else who can afford the $6 cover charge.

"But we're still pushing the $250 as a great benefit," says Peter Lederer, the Inn's executive assistant. "It's become an annual cover charge; and a card-carrying member can bring in five guests—free. And members always get in, while non-members may be turned away if the room is full.

Lederer refused to say how many people choose to boogie in Le Club, but insisted, "it could take six months to build up the ambience and select clientele we're looking for."

"We want people who are interesting and sophisticated. It takes time—and no, nobody has asked for their $250 back."

One woman client, however, says she knows at least two people who are less than enthusiastic about the turn of events.

Marchand sidesteps estuary fireworks

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist reporter

Federal Environment Minister Len Marchand said in an interview Thursday that the Cowichan estuary was slated "in the long term" for salmonid enhancement projects, but he would not comment on the effect this might have on industry already located in the estuary.

Marchand also declined to comment on allegations that the estuary had become a slum because he said he was reluctant to interfere with a major estuary report being prepared by the B.C. environment ministry.

Marchand was in Victoria Thursday to attend a three-day national shore management symposium at the Empress hotel, in which the importance of Canadian estuaries has been stressed. The conference ends today.

"There's a report being completed now (by the Cowichan Estuary Task Force) through Mr. Nielsen's department. We'll wait for that before saying anything.

"It's an important estuary for fish; no one denies that," Marchand said.

Marchand declined to comment on allegations by Victoria consulting biologist Ted Burns, author of a fish and wildlife branch report on the estuary, that the estuary had become an "environmental slum".

Meanwhile, a senior federal government scientist said Wednesday at the conference that log storage had been known to spread over 200 acres of the Cowichan estuary and was destroying fish and wildlife habitat.

Dr. G.E. Beanlands, regional director of the Atlantic lands directorate of the fisheries department, told the symposium that log storage in the estuary destroyed fish and wildlife habitat, lowered water quality, and prevented use of the estuary for fishing and boating.

Beanlands said: "The major sawmill operator on the Cowichan estuary needs . . approximately 20 to 40 acres of water storage. However, the company has been known to influence over 200 acres of the estuary with its log storage operations."

Beanlands said there were more than 12 water lot leases in the Cowichan estuary involving about 475 acres and that "there does not appear to be a consistent (provincial government) policy regarding the granting of log storage leases."

He charged that other log storage areas besides estuaries were under-utilized in B.C. and that insufficient research had been done on many aspects of the problem.

"What are the alternatives to the storage of logs in the Cowichan estuary?

"There are areas other than estuaries which have log storage leases.

"Perhaps because they usually belong to only one company these areas are often under-utilized.

"For example, a lease in one bay near the Cowichan was only being utilized to about 20 per cent of its potential."

CUPE 'separatists' challenging national unity

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

Is Canada's largest labor union going to be the first major body to test the ties of national unity?

Sources said Thursday they expect the question to be answered in the next two days as "unhappy" elements within the Canadian Union of Public Employees try to bring the "Western Caucus" into being.

While details were sketchy, they said the plan had its beginning in Edmonton and that a meeting today and Saturday in Vancouver was to form what would apparently be a western federation of public sector unionists—made up mostly in the beginning of CUPE locals.

Authoritative sources within B.C. labor circles say dissatisfaction with the Ottawa power base of the 231,000-member CUPE has created a desire for either western separatism of the union or complete autonomy.

The Vancouver meeting, arranged without any fanfare, will involve mostly CUPE personnel. But sources said representatives had also been invited from unions within the hospital field, as well as the Vancouver-based Municipal and Regional Employees Union. The idea, they said, was to draw up a constitution and bylaws for the proposed body.

The movement has apparently been spearheaded by a CUPE local representing employees at an Edmonton hospital. The main complaints are said to be a lack of proper service from the eastern headquarters and national per-capita fees that are described as being too high under the circumstances.

There is also a feeling the union is suffering from something that has proved a handicap for the country itself—too much distance between east and west.

There are those, however, who feel the would-be CUPE "separatists" are very much in the minority.

"I think it would fail," says Jim Walker, president of the CUPE local representing outside Victoria municipal workers. "I don't think such a movement would serve any purpose."

Walker and others think CUPE is being adequately served by its national headquarters. Walker notes that a strong measure of provincial independence has actually entered the picture already. In 1977, Ray Mercer became the western director for B.C. and the province was assigned its own full-time research personnel just five weeks ago.

"I don't know if what they're talking about now is the same thing as WUPE—that's an idea they had—something called Western Union of Public Employees," he said. "But whatever it is, it seems strange at a time when decentralization is already taking place."

The effort to form the new body poses another interesting question for labor observers: How would it differ from the Public Sector Employees Council that was formed two years ago in B.C. to cover some 125,000 members of such unions as CUPE, the Hospital Employees' Union, the B.C. Government Employees' Union, the Office and Technical Employees' Union, and others?

One of the purposes of the council was to provide a common front against various levels of government.

'Guinea pig' police unification decried

By BILL SMITH
Colonist reporter

Greater Victoria will be the guinea pig in any moves toward establishment of a regional police force in the province, a veteran member of the Saanich Police Board predicted Thursday.

John Tribe told a joint meeting of the board and council "they are going to try us on for size, we will be the guinea pigs in their scheme of things."

He made the remarks during discussion on a task force study on policing costs in B.C. which calls for a regional police board for the Greater Victoria area.

The study, prepared by the B.C. Police Commission, also urges a better cost-sharing arrangement whereby all taxpayers in the province would contribute to police services.

Mayor Mel Couvelier, the board chairman, said he was concerned that Tribe's prediction would prove accurate.

Unification of the five Greater Victoria municipal police forces—Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich— is supported by Victoria Mayor Michael Young, the meeting was told.

Couvelier said he could understand Victoria taking such a position because it would mean a cost saving.

Tribe, a former Saanich employee, said the study ruled out the Lower Mainland as an area for regional policing.

The study says that within B.C., Greater Victoria is the area most conducive to a regional policing approach, he said.

Under the commission's terms, regional could mean anything from the amalgamation of two or more of the existing forces to establishing one force for the entire region.

The study says a regional police force would lead to a superior delivery of police services in the Capital Region.

The 387-page document also notes that although the co-operation among the five municipal forces in Greater Victoria is good, there appears to be "an undue amount of parochialism, with some evidence of unhealthy competition at times, particularly between the two larger forces.

Couvelier said he could not understand why people continued to talk about amalgamation of police departments as the study clearly showed it would not save money and such a force would be no more effective than existing municipal departments.

"It's just not going to happen," he said. "Why do we keep talking about it?"

The study would have us believe that the professionals want a regional police force, and it's the politicians and board members who are opposed. "That just isn't true," he said.

Affirming its opposition to regional police, the board and council endorsed a draft brief which will be submitted to the task force as the board's document.

The brief says the board "is disappointed to see the question of regionalization dredged up once more in the task force terms of reference."

Dealing with a suggestion in the study that regionalization would equalize police costs, the brief says that this would follow only if each municipality viewed its policing priorities in the same light.

"We believe it improper to require Saanich citizens to accept a style or level of policing in use in other municipalities, as we have designed a service attuned to the needs of our taxpayers. As they are paying the bill, they are entitled to the service they want."

The board, rejecting outright any argument for regional policing on the premise that a reduction of local political control is desirable, says: "We believe policing is a function of service to people, and the minute wishes of the people the force serves are overruled or overlooked an incestuosness relationship would inevitably creep into the system, soon followed by a lack of accountability."

Aldermen agreed with the board that there are specialized services which could be performed by municipal forces on a fee-for-service basis for other forces in the area.

They would include identification services, centralized records and the soon-to-be-established Saanich canine unit.

Aldermen conceded that it was impractical for each force to pursue on their own these highly specialized services.

Of the eight proposals outlined by the study team for consideration in the development of a cost-sharing formula, the board selected one which stressed payment on a per-capita basis. This matter will be given further study by the mayor and board secretary Ronald Porter before the brief is submitted.

The brief says that Saanich wants a better financial break from the provincial government because a jail and nearly 10 miles of arterial highway lie within the municipal police department's area of jurisdiction.

The brief points out that the Vancouver Island regional correctional centre at Wilkinson Road has a considerable financial impact on the police department's manpower and equipment.

Last year, for example, there were two hostage and eight escape incidents at the institution, not to mention four cases of inmates being unlawfully at large and 36 situations involving police attendance on minor calls.

In manpower alone, those incidents cost the municipality almost $4,000.

With regard to highways, the brief notes that 7.4 miles of the Patricia Bay Highway and 2.3 miles of the Trans-Canada are in Saanich, accounting for 15 per cent of all Saanich road accidents and police activity last year.

The municipality receives no financial consideration for this drain on its resources, the brief says, although a number of other areas in the province are provided with, or are at least bolstered by, traffic units at no cost to the municipality. Highways 401, 99 and 17, for example, are enforced solely by two specially-designated RCMP units and subsidized by the provincial government.

Churches' grant probed

Sally Ann incensed by aid for terrorists

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist reporter

Thirty-two Salvation Army schools in Rhodesia have had to close because of terrorist activity, Salvation Army World Leader Arnold Brown said in Victoria on Thursday.

Brown said in an interview at the Empress hotel that two Salvation Army women teachers were recently shot and killed by terrorists, and other teachers involved in the same incident were wounded in an escape.

The teachers who were killed spoke Matabele, the local language, so it wasn't a question of their being mistaken for security forces.

However, Brown added that this violence was not related to the Salvation Army's recent decision to suspend its membership in the World Council of Churches, a body which has donated money to the terrorists, the Patriotic Front guerillas now operating in Rhodesia.

Brown, in B.C. to lead the Salvation Army's western Congress this weekend in Vancouver, told the Colonist that the Salvation Army had suspended membership in the World Council of Churches indefinitely, until certain "inquiries" were made into the WCC's decision to grant $85,000 to the terrorists.

Brown said a meeting with the WCC would be held this December in London, England, to decide whether to continue the suspension.

Brown
. . . 'violence no solution'

At this meeting, "the WCC will give us their answers and we will state our perplexity," presumably with "amity," Brown said.

He said that Time magazine had noted that other church bodies, including the Methodist and Greek Orthodox churches, were having "bitter" misgivings about the donation of WCC money to the terrorists.

Brown said the Salvation Army was a founding member of the WCC, had been in Rhodesia for 90 years, served black people there of all tribes, and represented different peoples from 83 countries.

The Salvation Army "has regularly protested the grants made to known terrorist organizations, to organizations committed to the overthrow of the societal structure by violence," Brown said.

"The army abhors violence. This particular grant was made at an unpropitious moment in the history of Rhodesia.

"The country is in turmoil, strife and confusion. There are many crosscurrents of feeling and emotion."

Brown said the $85,000 WCC grant had been made "ostensibly for the relief of human suffering" as part of the WCC's controversial "Program to Combat Racism."

However, Brown said the "85,000 could only help, if only indirectly, in the perpetuation of violence. After all, the money was going to the Popular Front. If it was combatting racism, what kind of racism was it combatting?

"Rhodesia is a torn and sad country, and what we want is a solution to the problem as soon as possible," he said.

He said violence was not a solution.

Ian Smith's Rhodesian government "may be considered an illegal regime by some, but the transitional government is the government of law and order at this moment."

Blockbuster decision may see heads roll

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist reporter

Where to put Sir John A. MacDonald so he won't have "his block chopped off?

Now, take Queen Elizabeth, the first, that is. The lady lost her head, so to speak, a number of times.

And because of what happened to her statue, Victoria Mayor Michael Young doesn't want a life-like statue of Sir John A. to suffer a similar fate in the wilds of Beacon Hill Park.

He says it's great that the Sir John A. MacDonald Society wants to erect a statue of the first prime minister, and he says it should be placed at the Douglas Street entrance to Centennial Square.

But apart from potential vandalism to the statue, the mayor says there's another reason why it should be erected at Centennial Square.

The mayor says the first prime minister's historical tie with Victoria is that he represented the riding in Ottawa. The fact that Centennial Square wasn't even there when Sir John A. visited Victoria in 1886, the only time he ever did, is immaterial, according to Young.

MacDonald
. . . where to put him?

"Centennial Square is the obvious place for the statue," Young told city council's intergovernmental relations committee Thursday.

Ald. Murray Glazier didn't think so, however. He said Sir John A. never came near the spot where Centennial Square is today.

"It wasn't even there at the time, and until a few years ago, the square was a street and a parking lot," Glazier said.

But MacDonald did drive his carriage through Beacon Hill Park to Government House, Glazier said.

The mayor replied that he didn't think it was important where Sir John A. rode his horse.

But Glazier voiced one more reservation.

"Do you think he should really be out there (at Centennial Square) with all the rubbies?" he asked.

When his arguments didn't carry any weight with the mayor, Glazier folded his cards.

Young said the statue would be erected on a pedestal "so he won't have his block chopped off," a fate the statue of Queen Elizabeth in Beacon Hill Park suffered several times.

The mayor said the statue would hopefully be in place by Jan. 11, Sir John A.'s birthday.

BYLAWS GIVEN MUSCLE

Because a number of old Victoria bylaws have no penalty provision, city solicitor Jakob de Villiers has prepared a draft bylaw which sets maximum penalties of $1,000 for infractions of all bylaws which contain no specific penalty provision.

The catch-all penalty bylaw is to remain in effect until the end of 1979. By that time, de Villiers hopes to have prepared amendments to all old bylaws which don't now contain penalty provisions.

City council's legal committee Thursday referred de Villier's draft bylaw to council.

De Villiers said the matter had been brought to his attention by crown prosecutors after a provincial court judge refused recently to convict or punish offenders against bylaws which contained no penalty provisions.

LOTTERY CASH FOR DRY-OUT HQ

The British Columbia government is contributing $1 million in lottery revenue toward construction of a $3 million residential treatment centre for alcoholics in Victoria.

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy presented the cheque to General Arnold Brown, international leader of the Salvation Army during his visit to the city.

Mayor derides free bus

During the past three months, the free downtown shuttle bus service carried more than 40,000 passengers, but Victoria Mayor Michael Young and Ald. Murray Glazier feel that's not enough.

The mayor told a meeting Thursday of city council's downtown economic development committee that he was particularly concerned about the lack of promotion for the free-bus run.

Glazier said the results weren't worth the cost of $6,600, or 60 cents a passenger.

"What would impress you? a hundred thousand passengers a month?" Ald. William Tindall asked, visibly angered.

"That would impress me," Glazier replied.

"But this way, it's just not working. The buses are too big, the signs (indicating a free-bus stop) are too small. It's not worth the money we spend," he added.

But the committee made no recommendation to discontinue the service which has been scheduled to operate until the end of the year.

The free-bus scheme is financed from the city's off-street parking fund which derives its revenue from the parkades.

Just one more to go for Lopes and Dodgers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "No matter what they throw, I feel confident I can hit it," said Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman Davey Lopes Thursday.

Lopes, in the first two games of the best-of-five National League championship series against Philadelphia Phillies, has put his confidence where his bat is.

The Dodger captain, who said his job is to motivate his team-mates, led by example Thursday. He had three hits, including a home run and a triple, and three runs batted in as Los Angeles recorded a 4-0 triumph over the Phillies for a 2-0 lead in the series.

Lopes said he has dedicated his performance in this playoff to Dodgers coach Jim Gilliam. Gilliam recently suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and is in a coma at a Los Angeles hospital.

"I'm really keyed up for this series," said Lopes. "Jim Gilliam helped everyone on this ball club. And we're hoping God will let a miracle happen and let Jim Gilliam come back to us."

Tonight's third game of the National League championship series will be telecast on channel 4 starting at 5 p.m.

Tommy John, who stopped the Phillies with a four-hit shutout, tried to explain his success in Thursday's second game of the series.

"I just had good stuff today," said John.

Los Angeles manager Tommy Lasorda said he had decided to start John in the second game as soon as he found out the veteran left-hander was healthy.

John had missed four starts between Sept. 3 and last Saturday because of a pulled muscle in his left calf.

He was asked if he wasn't concerned the Phillies might turn to a bunting game because of his recently damaged calf muscle.

"If I could get the Philadelphia Phillies to bunt, they'd be doing me a favor. That would take away their big hitting game," said John.

The Phillies didn't bunt, but John took away their hitting game, anyway. He allowed only four balls to be hit over the infielders.

John said this may have been the best game he pitched since 1967 when he got 23 ground-ball outs for Chicago White Sox while working against Boston Red Sox.

Los Angeles outfielder Reggie Smith set the tone for the Dodgers as they left for the West Coast, where the series continues today.

"We're two up and we're going back to our own back yard," he said. "Things look good from here."

Phillies manager Danny Ozark said what he might be expected to say, facing the task of winning three consecutive at Dodger Stadium.

"The game isn't over until the third out in the ninth inning," said Ozark. "They have to win one. We have to win three. It isn't over until they beat us one more game."

Phillies starter Dick Ruthven shrugged his shoulders and said: "They hit every mistake I made. I don't know if it's discipline or if they're on a hot streak. I've cut down on the mistakes, but they still beat me."

Rice, Ron co-winners

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Ron Guidry of New York Yankees and outfielder Jim Rice of Boston Red Sox were named co-winners of the sixth annual Joe Cronin Award Thursday.

The award, presented in the name of the retired American League president and Hall of Famer, is given each year for "distinguished achievement" in the league.

"To select a single winner this year would be grossly unfair," said AL president Lee MacPhail, commenting on the unprecedented dual selection. "Both Rice and Guidry have enjoyed remarkable seasons of such magnitude that this joint presentation was mandatory."

Guidry established a host of records in 1978, including the highest major league winning perentage (.893) for pitchers with 20 or more victories. Guidry had a 25-3 record as he helped the Yankees win the Eastern Division pennant.

Also, his 1.74 earned run average was lowest for a left-hander (tied with Sandy Koufax) since Carl Hubbell's 1.66 in 1933 and second lowest in AL history. Dutch Leonard had 1.01 in 1914.

Rice had his biggest year with Boston, leading the majors in six categories—hits (213), total bases (406), triples (15), home runs (46), runs batted in (139) and slugging percentage (.600).

Net action scheduled

Opening games start at 2:30 p.m. and continue tonight until 9:30. The two-day round-robin concludes Saturday, with games going from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Favored Raul battles back

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (AP) — Top-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico rallied from a rough first set to beat Eliot Teltscher of the United States, while American Peter Fleming upset sixth-seeded John Newcombe of Australia in the second round of the $100,000 Island Holidays pro tennis tournament Thursday.

Ramirez eliminated Teltscher 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, while Fleming had a relatively easy time beating Newcombe 6-3, 6-3 to gain quarter-final berths in the the 32-man tournament.

Fifth-seeded John McEnroe battled back from a close first set which saw only two service breaks to down Brian Teacher 6-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Stiff penalties for drug users

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (Reuter) — The 31st congress of the International Athletics Federation (IAAF) began Thursday with delegates approving stricter regulations for combatting the use of illegal drugs by athletes.

The 138 delegates from 72 countries also approved several minor changes in the federation's technical rules before considering controversial political issues of the re-admission of China to the IAAF and the participation of Israel in the 1978 Asian Games.

The IAAF approved increasing the minimum period of suspension for infractions in the use of illegal drugs to 18 months from 12 months. The maximum penalty remains a life suspension.

Arthur Gold, British president of the IAAF's European council, said the British sports council has decided to donate $50,000 to help establish a special fund within the IAAF to further its fight against doping around the world.

"I have been a hawk on this matter since 1956 and I am glad to be able to put my money where my mouth is," Gold said.

He said in an interview that the special fund, for which he was seeking other contributions, will be used exclusively for assisting countries in establishing anti-doping programs.

He said the special fund will help national sports federations buy equipment and train personnel to carry on testing in their countries. In addition, some of the money may be used to send teams of experts to certain areas to conduct tests.

Among the changes in the technical rules approved by the delegates was on altering the method of recording times for races longer than 400 metres.

Starting on Jan. 1, the times for such races will be read in hundreths of a second and then converted to the next highest tenth of a second for recording. Previously, the time was read in hundreths and rounded up or down to the nearest tenth.

Under the new rule, a time of one minute 45.21 seconds will be recorded as 1:45.3. It would have been 1:45.2 under the old rule.

The congress also approved a recommendation from its women's committee that from 1981, the women's pentathlon will be replaced by a seven-event heptathlon, held over two days.

Under the new set-up women will compete at 100, 200 and 800 metres and also in the high jump, long jump, shot put, and javelin throw. Currently, they do not compete in the 200 metres or javelin throw in the pentathlon.

Wheat Kings capture third successive win

BRANDON (CP) — Brad Kempthorne and Dave Chartier scored two goals apiece and paced Brandon Wheat Kings to a 7-2 victory over Billings Bighorns in a Western Hockey League game before 2,730 fans Thursday night. It was Brandon's third win without a loss.

Kempthorne opened the scoring after just 43 seconds of play and leftwinger Brian Propp gave the Wheat Kings a 2-0 lead 23 seconds later.

The Wheat Kings—who built up period leads of 3-0 and 4-1—got other goals from Laurie Boschmann and rooke Walt Poddubny.

Brandon controlled the play for most of the game, directing 58 shots at Billings goalie Andy Moog. Rick Knickle made 25 saves for the Wheat Kings.

Referee Glen Agar of Brandon assessed the Bighorns 9 of 17 minors, three of six majors, and the lone game misconduct.

Long season looming

It looks like a long season ahead for Kerry Park Islanders. If possible, even longer than 1977-78.

But now, it's back to the old drawing board.

Memories of late dad inspire Royal starter

NEW YORK (AP) — When Paul William Splittorff, Jr., of Kansas City Royals takes the mound against New York Yankees today in game three of the American League championship series, he will carry the memory of the late Paul William Splittorff, Sr., with him.

The elder Splittorff died of lung cancer last week at the age of 57 and Paul left the Royals for the weekend, going to Chicago for the funeral.

"I'll have some definite thoughts on my mind," Splittorff said Thursday as the Royals prepared to work out at Yankee Stadium following a split of the first two games in Kansas City. Jim (Catfish) Hunter is due to pitch for New York.

Today's third game of the American League championship series will be telecast on channel 4, starting at noon.

"Most of my thoughts will be with my mother," Splittorff said. "As far as dedicating the game to my father, well, I don't know if I'd say that. I'd just as soon keep my thoughts to myself."

It has not been the happiest of baseball seasons for Splittorff despite a 19-13 record and a career-high 13 complete games. In June, Splittorff's father learned he had lung cancer.

"It played with my mind all summer," Splittorff admitted. "He was very into sports and he spent a lot of time with me as a kid. He encouraged me to play sports, not just baseball, but basketball and football, also.

"Maybe I'm in baseball because that's the one thing he couldn't do. He played basketball and football in high school and he could shoot the eyes out of a basket, but he liked baseball more than any other sport. Basically, I guess he was just a sports nut."

The elder Splittorff's illness caused "a real family crisis" during the July 4 weekend, said Paul, a veteran left-hander who will turn 32 on Sunday.

"I flew home from the West Coast and missed a start," he recalled. "The doctors didn't know just how bad the cancer was. He started chemotherapy and up until a month ago we thought it was doing the job. But it became evident that it wasn't working. The last two weeks he was getting worse, but I was unaware how bad it was.

"It sounds strange to say it, but his death was kind of a blessing in disguise for both him and my mom. He didn't have to suffer that much and my mom didn't have to go through all of it."

Islanders deliver note not ready to abdicate

New York's ambitious Rangers, who have a new coach and Swedish stars Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson to spur hopes, got a bit of a reminder Thursday night that their cross-town rivals are going go be as tough as ever.

Now 7-2 in pre-schedule play, the Islanders remained champions of New York by handing out a 3-0 shutout with Billy Smith and Glenn Resch sharing goaltending duties.

Wayne Merrick's power-play goal at 2:24 of the first period was too much for the Rangers as they went down to their fourth defeat, to go with three ties, in nine games. Mike Kaszycki and Bob Bourne clinched it with third period goals.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia Flyers, who play in the same NHL division as the New York clubs, pounded out an impressive 7-2 home-ice win over Boston Bruins.

Centre Rick MacLeish scored three times as the Flyers balanced their exhibition schedule at 4-4, and Boston's at 3-2-3.

Rookie-defenceman Behn Wilson, Ken Linseman, Bob Dailey and Mel Bridgman scored the other Philadelphia goals. Bobby Schmautz and Don Marcotte were the Boston marksmen.

Other Thursday hockey highlights:

— Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association continued to do well against NHL opposition, felling Chicago Black Hawks, 5-2, before 12,261 Quebec fans with ex-Hawk Christian Bordeleau getting a goal and two assists in rough action which produced 35 penalties. Richard David Real Cloutier, Danny Geoffrion and Serge Bernier got the other Quebec goals. Stan Mikita and Alain Daigle replied for the Hawks;

— Winnipeg Jets of the WHA managed a 5-5 tie with Minnesota North Stars in Duluth. Kris Manery scored three times and Al MacAdam and Greg Smith once each for the NHL club. Peter Sullivan, Willy Lindstrom, Glen Hicks, John Gray and Rich Preston made the Winnipeg shots which counted;

— St.Louis Blues squared it for the NHL with a 4-3 victory over the Bulls in Birmingham. Inge Hammerstrom shot the winning goal at 5:16 of the third period. Brian Sutter, Mike Walton and rookie Bob Palazarri got the other St. Louis goals, Gavin Kirk, Michel Goulet and Phil Roberto scored for the WHA club;

— Pittsburgh Penguins delighted a home crowd by walloping Detroit Red Wings, 8-2 with Peter Lee and Nanaimo's Wayne Bianchin both scoring twice. Pete Mahovlich, Dave Schultz, Ron Stackhouse and George Ferguson got the other Pittsburgh goals, Errol Thompson and Dale McCourt scored for the wings;

— Colorado Rockies broke away in the third period for four goals which brought a 7-3 win in Denver over Los Angeles Kings, who played without their top six scorers. Joe Contini, rookie Mike Dwyer, Rey Comeau and Wilf Paiement scored in the third-period splurge. Comeau had an earlier goal and set up Paiement with a fine pass;

— Toronto Maple Leafs, who acquired 31-year-old centre Walt McKechniefrom Minnesota North Stars for an undisclosed draft choice, downed the Sabres 3-1 in Buffalo. Lanny McDonald scored on a second-period power play and Lorne Stamler added a third-period insurance goal.

Tiger-Cats acquire Aynsley

HAMILTON (CP) — Canadian wide receiver Brock Aynsley, a six-year veteran of the Canadian Football League, was acquired Thursday by Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a trade with Montreal Alouettes.

Hamilton general manager Bob Shaw, in making the announcement, said the future considerations might possibly be a draft choice.

Aynsley, a 28-year-old native of Vancouver, is rumored to have been originally offered to Hamilton for Leif Pettersen and when the Ticats balked at the proposed deal, he was placed on waivers by the Alouettes, with right of recall.

The Ticats must release a Canadian player today to make room on their roster for Aynsley, who had his best pro season last year with the Alouettes when he caught 39 passes for 739 yards and three touchdowns, including the longest pass-and-run play of the season—105 yards from quarterback Sonny Wade on Sept. 11 against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Aynsley cracked the British Columbia roster in 1973 and played out his option with the Lions two years later—signing with the Als prior to the 1976 season.

Hot-shooting Gillian guns down Claremont

Things are unfolding pretty much according to plan in the first division of the Greater Victoria high school field hockey league.

In any case Mount Douglas is still winning. That's nothing new. First-place Mount Doug, now 7-0, has been rolling over all comers since day one of the current campaign.

So, the division-leaders' decisive 5-1 win over Norfolk House wasn't the hottest item Thursday. That distinction went to the goal-scoring knack of a second-division shooter.

Gillian Poole single-handedly destroyed Claremont, as she led first-place Parkland to a 4-0 decision, scoring all four goals.

Parkland improved its mark to 7-0-1 with the victory.

In other second-division contests, Laurel Ormstrong netted three goals and Greer Stewart added two as Belmont dumped Dunsmuir 5-1. Marie Johnson replied for Dunsmuir.

St. Michaels University School bombed Reynolds 6-0 as Carolyn Lamb scored three times, Susanne Crofton chipped in a pair of goals and Mary Anne Anderson rounded out the scoring.

In Wednesday games, Parkland blanked Reynolds 5-0 and Belmont nipped Claremont 3-2.

Back in the first division, Andrea Anderson and Nancy Charlton each supplied two goals for Mount Douglas. Liz Ellis scored the remaining goal and Terry Toone replied with Norfolk's goal.

Second-place Spectrum, now 5-3, whipped St. Margaret's 7-0, getting three goals from Trisha Sherring and two apiece from Bonnie Hutton and Diane Harpham.

Oak Bay, in third with a 4-3 mark, dropped Victoria High 3-1. Cathy Cavin, Linda Shorting and Trisha Ravenhill each scored for the winners while Carrie McConnachie answered for Vic High.

Shero-led Rangers add interest

Keen rivalry with Flyers certain but Islanders should handle both

By SCOTT ABBOTT
The Canadian Press

Fred Shero took over as coach of Philadelphia Flyers in 1971-72 and, two years later, they won the first of two consecutive Stanley Cup championships.

New York Rangers, who have hired Shero to direct their troops in the 1978-79 season starting Wednesday, would do well to remember that the controversial coach missed the playoffs with the Flyers in his first National Hockey League season.

Shero's return to the Rangers, for whom he played for all his two and a half years as an NHL defenceman, means he will be taking his new club head-to-head with the Flyers in the Patrick Division of the Clarence Campbell Conference.

That and cross-town rival New York Islanders, as well as the burly Atlanta Flames, offer Shero a considerable challenge in his efforts to bring the Rangers back to respectability.

The job will require more than the restitution of the Rangers' traditional uniforms in place of the mod style the team has worn in recent seasons.

The Flyers, meanwhile, have again dipped into the minors for a coach in the person of Bob McCammon, who led Maine Mariners to the Calder Cup championship in the American Hockey League last season, earning coach-of-the-season honors. Shero also was a successful minor-league coach when Philadelphia hired him.

McCammon, a 37-year-old native of Kenora, Ont., never played in the NHL but spent 13 seasons as a minor-league defenceman, mostly with Port Huron Flags of the International Hockey League.

He takes control of a team that many observers feel is on the decline. After four straight first-place finishes, the Flyers were second in the Patrick Division last season, six points behind the Islanders.

The Smythe Division, the other half of the Clarence Campbell Conference, becomes a four-team section with the shift of Minnesota North Stars to the Adams group.

The clubs left behind form the NHL's weakest division. Only Chicago Black Hawks among the Smythe survivors had a winning record last season, and they were 32-29-19.

Barring trades and player moves in the waiver draft Monday, the Clarence Campbell Conference clubs could finish in this order:

PATRICK DIVISION

New York Islanders: First-round amateur draft pick Steve Tambellini and John Tonelli, from the defunct Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association, should add toughness to the forward lines, and Bryan Trottier and Mike Bossy will again provide firepower. Bob Bourne, Clark Gillies, Bill Harris, Lorne Henning and Bob Nystrom are hustling forwards who force opportunities. On defence are Denis Potvin, Gerry Hart, Dave Lewis, Bert Marshall, Stefan Persson and Pat Price, while Glenn Resch will be joined by either Billy Smith or Goran Hogosta in goal. The Islanders figure to increase their margin over Philadelphia.

Philadelphia Flyers: The coaching change is only one indication that the Flyers are in flux. Rightwingers Don Saleski and Reggie Leach are in disfavor, and some question how long centre Bobby Clarke can maintain his customary level of play. Ken Linseman from the WHA's Birmingham Bulls should lend speed at centre, and defenceman Behn Wilson from Kingston Canadians of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League, sixth choice over-all in the amateur draft, has sparkled in exhibition play. Bernie Parent will combine with either Wayne Stephenson or Rick St. Croix to supply good work in goal.

New York Rangers: Linemates Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson received kings' ransoms to defect from Winnipeg Jets of the WHA, and the gamble is plain. The Swedish pair will have to produce under pressure or the Rangers may trail their division for a fourth consecutive season. Centre Phil Esposito, the club's leading point-getter, is 36. The Rangers cleared away plenty of high-salaried deadwood before last season and now the new coach, who gained so much attention with what was billed as the "Shero system" at Philadelphia, will have a chance to show whether it was real or imagined.

Atlanta Flames: Jean Pronovost arrives fresh from a 40-goal season with Pittsburgh Penguins, and his scoring prowess is just the fuel the Flames need. If Willi Plett, Harold Phillipoff, Ken Houston and Eric Vail, all six-feet or more and 200-plus pounds, use their size to advantage up front, the Flames could make strides. Defencemen Richard Mulhern, Pat Ribble, Dave Shand, Ed Kea, Greg Fox, Miles Zaharko and Brad Marsh are every bit as big, and goaltender Dan Bouchard — another six-footer, who will be backed by Yves Belanger — provides capable netminding.

SMYTHE DIVISION

Colorado Rockies: For the Rockies to finish first, they will need a healthy Doug Favell in goal, a healthy defence corps of Barry Beck, Mike Christie, Dennis Owchar, Mark Suzor, John Van Boxmeer and Joe Watson, and some balanced offensive work from Paul Gardner, Wilf Paiement, Nelson Pyatt, Mike Kitchen, Ralph Klassen and others. But the biggest question in this lacklustre division may not be who will win it but whether anyone will care who stumbles home first.

Chicago Black Hawks: Tony Esposito carried the load in goal last season and, at 35, may not be up to playing in 64 games again, meaning Mike Veisor or Murray Bannerman can expect work. Age also is a factor in the case of centre Stan Mikita, 38. Bobby Orr attempts a return on defence, and if he is even partially successful it might be enough to allow the Hawks to again lead the division. They haven't got much firepower up front and will have to rely on tight defensive play.

Vancouver Canucks: The Canucks, who have new club colors, also have a lot of newcomers and will count heavily on four Swedish players—free-agent forward Roland Eriksson, with Minnesota last season, and defencemen Lars Lindgren and Lars Zetterstrom and forward Thomas Gradin from the Swedish national team. If they produce, the Canucks could finish first. And added hope has been given by the pre-schedule play of three rookies from the Western Hockey League, wingers Curt Fraser (Victoria Cougars) and Stan Smyl (New Westminster Bruins) and centre Bill Derlago (Brandon Wheat Kings). Gary Bromley, from Winnipeg of the WHA, adds goalkeeping depth and may even rate No. 1 before the end of the season.

St. Louis Blues: Coach Barclay Plager's squad appears to be the only one without a shot at the division title. Forwards Red Berenson and Claude Larose and utilityman Jimmy Roberts have retired to make way for youth, but there doesn't appear to be much good new talent. Centre Doug Palazzari, who led the Central League in goals and assists last season and is the main hope for improvement.

Japanese pro ahead with 66

GOTEMBA, Japan (AP) — Japanese-pro Kosaku Shimada sloshed through the rain to take the lead after the first round of the $300,000 Pacific Club Masters golf tournament today with a five-under-par 66.

The 34-year-old Japanese veteran had five birdies and no bogeys over the rain-soaked 6,225-yard par-71 Gotemba course near Mt. Fuji, southwest of Tokyo, and held a one-stroke lead over two Americans going into Friday's second round of the 72-hole tournament.

Alone in fourth place was Dr. Gil Morgan with a 68.

Bunched at 69 were Americans Gene Littler, Lee Elder and George Archer, plus Masashi Ozaki, Yoshitaka Yamamoto and Toshiharu Kawada, all of Japan, and veteran Taiwanese pro Lu Liang Huan.

Trifecta pays $34,174 for $3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One ticket-holder won a record $34,174.80 on a $3 trifecta bet at Beulah Park Thursday.

The big payoff on the 8-9-11 combination of Charley Rupert, Toasted Peach and Big Daddy D. topped the previous high trifecta return of $26,398.20 on Nov. 24, 1977. The winning bettor was not identified.

Longshot Rugged Sail won the featured race and returned $87.40, $30.80 and $10.60. Sweet Sand paid $9.40 and $6 for second and Hasty Enterprise, $11.40 for show.

Britain eyes Davis Cup final

LONDON (AP) — Defending champion Australia faces Britain for the first time since 1936 in the semi-finals of the Davis Cup tennis competition at the Crystal Palace starting today.

The Australians are favored to meet Sweden or the United States in the final, but confidence in the British camp has seldom been higher.

The 23-year-old British No. 1 player, Buster Mottram, faces veteran lefthander Tony Roche in the first match, with John Lloyd following against John Alexander. The doubles, the British pair of David Lloyd and Mark Cox facing Ross Case and Geoff Masters, will be played Saturday, with the reverse singles on Sunday.

The nearest Britain has come to Davis Cup final since 1937 was in 1969 when it lost in the semi-finals to Romania.

No word on Tunney's illness

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney is in hospital in guarded condition with an undisclosed illness, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

Tunney, 80, has been hospitalized for "an extended period" of time, the spokesman said.

Tunney won the heavyweight title in 1926 by outpointing Jack Dempsey in a 10-round bout in Philadelphia. He held the crown until 1928, when he retired.

Meadowlark leaves Trotters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Meadowlark Lemon has retired from basketball's Harlem Globetrotters, the organization announced Thursday.

Club president Stan Greeson said that Lemon had asked to be released from his contract and the request was granted. Nate Branch, who has played with the club 11 years, was named the new player-coach.

Greeson said that Lemon's other interests do not permit him to rejoin the club which is going into its 53rd season.

Lemon is completing his role in a motion picture and has a record album to be released in January.

Way paved for replacement

CHICAGO (AP) — National Football League owners Thursday lowered to 21 from 28 the number of votes needed to approve expansion or the moving of a franchise from one city to another.

Commssioner Pete Rozelle, at the close of the two-day meeting, said the change in the constitution from unanimous approval to three-quarters approval was designed to make it easier to get a team into Los Angeles after the Rams move to Annaheim, Calif., in 1980.

Rozelle said the league eventually will expand to 30 teams from 28 but "there isn't any talk of expansion right now. We like to space our expansion until our newer teams like Tampa Bay and Seattle get stronger."

Rozelle said no other action was taken during the final session of the meetings Thursday morning.

Yearling sale sets records

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Tattersalls standardbred yearling sale concluded Thursday night with record gross sales of $15,888,900 for 521 yearlings, trotters and pacers.

The average of $30,497 topped last year's record, when the same number of horses sold for an average of $20,186.

Five yearlings sold for more than $200,000 each during the six-night sale and 23 sold for more than $100,000 each. And during the final session Thursday night, Cobra Almahurst, a brown colt by Meadow Skipper out of Tar Lady, brought $385,000, a record for a harness horse yearling.

Cobra Almahurst was bought from the consignment of Almahurst Farm of Lexington by John Shegerian of Carlstadt, N.J. Earlier in the week, Captain Caution, also a son of Meadow Skipper, brought a then-record $290,000.

A Little Hot, by Meadow Skipper out of Richelle Hanover, brought a record price Thursday night for a harness racing filly, Bill Haughton, paying $240,000. The previous mark for a filly was $220,000, paid earlier this week for All Arranged.

Golfing neighbors in two-ball finale

It was close Thursday for both winners as Tommy Elmsley and Midge Cole of Ardmore Golf Club and Gerry Baillie and Edna Hay of neighboring Glen Meadows won their way into the final of the Victoria and District women's two-ball foursomes competition.

Playing in near-perfect conditions at the Victoria Golf Club, the Baillie-Hay pairing squeezed by Eileen Claremont and Barbara Ricketts of Gorge Vale, 2 and 1, while the survivors from Ardmore scored a 2 and 1 decision over Joan Moore and Holly Heiler of Cedar Hill.

In the consolation flight semi-finals, medalists Pat Leahy and Mary Fortune bested Ann Gillespie and Muriel Twite of Glen Meadows, 2 up, and Libby hemmons and Joan Withers of Cedar Hill ousted Vi Northup and Eileen Ryan of Gorge Vale, 3 and 2.

All flight finals are scheduled today at Royal Colwood with the championship flight set for 10 a.m. and the comsolation final at 9:45 a.m.

Heavy weekend schedule could settle things in CFL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's getting late in the Canadian Football League season for Toronto Argonauts, currently languishing in the basement of the Eastern Conference.

Toronto visits Calgary Stampeders on Saturday trying to end a seven-game losing streak in one of four CFL games scheduled during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

In other games, Montreal Alouettes visit Saskatchewan Roughriders on Sunday. On Monday, Ottawa Rough Riders take on Hamilton Tiger Cats in the steel city and British Columbia Lions visit Edmonton Eskimos.

Coaches Bud Riley of the Argos and Jack Gotta of the Stampeders both view their game as extremely important. A win for Riley would move his team out of the Eastern Conference cellar, unless Hamilton upsets Ottawa, while two points for the Stampeders would leave them with only a small worry about the third playoff spot in their conference.

All four games are being televised nationally with the Toronto-Calgary game on CTV (Channel 8) at 7 p.m. PDT; Montreal-Saskatchewan on CBC (Channels 2 and 6) at 12:30 p.m. PDT; Ottawa-Hamilton on CBC (Channels 2 and 6) at 11 a.m. PDT and B.C.-Edmonton on CTV (Channel 8) at 1:30 p.m. PDT.

The other games are equally as important for the teams involved. Saskatchewan Roughriders could be eliminated by losing while Montreal Alouttes could just anout sew up second place with a victory. A win for the Ottawa club could clinch the Eastern Conference championship, and no team needs two points worse than the Lions, losers of their last six and holding only a slim mathematical chance for a playoff spot.

The Stampeders, the last-place club in 1977, have been the surprise of the West. They're a .500 club after 11 games and lead the fourth-place Lions by three points with a game in hand.

The Calgary club has had an overall improvement, but the big gain has been on offence, the Stampeders already having scored more points than they did last season.

The only team with a realistic chance of catching Calgary for the last playoff spot are the Lions, though coach Vic Rapp calls it a remote possibility.

"We're going to play now to establish some personal pride and try to re-establish ourselves as a football team," said Rapp.

"We can't worry about what Winnipeg does or what Calgary does," Rapp said. "Whatever happens, happens."

No longer a giant -Big M seeking job

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Mahovlich, who couldn't be bought for $1 million 16 years ago, today is looking for a hockey job.

The 40-year-old leftwinger, a former star with Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League, has completed a four-year contract with Birmingham Bulls of the World Hockey Association.

The Big M decided not to go back to Birmingham but he's having trouble finding attractive offers from any other teams.

"I told them I wasn't very anxious to go back and they said to go ahead and see what I could line up and give them a call later if it didn't work out," Mahovlich said of his departure from the Bulls.

Mahovlich's NHL rights are still owned by Montreal and the possible compensation that would be owed the Canadiens has already scared off one NHL club that was prepared to offer him a contract.

"That one deal was all set," said Mahovlich. "I was excited. Then it fell through. I called another club and was very disappointed in the reaction. Now I guess I'll have to wait until everybody gets their rosters settled."

Sixteen years ago, Chicago Black Hawks offered $1 million for Mahovlich but the Leafs eventually decided to turn it down. Now, Mahovlich faces the possiblity that his hockey career may be over.

"You prepare yourself for the day when you won't play any more but it's still a decision you try to avoid when the time comes," said Mahovlich, who scored 619 goals in 22 pro seasons.

While he waits for an opening in hockey, the Timmins, Ont., native keeps busy in his Toronto travel agency office. But that does little to keep his mind off hockey.

"I don't want to quit," says Mahovlich, "but I guess I may be forced into it. That's a possibility I've got to consider. I hate it, but it may turn out that way."

Derek decides to quit

BOSTON (AP) — Derek Sanderson, once the bad-boy centre of Boston Bruins, announced his retirement from hockey on Thursday, the Bruins said.

Sanderson, who has been plagued by a recurring back injury, was a walk-on at the Bruins training camp this fall. He did not play in any pre-season games.

The 32-year-old centre broke in with the Bruins in 1967-68 and won the Calder Trophy as the top NHL rookie of the season.

He quickly gained a bad-boy image, as much for his views and off-ice actions as for racking up more than 100 penalty minutes in each of his next four seasons with the club.

Sanderson also played with Philadelphia of the World Hockey Association, Boston Braves of the American Hockey League, Kansas City of the Central Hockey League, and St. Louis, Vancouver and New York of the NHL.

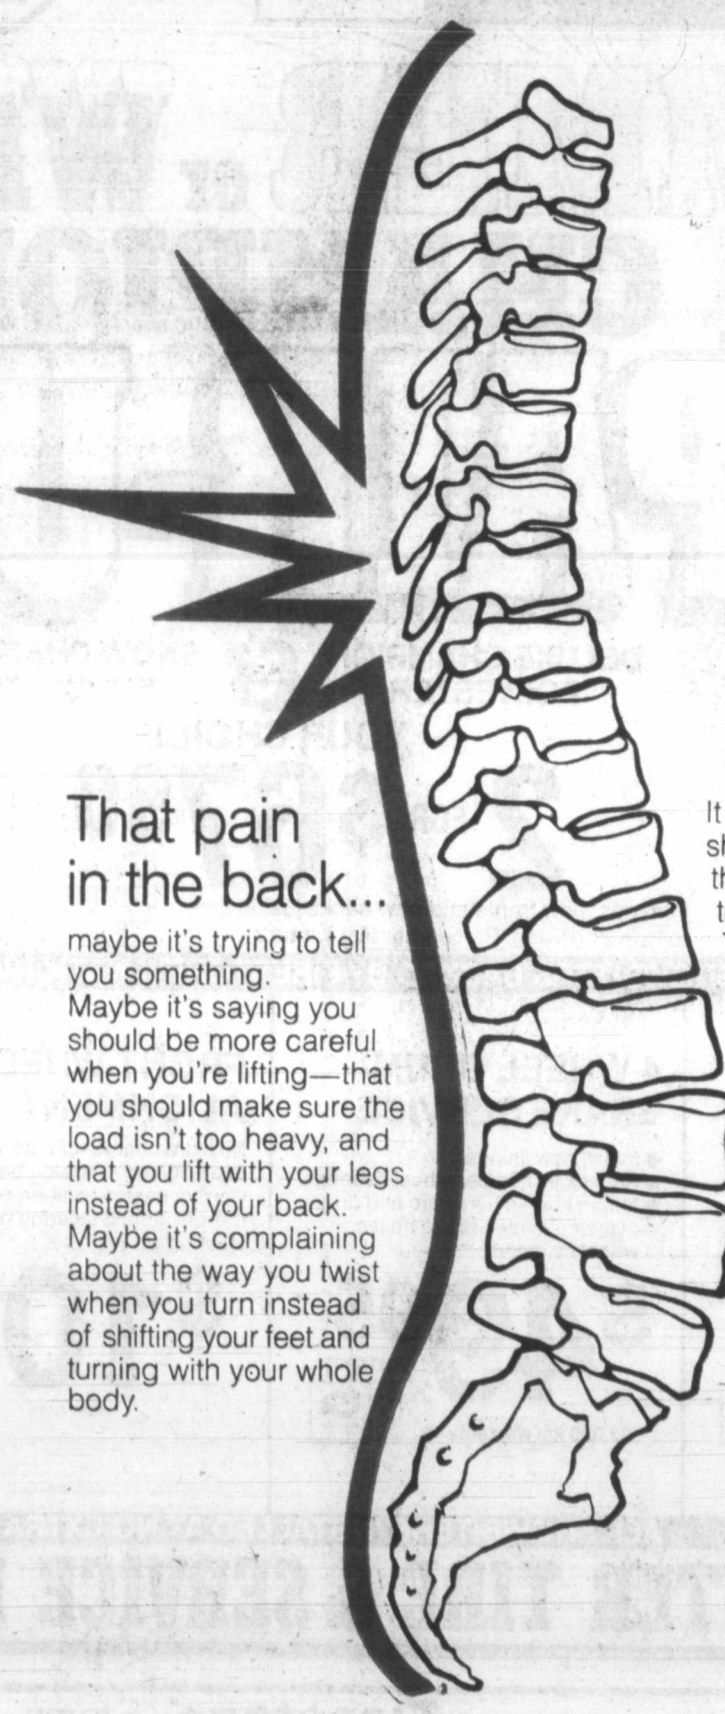
That pain in the back...

maybe it's trying to tell you something.
Maybe it's saying you should be more careful when you're lifting—that you should make sure the load isn't too heavy, and that you lift with your legs instead of your back.
Maybe it's complaining about the way you twist when you turn instead of shifting your feet and turning with your whole body.



It might even be saying that you should take a little time now and then to do some simple exercises to strengthen your back.
Think about it. And do something about it. For a start, how about getting a copy of the free booklet "BACK TALK". Available at your local Workers' Compensation Board office or mail this coupon.

Nuclear sub plotters: Just a ship of fools?

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The three accused men were down on their luck. Only one had any naval experience.

But federal authorities accuse them of conspiring to steal a nuclear submarine from a New London, Conn., naval yard and sell it in a bizarre plot that could have come from a James Bond script.

The navy said the plot was destined to fail because of the intricate knowledge needed to sail the submarine. But one of the suspects had served in the navy and attended submarine school, and authorities say the three claimed they could hire a 12-man crew with enough knowledge to pull off the piracy.

The cast of characters included Edward Mendenhall, 24, of Rochester, N.Y., Kurtis J. Schmidt, 22, of Kansas City, Kan., and James Cosgrove, 26, of Geneva, N.Y., the only former navy man in the group.

Mendenhall, a former insurance company worker recently out of a job, and Schmidt, who worked sporadically as a carpet cleaner, were arrested Wednesday night by the FBI in a downtown St. Louis hotel.

Agents also picked up Cosgrove in his New York home late Wednesday night. Cosgrove, now unemployed, once worked as a nursing assistant at a psychiatric hospital.

Other cast members were an undercover agent who said he infiltrated the conspiracy and various navy spokesmen who snickered at the idea that a 12-man pirate band could commandeer the USS Trepang—with a crew of 100 experienced navy men—and sail it into the Atlantic Ocean.

Cosgrove
. . . only experience

"We're quite satisfied with security at New London and aboard our vessels," said Rear Adm. David Cooney in Washington.

Government charges filed Thursday against the three suspects begin the story on July 26, when an unidentified tipster called the FBI in Rochester to say he had been approached by Mendenhall to join the scheme.

The government said the plot unfolded this way:

An FBI agent in Rochester, Bruce Mouw, went undercover and met with the three suspects Sept. 15 in St. Louis. The apparent reason the meeting took place in the heart of the Midwest was that Mendenhall had been staying with a relative in the area and Schmidt once lived in St. Louis.

Mouw was told the plan called for training a 12-man crew that would board a tender, a support ship next to the Trepang, in New London harbor, then use plastic explosives to sink the tender.

The conspirators felt the confusion would have enabled them to board the Trepang, kill the crew and move out of the harbor.

As a diversion to cover their escape, the conspirators considered firing a missile from the submarine at New London "or one of several principal East Coast cities," the FBI said.

Roy Klager, special agent in charge of the St. Louis office of the FBI, said the suspects planned to sail the sub into the Atlantic Ocean, where it would be turned over to a purchaser.

Klager said the FBI knew nothing about the identity or nationality of the would-be purchaser or even whether the plotters had a definite buyer in mind.

He said his agents got the go-ahead to make the arrests when the attorney general's office decided the plot had gone far enough to constitute a conspiracy to steal.

Klager said none of the three suspects had any special training to operate a submarine and carry out the plan.

"They claim they had the talents available and were in a position to recruit enough persons with talents," he said.

The Trepang is not one of the navy's intercontinental ballistic missile carriers. Its mission is to attack enemy ships and submarines. It does, however, carry an anti-submarine missile with a nuclear warhead.

The weapon, called a SUBROC, is fired from torpedo tubes. It angles out of the water, then drops near an enemy submarine. The weapon is not designed to be used against land targets and has a range of about 30 miles.

Government complaints served on Mendenhall and Schmidt said they "did unlawfully conspire and agree to steal and purloin a thing of value of to the United States, to wit: the USS Trepang, a United States Navy nuclear submarine..." The complaints added "the value of said property exceeded the sum of $100."

Mendenhall and Schmidt, dressed in brown suits with open-collar shirts, appeared separately Thursday before magistrate David Noce for a bond hearing. Noce set their bail at $100,000 each and said he would appoint attorneys for them after both men said they could not afford to hire lawyers.

BILINGUALISM 'PRIORITY' DESPITE SLASH

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has tried to rescue Bryce MacKasey, Liberal candidate in an Ottawa-Centre byelection, from voters angry with cuts in federal bilingual programs.

Robert Andras, treasury board president, issued a statement Thursday saying bilingualism was still a government priority despite the program cuts announced in August.

Antagonism towards the government for making the cuts has been expressed by French-speaking public servants living in the riding during meetings with MacKasey and other candidates.

The voters have gone to bat for the 800 language teachers who will eventually lose their jobs and are unhappy with the government's broken promise to provide $800 annual bonuses to bilingual employees.

Andras noted the bilingual bonus program, which cost $34 million annually, was intended to be only temporary. It was to last until 1983 but the government will end it April 1, 1979.

The language schools were also to be gradually eliminated by 1983 but the government decided in August to accelerate their demise. The $18 million budget for the program is to be slashed by $12.3 million this fiscal year.

Max Yalden, official language commissioner, says the government is foolish to disband its language schools. Public schools are not producing enough bilingual graduates to fill the government's requirements, Yalden says. Andras disagrees.

French-speaking voters in Ottawa-Centre agree with Yalden and have expressed their fears to MacKasey that their work during the last 10 years to create a bilingual public service will go down the drain.

French trials in 1979

OTTAWA (CP) — Four provinces are expected to adopt federal legislation next spring giving their residents the right to criminal trials in either French or English, justice department officials said Thursday.

The four, which have tentatively agreed to adopt the federal legislation passed in June, are Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Alberta, the officials said.

Adoption of the legislation by the three largely English-speaking provinces would mean more than 70 per cent of French-Canadians outside Quebec would be able to receive trials in their mother tongue. English-Quebecers have traditionally been able to be tried in English.

Colleges' financing to change

KELOWNA(CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer said Wednesday that funding of post-secondary institutions will change and relieve property owners of the burden of financing them.

The new financial formula will see funds allocated to colleges through academic and occupational training councils, he said. The councils will be established following proclamation of the Colleges and Provincial Institutes Act, expected within a week.

McGeer said he hoped colleges will be operating under the act in 1979.

Money will come from government general revenue, the councils' student fees and any public bequests, he said, not the education ministry. Under the act, colleges will be designated independent corporations and will hold title to lands and physical facilities.

Morningside loses boss, cancels show

TORONTO (CP) — Morningside, the CBC's national morning radio show, was off the air Thursday because of the apparent death of Krista Maeots, the program's 33-year-old creator and executive producer.

Chief Wilfred Derbyshire of the Niagara Parks police said that late on Tuesday night two English tourists saw Miss Maeots climb over a retaining wall and jump into the Niagara River. The tourists said she was swept over the Horseshoe Falls.

Callaghan resisting labor view

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuter)—With such friends, British Prime Minister James Callaghan may have reflected this week, who needs enemies?

Although a general election is on the horizon, his Labor party's annual conference humiliatingly rejected Callaghan's plan for a fourth year of pay restraint, specifically his intention to hold wage raises in the next 10 months to five per cent.

But Callaghan and his finance minister, Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, promptly gave notice that the policy would stay, although they offered to talk it over with the trade unions, who agreed.

As the prime minister largely credits pay restraint with fighting Britain's inflation rate to the present eight per cent from almost 30 per cent in 1975, it is a cornerstone of his economic policy.

With 57,000 Ford car workers already striking against the five-per-cent policy and others threatening to follow suit, Britons have a vision of a long, cold winter of confrontation and industrial unrest.

Thoughts reverted to Conservative Prime Minister Edward Heath's battle with the coal miners on just such a pay issue five years ago, which put power-starved industry onto a three-day working week and finally brought Heath down.

As Callaghan has long lacked an over-all parliamentary majority and is depending on secondary parties for survival, such commentators ask whether he can survive such an internal challenge to his authority.

A snap election this autumn cannot be ruled out, political experts say, if Callaghan runs into difficulties he cannot cope with.

Where the Labor party and its conferences are concerned, however, things are not always as they seem.

For example, the conference, which is dominated by left-leaning local parties, voted overwhelmingly to end the British nuclear missile deterrent—almost a ritual. Nobody expects government ministers to rush back to London and give necessary instructions.

The conference is an annual display of the party's socialist conscience, but the party has relatively few members and strategists know that it is Sunny Jim's centrist appeal to the electorate that matters on general election day.

This might even be enhanced by successful talks with the trade unions, the traditional bogeys of Conservatives.

The unions now want early talks to "unlock the impasse in which we find ourselves," according to Trades Union Congress chairman David Basnett.

We were near bomb—Bhutto

LONDON (Reuter) — Former Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, in prison awaiting the outcome of his appeal against a death sentence, says Pakistan was on the verge of full nuclear capacity before his overthrow last year, The Financial Times reports.

The claim comes in a 319-page document smuggled from prison through his defence lawyer. The paper was provided with a copy.

In it, Bhutto says he was seeking the capability to explode a nuclear device through the purchase of a French reprocessing plant.

The document, chiefly a defence of charges that he rigged the 1977 national election and arranged for a political opponent's death, says: "We were on the threshold of full nuclear capability when I left the government to come to this death cell. We know that Israel and South Africa have full nuclear capability. The Christian, Jewish and Hindu civilizations have this capability. The communist powers also possess it.

"Only the Islamic civilization was without it but that position was about to change."

Bhutto implies he could have secured the reprocessing plant from France, in spite of U.S. opposition, because of France's confidence in him.

Negev Desert

Israel plans settlements

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel plans to build 20 new settlements in the northwestern Negev Desert in a line parallel to the border with Egypt, says Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon.

Sharon told a group of settlers from Moshav Sadot in the Israeli-occupied Rafah salient south of the Gaza Strip that Israel would build the new settlements over the next three years.

He said they would be used to resettle residents of the 18 Israeli settlements in the Sinai Peninsula.

Israel agreed to vacate the Sinai settlements over the next three years as a condition for signing a peace treaty with Egypt.

Arrangements for the treaty and Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai came during the two-week summit meeting at Camp David, Md., among U.S. President Carter, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egypian President Anwar Sadat.

The new settlements, a television report said, were to be built on a line along the border between Rafah and Nizzana, a point about 56 kilometres to the south.

In another development involving settlements, about 30 Jewish demonstrators Wednesday briefly occupied the site of an ancient synagogue near Hebron in the Israeli occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The demonstrators, from the settlement of Kiryat Arba, encamped on the site of the Abraham Avinu Synagogue to back their demand that the government restore the ancient ruins.

Security forces were dispatched to remove the demonstrators, but after hearing of defence ministry plans to restore the ruins, the demonstrators decided to leave.

Squatter camp planned

PRETORIA (AP)—The South African government is preparing a resettlement camp for black squatters on land to be incorporated into the independent black homeland of Transkei.

The camp, believed primarily for residents of the controversial Crossroads squatter settlement outside Cape Town, has drawn fire from Chief Kaiser Matanzima, leader of Transkei, and from the liberal Rand Daily Mail.

"We cannot imagine South Africa creating a slum, another Crossroads, in our area," Matanzima said.

The Mail said in an editorial Tuesday: "The idea appears to be to build the township on what will still be ground under South African jurisdiction, then hand over the whole area—squatter township and all—to the Transkei."

Provincial COURT

A 24-year-old described by Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court Thursday as "a sick young man" who needs treatment and closer supervision was given a suspended sentence for auto theft, impaired driving and driving under suspension.

Stephen John Rawlings entered guilty pleas to all three charges last Thursday and court was told Rawlings took a vehicle from Painter Motors, 1513 Quadra, the evening of Sept. 27 on the pretext of test driving it.

The vehicle was reported stolen three hours later and Rawlings was spotted about 1 a.m. driving out of his apartment lot by Victoria city police.

Rawlings was apprehended and taken to Victoria city police headquarters where two readings of .28 were obtained by breath tests.

Rawlings's criminal history included three previous convictions for impaired driving, two for driving while under suspension and one conviction each for possession of stolen property, criminal negligence and robbery with violence.

Defence lawyer Brian MacKenzie told the court Rawlings took the car and drove to Beacon Hill Park, where he passed out. MacKenzie said his client was in the process of returning the vehicle to the used car lot when arrested by police.

MacKenzie said Rawlings had psychiatric and alcoholic problems and asked for a term of probation so that he could attend at Eric Martin Institute and the Salvation Army's Miracle Valley program for alcoholism.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan supported MacKenzie's position, adding that Rawlings's rehabilitation was the most important concern in this case.

Ostler said he also agreed that the suggestion was in the best interests of both the accused person and the public.

"If this sort of thing goes on," Ostler said to Rawlings, "someone is going to get killed.

"You have a long, serious record."

Ostler placed Rawlings on two years' probation, ordered him to attend any EMI and Miracle Valley programs as directed by his probation officer, make an effort to join Alcoholics Anonymous, and to abstain absolutely from the use of alcohol during his probation period.

Ostler denied bail to two of three Montreal youths jointly charged with possession of housebreaking instruments.

Robert Bourdon, 19, Steves Paradis, 19, and Alen Thomas, 20, were charged after Victoria city police apprehended three persons about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday morning in the 2500-block Blanshard.

The instruments alleged include a hammer, tin snips, crowbar, hatchet and screwdriver.

Following a bail hearing, Ostler ordered the detention in custody of Bourdon and Thomas. He released Paradis on his own recognizance in the sum of $1,500 and on conditions he obey a 9 p.m. nightly curfew and surrender the licence plates of his van.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Tuesday.

The preliminary hearing into a charge of breaking and entering against a 20-year-old Winnipeg man got under way Thursday and was adjourned to continue today.

Frederick Leroy Hodel is charged with an Aug. 30 break-in at a Human Resources Ministry district office at 1820 Blanshard in which an alleged $70,000 in welfare cheques was taken.

Defence lawyer James Main elected trial by judge without jury on behalf of Hodel, who was denied bail Sept. 8.

Fined for drinking-driving were: John Conway McGowan, 27, of no fixed address, $750; and Roy Alfred Byers, 52, of Ganges, $50.

In addition, Byers was placed on six months probation and ordered to perform 60 hours of community service work.

Bizarre drama: 2 shot

HOUSTON (UPI) — A motorist trailed his wife through rush hour traffic Thursday, crashed his car into her car, shot her to death as she pulled a gun and sought refuge in another car, and then shot himself.

Police said Sabrina Kim Jackson, 22, died at the scene after firing one shot from her .25-calibre automatic through the roof of a car driven by Mike Emerson, 24, an auditor on his way to work.

Mrs. Jackson's husband, Cornelius Lewis Jackson, also 22, turned a .38-calibre pistol to his head and fired moments later. He was in critical condition at Ben Taub Hospital.

Emerson said he was driving to work when he slowed his car because of an apparent accident in front of him.

"I saw there was an accident," Emerson said. "This girl got out of her car and started screaming. She was hysterical."

Emerson said the woman jumped from her car and ran to his car, jerked the door open on the driver's side and tumbled into the back seat.

"He's got a gun. He's going to kill me," Emerson quoted the woman as saying.

After the woman forced her way into the car, she began to scream, "Go, go, he's going to kill me," Emerson said.

Emerson said he could not move because of the traffic stalled on Memorial Drive near police headquarters.

Emerson said the man then came from another car that had stopped in front of the woman's car and, without saying a word, opened Emerson's door, reached over Emerson and began shooting the woman.

"He had me pinned against the seat. There was nothing I could do," Emerson said.

Emerson was not injured.

Police homicide Detective J.D. Clampitt said the automatic pistol belonged to the woman. The larger calibre revolver was found near the husband's body.

Emerson told police he saw a collision between the two cars but did not know if it was intentional.

Drapeau Games 'inexperienced'

MONTREAL (CP) — The former chairman of a Quebec government watchdog committee set up to oversee Olympic costs says Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau showed a lack of experience as the project director for Games construction.

Fernand Lalonde told a provincial inquiry into the $1.27-billion cost of the 1976 Games Thursday that the mayor made repeated unfulfilled promises of when a detailed Olympic budget would be available.

"He promised that we would have it in a month, then he said two weeks," said Lalonde, who later became solicitor-general in the government of former Quebec premier Robert Bourassa.

"This was a sign of his lack of experience as a project director because he didn't know how long it takes to produce a budget like this.

"Drapeau told us himself that he was the director of the project," said Lalonde, who now is a Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly for the west-end Montreal riding of Marguerite-Bourgeoys.

"We felt that it was inconceivable that the mayor should hold both the posts of mayor and director of the Olympic project."

Drapeau told the inquiry Wednesday that he could not remember whether a detailed budget for construction of Games sports facilities had been drawn up before November, 1974.

Lalonde, who also testified briefly last week, spoke calmly and often referred to the minutes of the five-member watchdog committee's frequent meetings which began in April, 1973.

His testimony echoed that of engineer Denis Lahaie, an engineer who worked with the watchdog committee, who said last week that Drapeau did not have the experience necessary to direct Games construction.

"He did not have the knowledge of management that was required to direct a construction site like the Olympic Park," Lahaie said.

Papers stay secret or we'll fight—Blais

OTTAWA (CP) — Strong objections will be raised if a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing tries to make public "confidential government papers" or any testimony relating to them, Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais warned Thursday.

The warning was given by Joseph Nuss, who represents Blais and former solicitors-general before the inquiry. Nuss defined "confidential government papers" broadly as any documents relating to cabinet or cabinet committee proceedings.

He said the government had no objection to the royal commission dealing with such documents, and testimony related to them, behind closed doors. But any attempt to make them public would meet with strong objections.

Nuss proposed that, to avoid constant objections, the commission divide testimony so that anything dealing with "confidential government papers" be heard in camera.

This testimony could perhaps be edited and made public later.

Nuss noted that the inquiry had already been given a "vast quantity" of such papers under a Nov. 6, 1977, agreement in which the government reserved the right to object if it did not want them made public.

He said that "the taking of possession in a legal manner has not yet taken place" and the government expected such papers to be dealt with behind closed doors.

The inquiry is scheduled to begin Oct. 24, hearing cabinet ministers, senior RCMP officers and high government officials on their knowledge of and responsibility for questionable RCMP activities.

The witnesses will include former solicitors-general Jean-Pierre Goyer, Warren Allmand and Francis Fox, former RCMP commissioners W. L. Higgitt and Maurice Nadon.

Attempt preceded by clear and loud distress signals

Teen-age suicide growing problem

-CP

Author Rabkin conducted interviews

WINNIPEG (CP) — Suicide among teenagers is a growing problem, says Winnipeg author Brenda Rabkin, who interviewed 47 youths who tried to take their own lives.

But she said an adolescent's suicide attempt—often a severe shock to parents and other relatives—almost always is preceded by clear and loud distress signals.

"Eighty per cent of all suicides have given clues," said Ms. Rabkin. "What is even more startling is that for every successful suicide, there are at least 50 to 100 who attempt and fail.

"I guess everyone asks themselves why," said Ms. Rabkin, who produced an ACTRA award-winning documentary on the topic for CBC radio. The strong response encouraged her to develop the material into a book, Growing Up Dead.

Ms. Rabkin said a suicide bid often is a desperate cry for help. The teenager may have dropped a number of clues, which have been ignored by parents, peers or teachers.

"There's a fine line between adolescent acting out and suicidal behavior. If a kid says to his parents, 'You'd be better off without me', that sort of talk should not be seen as manipulative behavior. That kid is saying something."

Ms. Rabkin said the youngsters with whom she talked about their suicide attempts had a variety of problems, from drinking and drugs to incestual abuse and the notion of being unloved. A common thread was a feeling of hopelessness.

"They feel life is without hope. They have problems, and they view suicide as the only alternative."

One of the 10 case histories outlined in her book tells of a girl who powdered her face white and acted as though she were dead for a week. When no one asked the girl what was wrong, she swallowed a bottle of sleeping pills.

Another example given is that of the youth who "handed in death-wish poetry to his teacher, and it was handed back with grades," Ms. Rabkin said in an interview. "That's something a teacher should pick up on."

Ms. Rabkin said adolescence is a time when young persons try to assert themselves as adults-to-be. The youth who is not taken seriously can suffer severe damage to self-esteem.

Youth considering suicide may be hard to spot, because so-called weird behavior is almost expected of teen-agers. Parents often say youngsters are only going through a phase.

"It's really a vicious circle, too," said Ms. Rabkin. "Peer pressure is strong at that age. Kids say to themselves, 'If I'm thinking of killing myself I must be crazy.' So he keeps it to himself so others won't know."

Ms. Rabkin said most teen-agers don't realize the finality of death and don't want to die. They may only want to have some peace, or to manipulate their environment.

Suicide among youths is only part of a larger problem, said the Winnipeg writer.

"Kids today have less resources, even though they have more options. Fifty years ago teenagers knew what they were going to do, whether following in a father's footsteps, take over the family business, or even being a mother and homemaker.

"Today they don't have that framework to follow. Communications are breaking down in the family, and even the family is breaking down. Schools get bigger, and the student-teacher ratio gets larger. Without adults to talk to, kids today are wandering aimlessly."

Ms. Rabkin said there are many ways to dissuade a youth from suicide. The youngster may only want to talk with someone who can reassure him he is a worthwhile person.

"Often parents are so troubled they don't have the capacity to give," said Ms. Rabkin, who is quick to add that most parents are concerned and care for their children. "I don't want to say the problem is parental neglect."

Ms. Rabkin's advice to fathers and mothers is to "keep the lines of communication open." If family relationships have completely broken down, "then it's helpful to bring in an objective person, such as a teacher, doctor or minister."

Nutrient-enriched grain springboard to good health

WINNIPEG (CP) — A milling industry expert says nutrient-enriched grain products could become the basis for the most effective health programs ever devised.

Peter M. Ranum of the Chicago-based Penwalt Corp. said in a recent interview during the International Cereal and Bread Congress that fortification of grain products could be an important way of combating nutrient deficiencies.

"Cereal as a carrier for deficient nutrients can supply any nutrients at whatever level necessary to overcome a nutritional deficit," he said.

Ranum said the development of synthetic vitamins has brought the cost of fortifying 100 pounds of flour from 14 cents to two cents in only three years.

Blended family helped by child of both parents

VANCOVER (CP) — A new child in a second marriage where there are already children and who is neither his nor hers but theirs can often prove the cementing factor that unites the group into a real family, says Joan Akers, counsellor for North Shore Family Services in Vancouver.

This is one of many things Ms. Akers discovered when she and a colleague investigated the blended family and found that little has been written about integrating two families into one.

As a pilot project last May they persuaded four couples to join them in group discussions to learn what the main problems and pitfalls were, how universal they were and whether consultants could help.

"We're not primarily looking for families that have reached some kind of crisis situation," said Ms. Akers. "Rather we want to help both children and parents adjust to the new situation. We want to let them know that the problems they face are almost universal for blended families, that they are not failures when they don't adjust instantaneously to the new relationship."

Linda Carkner, social worker in charge of group programs for the agency, said money can prove one big stumbling block.

Frequently one parent, usually the father, does not have custody of his or her own children but must pay child support.

This can be a burden on the new family, perhaps necessitating the wife continuing to hold a job.

He might also have hidden guilt feelings because he can no longer parent his own children while he takes on the father role for his new family.

Another factor with which new parents frequently have to cope is jealousy of children, said Ms. Carkner.

In many instances it has been a one-parent family for a period, and parent and child have grown close.

"This points up the need for including the child (or children) in the planning for a new family situation, so they are willing and happy to accept the new parent," she said.

Even so, there will be moments when jealousy will flare, but this happens even in families with two natural parents, she said.

"The step-parent is not a failure because a child lashes out in anger once in a while—this is one of the things we make plain."

The step-parent, particularly the stepmother, is fighting to live down the stereotyped wicked stepmother image of fairy tales, whether she realizes it or not, Ms. Carkner said.

Parents informed

NEW YORK (AP) — More than one-half the U.S. teenage girls using contraceptives supplied by birth control clincis say their parents are aware of it, a study shows.

The report, made public this week by the New York-based Alan Guttmacher Institute, also says that only 11 per cent of the 1,442 young women surveyed in 10 states said they would stop having sex if it was required that their parents be notified they sought contraceptives.

The study was based on answers to a written questionnaire offered last spring to teenagers 17 years old and under at 53 family planning clinics from New York to California.

Cancer risk found in DES

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated four million to six million mothers in the United States and their offspring may face risks of cancer or other abnormalities from exposure to the synthetic estrogen DES during pregnancy, Health Secretary Joseph Califano said this week.

Califano asked the 400,000 U.S. physicians to search their medical records and notify the estimated two million women who once were routinely given DES to prevent miscarriages.

He said it was widely prescribed during pregnancy "chiefly between 1945 and 1955 but, in a number of cases, as recently as 1970."

Women seek power network

NEW YORK (AP) — Career women gathered recently to discuss setting up an old-girl network—their version of the old boy network of business and social contacts that has helped men get ahead for years.

About 400 women attended independent all-day conferences and workshops at the graduate schools of business at Columbia University and New York University to find out how to get and use power by establishing such a network.

"We're just a little bit newer at this game than men," explained Beth Herz, a student at Columbia. "More women now have decided to go into business and they're just beginning to understand that knowing people in their own and other fields, forming contacts, is what it's all about."

Patricia Neighbors, a vice president of Avon Products, advised the women not to be frightened of power. Everyone fears power, she said, and the key is learning how to understand and use it.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a man in my late 60s. My problem is sleeplessness. I can get to sleep, but awaken about 3 or 4 a.m. and can't get back to sleep. I am using sleeping pills, but they only make me drowsy the next day. I try drinking wine, but it doesn't work. Please discuss insomnia. —J.J.

There's a whole grab bag of causes of sleeplessness. Your letter offers a few hints.

First, your age. Sleep needs tend to lessen with years. A man your age might expect to awaken at 3 a.m. or 4 a.m. if you retire at 9 p.m. after an inactive day.

I assume the pills are barbiturates. These come in many varieties and strengths. They are useful in certain situations, but can easily be overused or abused.

There are two basic kinds of insomniacs. Some can get to sleep, but awaken later. Others cannot fall asleep to begin with. The pills can be tailored to individual needs. Shorter-acting ones may help those who cannot fall asleep to begin with. Longer-acting ones may help those, like yourself, who awaken in the early morning hours. The latter often cause daytime drowsiness.

Wine alone can be sleep inducing. It should not be used with barbiturates, which in conjunction with alcohol can dangerously multiply depressive effects and add to daytime drowsiness.

You don't mention your mental state. Depression and anxiety can cause insomnia, and sleeping pills can worsen this situation. If this shoe fits, put it on. Try to resolve any personal problems in the daytime. You can't settle much in the pre-dawn hours.

Nor do you mention when you last had a good physical examination. A distended bladder from prostrate enlargement, leg cramps, even nervous bowel can cause early awakening and sleeplessness.

Your pills aren't helping and they can be addictive, so little would be lost in weaning yourself from them. Avoid smoking or drinking excessive liquids at bedtime. A protein snack (cheese, meat, etc.) can ward off a late night blood sugar drop that causes awakening. Have a radio or some reading material on hand. You may be surprised how having something "to do" can help, as opposed to lying in restless silence. Make your room comfortable — not too hot, not too cold.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you send me any written material on chronic black stool? —H.C.

You don't need written material. You do need an examination promptly. This is a sign of internal bleeding. Most chronic rectal bleeding is due to diverticulosis.

Hearty main-dish salad can be dilly

By MARJORIE RICE
Colonist-Copley News Service

Salad, contrary to what some restaurants may have you believe, is more than a dish of chopped iceberg lettuce with a cherry tomato or two and a glob of sticky blue cheese dressing.

As practiced at some of the better salad bars, salad can be an entire meal, replete with tiny shrimp, kidney beans or garbanzos, raw broccoli and cauliflower, grated cheese, croutons and other embellishments.

With the addition of a whole-grain bread, a main-dish salad is an excellent blend of nutrients, encompassing all the four food groups. Combine slices of beef or ham, chunks or slices of cheese (or a dairy-based dressing), fruit (or tomatoes) and vegetables (particularly dark green spinach, or bright orange carrots), and you have a delicious and nutrient-packed dinner.

Practically anything goes on a main-dish salad. Cooked shellfish is an excellent, if somewhat expensive, choice. But you can stretch the seafood by chopping it into a creamy dressing.

Leftover cooked beef, chicken or ham (even luncheon meat) goes well in a main-dish salad.

Marinate leftover vegetables in the vinaigrette and toss them into a salad. Peas and green beans are particularly good, as are tender-crisp broccoli, cauliflower and carrots.

Beans such as kidney beans and garbanzoes, are excellent additions, packing in a lot of protein and satisfying hearty appetites.

BEEFEATER'S SALAD
1 qt. torn lettuce leaves
¾ lb. roast beef strips (about 2 cups)
3 small boiled potatoes, sliced
¼ lb. mushrooms, thinly sliced
½ cup sliced celery
6 red or green pepper rings
Beefeater Dressing (see below)
6 dill pickle fans

Put lettuce in large, shallow salad bowl. Arrange roast beef, potatoes, mushrooms, celery and pepper rings on top of greens. Before serving, toss with Beefeater Dressing. Serve in individual salad bowls and add a dill pickle fan. Serves six.

Beefeater Dressing: Combine and mix well two-thirds cup salad oil, ½ cup sliced dill pickles, ¼ cup dill pickle liquid, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1¼ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon thyme and a few grains pepper.

HUSSAR SALAD
3 cups diced cooked potatoes
2 cups diced roast beef
1 cup diced apples
Two-thirds cup chopped dill pickles
Hussar dressing (see below)
1 cup diced cooked beets
Lettuce leaves

Gently mix together potatoes, roast beef, apples and pickles. Toss with Husaar Dressing. Cover and refrigerate several hours.

Before serving, mix in beets. Line a platter with lettuce leaves. Arrange salad on top of lettuce. Garnish with apple wedges and pickle fans as desired. Serves six.

HUSSAR DRESSING
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tbsp. salad oil
1 tbsp. dill pickle liquid
1 tbsp. minced onion
1 tsp salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

Thoroughly mix together all ingredients.

ITALIAN FISHERMAN'S SALAD
1 lb. vermicelli or other thin spaghetti
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 cups thinly sliced celery 10 to 12 green onions (including green tops), thinly sliced
3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 jar (2 ozs.) sliced or chopped pimientos
1 qt. ranch-type creamy Italian dressing (recipe follows)
1 to 1½ lbs. cooked shrimp, or crab, or combination
¾ cup slivered almonds, toasted and coarsely chopped
2 to 3 tbsps. slivered almonds, toasted

Break vermicelli into bite-size pieces, about 1-inch or smaller; cook in boiling salted water according to package directions until barely tender. Drain, and while still warm, toss with green pepper, celery, onions, eggs, pimientos and dressing.

Chill at least 24 hours, preferably two or three days.

At serving time, mix in shrimp, crab and chopped almonds. Spoon into large bowl lined with romaine or other lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with toasted slivered almonds. Makes 12 to 16 servings, depending on menu.

Ranch-Type Creamy Italian Dressing: With a wire whisk or a fork, mix two packages (0.5 ounces each) ranch-type creamy Italian dressing with two cups buttermilk and two cups mayonnaise. Blend well before adding to salad. For best flavor, prepare a day ahead.

PERINO'S CHICKEN LORENZO SALAD
1 breast of cooked chicken
½ head iceberg lettuce
¼ tomato
¼ hard cooked egg, chopped
2 fillets of anchovy

LORENZO DRESSING
⅛ tsp. salt
Dash fresh ground pepper
1 tbsp. red wine vinegar
3 tbsps. olive oil
1 tbsp. ketchup
2 tbsps. chopped watercress leaves

Cook chicken breast in simmering water with pieces of carrot, onion, celery and parsley and no salt until tender. Cool in broth.

In a 1-quart bowl, cut breast of chicken into ½-inch pieces, coarsely chop egg and dice fillets of anchovy. Save two whole iceberg lettuce leaves for garnish and cut 1½ cups of lettuce into bite size chunks. Add to rest of ingredients.

In a separate bowl, combine salt, pepper, vinegar, oil and ketchup. Blend together with a fork. Add the watercress on the last beat.

Add a small amount of the dressing at a time to the salad mixture. Toss gently after each addition. When each item has a coating of dressing, stop. Put the reserved leaves of lettuce on a cold salad plate. Put tossed salad in center. Garnish with a sprig of watercress and black olives. Makes one luncheon salad.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT . . .
BY DANIEL RIGOLLET
Stir now and then when chilling any gelating mixture. It keeps the sides from jelling faster than the centre.
If you want to serve spareribs as an appetizer, have the butcher saw the rack in half the long way.
Cut pastry scraps into leaves, ribbons, and flowers, and press onto pie crust (use cold water as glue). Mark veins and petals with the dull side of a knife.
Chicken salad with an Oriental touch is lighter and more delicate. Add bamboo shoots and scallions to shredded chicken; season with soy sauce, vinegar and vegetable oil, salt and pepper to taste. Toss with snow pea pods.
Potatoes were once used as currency in parts of Poland after World War I. Seems the value of the potato was more stable than paper money in the post-war upset.
But you'll find it doesn't cost a bushel to go out for a delicious meal.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from "Feeling Guilty" and my heart went out to him. How sad it must be to lose someone you love and then be ridiculed for being the only one who had the decency to tell that person the truth when they asked to know.

I recently took a home health-aide course which taught me, among other things, how to deal with the terminally ill patient. We were given literature that is sure to offer comfort to people in a similar situation. It was put together by the Southwestern Michigan In-service Education Council and it is called "The Dying Person's Bill of Rights." Will you please print it? — Been There and Back.

Dear B.T.A.B.: Thank you in behalf of the countless people you have helped today. Here it is:

THE DYING PERSON'S BILL OF RIGHTS

I have the right to be treated as a living human being until I die.

I have the right to maintain a sense of hopefulness, however changing its focus may be.

I have the right to be cared for by those who can maintain a sense of hopefulness, however changing this might be.

I have the right to express my feelings and emotions about my approaching death, in my own way.

I have the right to participate in decisions concerning my case.

I have the right to be free from pain.

I have the right to have my questions answered honestly.

I have the right not to be deceived.

I have the right to have help from and for my family in accepting my death.

I have the right to die in peace and dignity.

I have the right to retain my individuality and not to be judged for my decisions, which may be contrary to the beliefs of others.

I have the right to discuss and enlarge my religious and/or spiritual experiences, regardless of what they may mean to others.

I have the right to expect that the sanctity of the human body will be respected after death.

I have the right to be cared for by caring, sensitive, knowledgeable people who will attempt to understand my needs and will be able to gain some satisfaction in helping me face my death.

Light focused on amorous boss

EDMONTON (CP) — Sexual harassment of female workers by their bosses is more common than most people think, says the head of a women's agency.

"It's like wife battering," said Phyllis Ellis of the Alberta Women's Bureau. "It has always been going on but is only now coming out in the open."

Dr. Max Wyman, chairman of the Alberta Human Rights Commission, announced this week he is exploring legal avenues to see whether women can prosecute the workmate who gets too friendly.

Ms. Ellis said a woman who refuses to tolerate harassment might be told there is not enough work available and she will lose her job.

She says women who encounter such harassment should first tell the man she's not interested in his advances and if that fails, tell the human rights commission.

She should get other women in the office to agree to substantiate the allegation if needed.

The second in a series of MB reports:

Would we spend another $450 million in B.C. if we didn't expect to make a profit here? Frankly, no.

What the money is for.

Over a period of five years, MacMillan Bloedel is spending more than $450 million on up-to-the-minute production facilities. So far this year, for example, we've committed more than $130 million for projects in British Columbia. This is a planned, deliberate investment: a matter of decision. It's additional to our continuing expenses for wages, supplies and power—our everyday costs of staying in business.

Spending to stay competitive.

Most of this investment will be used to equip some of the best people in the business (MB people) with the best tools available. (One example: The new $54 million Alberni Pacific Sawmill.) Why? To help them turn out even better products at lower costs. That's essential if we're going to continue meeting world competition.

Profit: An investment in the future.

If you think MacMillan Bloedel is investing this money in B.C. because we hope to earn a fair rate of return on it—you're entirely correct.

Profit is what keeps us here. It's also what is expected of us by our employees, shareholders, bankers and bond holders. Without them, we wouldn't stay in business long. Nor would any other company.

So we intend to keep right on making the best profit we can, consistent with our responsibilities to our people and the communities we work in.

A vote of confidence.

Our company's willingness to make large, long-term investments in this province tells you something important about our hopes for B.C.'s future. We're putting our money where our faith is.

Beirut war now worse than ever

This dispatch was flown out of Beirut to Nicosia because of the communications blackout in the Lebanese capital.

By GEORGE KRIMSKY

BEIRUT (AP)—Syrian-Christian violence has torn apart this capital city, and some veterans of the Lebanese conflict say the fighting now is worse than any seen during the worst of the 1975-76 civil war.

The conflict that has destroyed much of the Christian sector of East Beirut is spilling over into the western entertainment and commercial centre.

PEACEKEEPING FORCE

The Syrians, now the heart of an Arab League peacekeeping force stationed here, intervened in the civil war that pitted leftist Lebanese Moslems and Palestinians against right-wing Christians.

The Syrian move saved the Christians; but they have now proved stubbornly resistant to Syrian attempts to control them.

WATER, POWER OUT

The Christian quarter has been without water and electricity for a week. Tuesday, the big guns constantly hammering the city knocked out most of west Beirut's power and cut all communications with the outside world.

Reports from the Christian sector, cut off by Syrian roadblocks and sniper fire from the Moslems in the west, said bodies were rotting in streets, hospitals and homes.

FAMINE, THIRST THREATEN

Red Cross workers say the threats of famine and death from thirst are becoming more serious by the hour.

The right-wing militia campaign to wrest from the Syrians two strategic bridges into east Beirut and out of the city to the north may be a push for an escape route.

In West Beirut, leftist Lebanese militiamen have thrown up roadblocks in neighborhoods they treat as strongholds.

TWO-THIRDS HAVE FLED

Officials in the eastern sector believe more than two-thirds of the 600,000 Christians here have fled to the mountains or the country. The remainder, mostly poorer residents, have stayed behind to support the militia or to protect their property from looting.

$75,000 damages sought

A youth shot accidentally in the chest 2½ years ago sought a minimum of $75,000 compensation in a B.C. Supreme Court action Thursday before Mr. Justice Samuel Toy.

The court reserved judgment on the suit, alleging negligence in an incident Feb. 24, 1976, when Scott Harold Henderson, then 17, was shot in the back by David John Aldridge at the home of Warren Arthur Lewis, also known as Warren Arthur Aylworth, 5004 Prospect Lake, with a rifle owned by Lewis.

Court was told Henderson was near death as a result of the wounding and underwent major surgery after emergency treatment at Victoria General Hospital. The operations left him with a collapsed right chest after ribs and lung were removed, with resulting disfigurement, pain, suffering, loss of expectations, amenities of life and customary activities.

Counsel J.J. Gow suggested non-pecuniary compensation of $75,000, plus an amount covering two years loss of university enrolment.

Judgment is sought against Lewis and Aldridge with Economical Mutual Insurance Co. as third party, represented by Rodney Taylor. He said compensation of $25,000 would be more in line with a Supreme Court of Canada ruling setting non-pecuniary awards at $100,000 for the most drastic types of loss.

Scientists to test shroud

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Italian and foreign researchers will be allowed to conduct scientific tests on the Holy Shroud when a four-day public viewing of the linen venerated as Jesus Christ's burial cloth ends Sunday.

Church authorities said Thursday that tests will be aimed at finding out how the shape of a dead man became impressed on the shroud.

Religious sources said they are allowing only tests that will not be "detrimental to the preservation of the relic."

The origin of the relic and how the corpse of a crucified, long-haired and bearded man apparently left its imprint on the linen have been a matter of controversy for centuries.

Copter reception cool one

A proposal from Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. to establish a Victoria-Vancouver service that would require $2 million worth of terminal construction was given a cool reception Thursday by members of Victoria city council.

The firm had asked the city to support its application to the provincial government for funds from the Airports Assistance Program.

But the matter was shelved by the intergovernmental relations committee on the advice of Mayor Michael Young who said the proposal shouldn't be considered in isolation.

Young said council should examine the merits of the proposal when it deals with the whole question of air commuter service in the Inner Harbor.

Okanagan Helicopters plans to operate from the city's Esquimalt Road heliport pad to a location in Vancouver which has not yet been determined.

The service would use 28-passenger Sikorsky helicopters.

Man cleared in beer theft assault case

County court Judge Thomas Darling acquitted a young man accused of assault Thursday and told him he was fortunate he was not charged with something else.

Dale William Cook, 20, was tried for assault causing bodily harm for having joined a companion in what Darling called a "contemptible act," stealing a case of beer from a man waiting for a taxi after punching him and breaking his nose.

Darling said it was clear Cook had not taken part in the actual assault, to which 22-year-old Lee Winter pleaded guilty and was fined $500 in May. But crown counsel Peter Birkett argued the accused knew the assault would be a probable consequence of carrying out a common purpose—stealing the beer.

The crown, said Darling, had failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that such a notion existed in the mind of the accused. "I think you are a fortunate young man . . . you are not being tried outside the indictment," Darling said.

The crown said Cook and Winter were in Cook's car on Douglas Street near Yates about 1 a.m. June 26, 1977, when Bernard Lucas was seen with a case of beer at his feet on the sidewalk in front of Woolworth's.

Winter was alleged to have said, "Pull over. I'll get that beer," and when the car pulled up to the curb he jumped out and struck Lucas four or five times in the face. Cook also got out of the car, on the opposite side, but told police:

"I admit to taking the beer but I didn't know anything heavy had happened." He said he didn't know where Winter was because his attention was on the traffic.

Sgt. Terry Toone, of Victoria police, said Lucas was found partly conscious, kneeling on the sidewalk, bleeding from the face with his nose deformed.

The accused men were arrested about an hour later at an all-night restaurant and charged originally with committing robbery with violence.

Defence counsel Cecil Branson asked in cross-examination if Winter knew why he did it. "It was a stupid reaction, I guess. I don't know." No defence evidence was called.

Birkett said it was hard to accept that Cook saw nothing "heavy" as it happened right in front of him, but because the two formed a common intention to get the beer, Cook was party to the offence of assault.

Branson said the two men had come to town from Duncan to see a ball game at which there had been considerable drinking and a subsequent disturbance in which a number of their friends were taken away by police. They apparently had run out of beer by that time of the morning, but were not out to commit a crime.

He said Winter, "very stupidly, very foolishly decides he's going to grab the beer and just as stupidly, just as foolishly, Cook pulls over." It was not implicit that violence was anticipated, Branson said.

Billy Beer bites Texas dust

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Pearl Brewery, which distributed Billy Beer throughout the West, confirmed Thursday it has discontinued brewing the beer that bears the name of President Carter's brother.

However, Frank Spinosa, vice president for sales at the nation's 14th largest brewery, said "no comment" to any questions on who instigated the termination of the product.

Spinosa had predicted in a UPI interview last summer that Billy Beer would not last a year because it was a "fad item" that could not compete with the highly financed advertising campaigns of the major beers.

However, Texans did not find the brew tasty and it began disappearing from liquor store shelves and coolers not long after it was introduced.

The beer also had become the butt of jokes at some beer parlors.

Many jobs risky —CUPE finding

OTTAWA (CP)—Shift work interferes with bowel movements and desk jobs cause varicose veins, says the Canadian Union of Public Employees in a 197-page inventory of health and safety hazards faced by public employees.

Hospital workers are exposed to disease, laboratory employees are exposed to toxic substances, road workers are endangered by tar, and garbage collectors in remote areas may come across rats and bears.

"We have found that CUPE members are exposed to almost virtually every workplace health and safety hazard found in private industry."

The union, which represents 230,000 municipal and provincial employees, said there was a need for improved health and safety standards.

But instead, hazards are being increased because of budget and staff cuts.

MENTAL PATIENTS SLAVES—LAWSUIT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A B.C. Supreme Court action says the provincial government enslaves and fails to pay the minimum wage to patients at the forensic psychiatric institute in nearby Coquitlam.

The action was filed by Anthony Lemay, who is detained in strict custody at the institute where patients are held who have been found unfit to stand trial on criminal charges or found not guilty by reason of insanity.

Lemay says that as a scullery laborer at the institute, he has been told by staff members that if he does not work, he will be punished by being detained in the ward and having his pay reduced.

He says patients being held in strict custody are threatened with harsher terms of custody and pay reduction for any refusal to work.

Lemay works a 25-hour week sorting and peeling potatoes used in meals at the institute, and is paid $5 a week. If he refuses to work at any time, he gets paid $3.50 a week, he says.

Lemay says that forcing anyone held at the institute to work violates laws abolishing slavery in B.C.

Soviet bandit drama bared

MOSCOW (AP)—An unusually candid article in a Soviet newspaper detailed how investigators finally tracked down three men who had stolen a car late last year, killed its owner and then shot two Soviet policemen.

The full-page report in Literaturnaya Gazetta was extraordinary in view of Kremlin claims that violent crimes are a problem of Western capitalist society and not of Soviet communism.

It said one of the three was killed in a shootout with police when he resisted arrest, a second received the death sentence after being brought to trial and the third, brother of the second, was given a 15-year sentence when he pleaded guilty.

The newspaper account said a passenger bus came on the victims along a highway on a cold, windy night near the southern Soviet town of Rostov. The report gave no date.

The two policemen had been shot with a submachine-gun and the civilian, stabbed, was stuffed in the trunk of a nearby car.

One of the policemen lived for a short time but could provide few details.

Soviet investigators had a difficult time trying to piece together what had happened, since there were no witnesses to the murders, the newspaper said.

But they doggedly traced the submachinegun to a black market dealer, Pyotr Bilyk. His brother, Vladimir, was questioned and admitted participating in the crime.

The newspaper said the two brothers and the third unidentified man stole a car, killed its owner and were on their way to the city of Chelyabinsk to rob a bank when the police stopped them for speeding and were slain.

Twins' strange doom

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nicholas and Natalie appear to be recovering and they may be able to go home from the hospital in a couple of weeks. But that has happened before, and their parents and doctors know there is no hope for the 13-month-old twins.

"Why couldn't my children have a disease they could identify and treat?" says their mother, Stephanie Abramowicz. "I'm afraid I will go into the nursery and find them dying."

The twins were born six weeks prematurely, but were fine otherwise. Then, in May, they became sick with a virus. This was followed by a series of illnesses that have brought Nicholas near death three times.

The babies' muscles are weak and have no tone. It is difficult for them to learn to crawl or to sit up on their own.

Doctors are baffled. There is no treatment. All that can be done for the twins is to feed them through tubes in their noses and change their diapers.

"We believe it is probably one enzyme that they were born without," says Dr. Allan Glasgow, the pediatrician in charge. "This one deficiency has led to their other problems. It has caused low blood sugar and that, in turn though not directly, has caused liver and muscular problems."

Nicholas has undergone two liver biopsies and was hooked up to a special respirator for cardiac patients.

The parents have already given doctors permission to do pathological tests on Nicholas if he should die, in the hope that Natalie could be helped by what might be found.

M. V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

In a recent column we were discussing the potting up and bringing indoors of the houseplants which had been set outdoors for the summer. In this connection, I should point out there are quite a few plants in the garden, not ordinarily thought of as houseplants, which can be potted up to bring a little color into the house through the dark days of winter.

A nice compact clump of lobelia, for instance, will keep on producing its masses of dark blue flowers well into January if you are able to keep it reasonably cool. Sweet Alyssum doesn't last very long in a warm living room, but it is well worth bringing indoors if only for a few weeks because of its fragrance.

I have just potted up a self-sown seedling from one of my dwarf Petite Gold marigolds; I don't know how it will take to indoor living, but if it survives it should make a most attractive pot plant. This race of miniature marigolds starts blooming when only three inches tall and seldom grows higher than eight inches, covering the plant with a rounded mass of bloom.

The scarlet salvia, if you can find a compact, well-proportioned plant in the garden, will continue in bloom almost all winter.

Even the vegetable plot can yield a few plants for the house. In our family we always pot up at least one plant of parsley to sit on the kitchen windowsill, handy through the winter for garnishing the poached eggs and steaks, while another pot holds a few rooted slips of mint for our lamb roasts and to add a festive touch to our Christmas highballs. These hardy plants don't care much for fierce furnace heat, and it is necessary to find a cool but sunny spot for them.

This problem of furnace heat is most difficult, for the move from the cool, dewy fall air to the high temperatures and dry air of an indoor room is a trying time for all plants. The problem is further complicated by the fact that hot water radiators and hot air registers are almost always located right underneath the windowsill where you want to keep your plants. A plastic deflector on a hot air register will help keep a window ledge a bit cooler than it would be otherwise.

Time and time again, I have taken an ailing plant from the cosy warmth of our living room and shifted it to an uncomfortably chilly window in the basement, only to see it perk up and take on a new lease on life. In fact, this particular cellar window, sunny but very cool, has become a sort of plant hospital where jaded houseplants can recharge their batteries.

The trick with houseplant chrysanthemums — as distinct from our hardy outdoor kinds — is to get them potted up before severe frost, but to leave them outdoors as late as you dare.

When a hard frost is forecast, bring them in overnight but push them out again in the sunshine and air during the daylight hours.

When the day temperatures drop to dangerous levels, the move to indoor living can sometimes be postponed a bit longer by standing them in an unheated sunporch, and the final move should be to a sunny but very cool room — perhaps an unused bedroom where the heat can be cut down. Here they can stay until blooming commences.

Another very important point with chrysanthemums — and poinsettias — is to make sure they are never exposed to artificial light during the evening hours. In nature, these plants get their cue to start blooming from the shortening days of fall. If the day-length is prolonged artificially, they simply refuse to make any flower buds.

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Most people who live outside of Washington are under the impression that the only two topics of conversation in this town are politics and government. This may have been true at one time, but it isn't any more.

For a while the main topic was sex. But recently this subject has waned, and now all people talk about is the high cost of real estate.

I went to a party the other night and cornered an assistant secretary of state. "How did things go at Camp David?" I asked him.

"It was beautiful. My wife and I are thinking of buying a weekend retreat near Thurmont. It's 40 acres of farmland and they want $3,500 an acre."

"What about the talks? Do you think anything will come of them?"

"Oh, we talked to the bankers. They'll give us a mortgage at 10 per cent, however we have to put 30 per cent down. But it has a stream running right through it, and I'm told if I hold on to it for five years I'll double my money."

"Did you speak to Sadat and Begin?"

"What for? They don't know anything about real estate in Maryland."

I wandered over to a couple who were whispering and giggling. I thought there was some hanky-panky going on since he was a congressman and she was from the typing pool in HEW.

I strained my ears to hear what they were saying.

"So, I figured after my divorce, I'd keep the home in Washington and give my wife the house in Georgia. She agreed. I didn't want the house in Washington so I put it up on the market, thinking I'd get $90,000. The first offer came in and it was $120,000. I was about to agree when I got the second offer for $145,000. Do you know what I finally sold the house for? One hundred and sixty thousand dollars."

You could tell the secretary was impressed. "Now I know why the people from your distric vote for you."

"Why don't we go to your place for a drink after the party?" the congressman said.

"I'd love to," she said.

I tried to get in on the conversation. "The house next to me just went on the market for $250,000 and it doesn't even have a finished basement."

The congressman took the girl by the arm and started to walk away. "I'm sorry," he said, "this is a private conversation."

I looked around the room and saw a Treasury official. "How far do you think the dollar will fall against the Japanese yen?" I asked him.

"It's hard to say. Frankly, I think it's bottomed out. A Japanese official with the World Bank looked at a house on our block in Cleveland Park, which was selling for $180,000, and he told the owner he couldn't afford it. When the Japanese start talking like that you know the yen is in trouble."

Driving home that night my wife said, "I sat next to the most fascinating man at dinner tonight and we had a marvelous talk."

"You were sitting next to Henry Kissinger."

"Not him; the man who was sitting on my left. He's a contractor and he's building 20 new townhouses on Chain Bridge Road."

Sydney Harris

(While Mr. Harris is vacationing, we are reprinting columns from his latest book, The Best of Sydney J. Harris, now available in paperback.)

I walked with my friend, a Quaker, to the newsstand the other night, and he bought a paper, thanking the newsie politely. The newsie didn't even acknowledge it.

"A sullen fellow, isn't he?" I commented. "Oh, he's that way every night," shrugged my friend. "Then why do you continue being so polite to him?" I asked. "Why not?" inquired my friend. "Why should I let him decide how I'm going to act?"

As I thought about this little incident later, it occurred to me that the operating word was "act." My friend acts toward people; most of us react toward them.

He has a sense of inner balance lacking in most of us frail and uncertain creatures: he knows who he is, what he stands for, and how he should behave.

No boor is going to disturb the equilibrium of his nature; he simply refuses to return incivility with incivility, because then he would no longer be in command of his own conduct, but a mere responder to others.

When we are enjoined in the Bible to return good for evil, we look upon this as a moral injunction, which it is; but it is also a psychological prescription for our emotional health.

Nobody is unhappier than the perpetual reactor. His center of emotional gravity is not rooted within himself, where it belongs, but in the world outside him. His spiritual temperature is always being raised or lowered by the social climate around him, and he is a mere creature at the mercy of these elements.

Praise gives him a feeling of euphoria, which is false, because it does not last and it does not come from self-approval. Criticism depresses him more than it should, because it confirms his own secretly shaky opinion of himself. Snubs hurt him, and the merest suspicion of unpopularity in any quarter rouses him to bitterness or aggressiveness or querulousness.

Only a saint, of course, never reacts. But a serenity of spirit cannot be achieved until we become the masters of our own actions and attitudes, and not merely the passive reactors to other persons' feelings. To let another determine whether we shall be rude or gracious, elated or depressed, is to relinquish control over our own personalities, which is ultimately all we possess. The only true possession is self-possession.

My friend is a model of balanced conduct, and few of us can hope to attain his kind of surefootedness. But we can at least adjust our weight to lean less heavily upon the world's giddy gyrations.

Stuart Rosenberg

When should a man speak up? When should he keep his peace? Wisdom, which comes with maturity, helps supply answers to these crucial questions.

The author of that remarkable mine of wisdom, the Book of Ecclesiastes, reminds us in simple, yet penetrating cadences, that one should assess his deeds in relation to time. Absolutes, he suggested, are refracted through the prism of changing times and circumstances.

"To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven.

"A time to be born and a time to die . . . a time to weep and a time to laugh.

"A time to mourn and a time to dance.

"A time to seek and a time to lose.

"A time to keep and a time to cast away.

"A time to rend and a time to sew.

"A time to keep silent and a time to speak!"

Suggested here is the double dilemma which faces us: not only what to do, but when to do it. The same attitude, expressed at different moments of life, with the same conviction, meaning and feeling — once it may lead to heartbreak, again it may bring victory.

To be sure, the whole weight of Jewish ethical tradition is on the side of courage to seek out, to denounce evil, that it may be uprooted from the community midst. Scripture repeatedly admonished: "Thou shalt put away the evil." And the Rabbis go a step further. Not only must he who commits the wrong be punished, but so must he who is the victim of wrong, if he refuses to cry out in protest, as a sound of alarm for the whole community. The sin of silence is as serious as the sin of attack — both lead to the spread of moral decay.

To turn the other cheek may not be the height of spiritual strength; more, it can be the abandonment of ethical responsibility, a neutralism without convictions of principles. To protest and to condemn wrong has been translated, by Jewish teaching, into a highly desirable ethical imperative. As a people, then, Jews did not flinch from the role of history seemed to assign them — the people of protest and courageous dissent.

When we are convinced that we are speaking up for those who have been wronged — not our petty self-defences — then we must speak out. When we truly feel the hurt ourselves — as if we were the victims — then we are obligated to speak out. Psychologists call this quality of maturity empathy — not sympathy. When we are sympathetic to someone, we may feel sorry for him, and yet do nothing about our sorrow. Empathy is a deeper experience. It is the mature ability to feel our own face slapped — and to protest our hurt — when, for no good reason, another man has been slapped.

Real concern cannot end up in indifference. And real concern moves us to recognise that all of society is endangered when the defenseless go unprotected because the protected will not protest. Those who stand idly by when the blood of others is shed are kinsmen of the murderer. They have hushed truth and buried it with the dead.

Here is the universal appeal of the Jewish prophets. They are the great dissenters of history, the great speechmakers pitted against all of the power of dynasty; little Amos speaking up to the king at Beth El; unfrightened and unflinching.

But the greatness of the prophets is not only their dissent and protest. They had another quality. Running through the most denunciatory and inflammatory prophetic speeches is a spirit of reconciliation. They speak out because they believe in what they say; they live by the words. They protest because they can see the ultimate outcome of immediate waywardness. They castigate because they love the good — not merely because they hate the evil.

They teach us to know when to speak up.

United Way hits 25% of target

With two days to go in the second week of the current campaign, the United Way has collected almost a quarter of the money needed.

Thursday's total was $222,056 or 24 per cent of the goal.

Meanwhile, from Vancouver it was announced that Peter Hinton of Victoria has been elected president of the United Way of British Columbia. Vice-president is Don McIntosh of Kelowna and secretary-treasurer is Frank McCloskey of Powell River.

The provincial association represents the 20 United Ways of B.C. The body provides a vehicle for the exchange of ideas, information and experience. It acts as a common voice for the United Way.

Munro re-elected by IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Munro was re-elected for his third two-year term as president of the western IWA regional council Thursday.

Bob Blanchard of Vancouver was returned by acclamation as first vice-president and Neil Menard of Prince Albert was re-elected second vice-president. Wyman Trineer of New Westminster was returned as secretary-treasurer.

Nick Chernoff of Courtenay challenged Ernie Clark of Port Alberni for the post of third vice-president but the result will not be known until a referendum is held among all 52,000 IWA members in the four western provinces.

Barrett challenges premier to set day

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition Leader David Barrett, addressing the International Woodworkers of America convention Wednesday, fired verbal broadsides at many of his longstanding targets—Premier Bennett and the Social Credit government; the oil companies; the banks; MacMillan Bloedel; the federal Liberals and Conservatives; and the local daily newspapers.

Barrett, who has repeatedly challenged Bennett to a televised debate, directed several remarks to the absent premier, who is on a rail tour through central British Columbia.

"I have a message for the premier: If you're going to call an election, get on with it.

"If you're not, then shut up and call a fall session of the legislature. Or are you too frightened to call us back to Victoria?

"I'm not going to call an election. The last time I did, I wasn't satisfied with the result." Barrett and the incumbent New Democratic Party were defeated by the Socreds at the polls in early 1976.

He called for public ownership of the oil and natural gas companies to stop the flow of their profits out of Canada.

TO CURB ILLEGALLY-PASSING MOTORISTS

Policemen may ride shotgun on school buses

Central Saanich police chief Robert Miles indicated Thursday officers may ride on school buses if motorists continue to ignore the flashing red lights when the buses are stopped to let children on and off.

Bus drivers in Saanich school district are seeking a crackdown by police on motorists who pass school buses illegally in either direction when the lights are flashing.

Lew Wright, co-ordinator of services for the school district, said the drivers were concerned about the number of occasions when motorists pass school buses which have stopped to unload passengers.

Section 142 of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act requires motorists approaching a school bus from either direction to stop if the bus indicates by a sign or flashing red lights that it is stopped to receive or discharge school chilren. Drivers must remain stationary until the bus resumes motion, or until the driver signals it is safe to proceed.

Penalty on conviction is three demerit points against the driver.

Miles said he sent a letter to the school board requesting information as to the problem area and was informed the bad spots were on West Saanich Road, near Wallace Drive and Mount Newton, and on Lochside Drive.

Miles said Central Saanich municipality has ordered a number of road signs which read "School Bus Stop Ahead, Caution."

The police chief said the main violators are motorists coming toward the stopped bus.

He said if the problem persists in his area, he will order his men to ride on the buses with walkie talkies or a notebook to copy down the licence numbers of offending vehicles. The registered owner of the vehicle will then be charged.

Israeli gunboats shell Beirut

Colonist wire services

BEIRUT — Israeli gunboats Thursday night shelled western Beirut and Jerusalem and informed Washington that the action was intended to thwart a plannned operation by the Al Fatah Palestinian guerrilla organization.

The shelling was also interpreted as an apparent warning to Syrian peacekeeping troops to stop battering Christian areas in the eastern part of the city.

The Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the vessels fired on a Palestinian guerrilla naval base in southwestern Beirut. The official Lebanese radio said three gunboats fired on the Ramlet Baida residential quarter, then withdrew when Syrian artillery opened fire on them. No casualties or damage were reported.

A U.S. state department spokesman said in Washington the Israelis had informed the department that "the Israeli naval units shelled Fatah installations in the Beirut area on Oct. 5."

The spokesman added: "We were told that the Israeli intention was to thwart a planned Fatah operation."

Western Beirut was the stronghold of leftist Moslem militias and Palestinian guerrillas during the 19-month civil war that ended in November, 1976. It has remained outside the battle between Syrian troops and Christian militias in the eastern sectors.

Israel has vowed not to allow Lebanon's Christians to be destroyed but had refrained from intervening in Lebanon—apparently for fear of endangering Egyptian-Israeli peace talks set to begin in Washington on Oct. 12.

The Israeli army radio station quoted sources in the Knesset (Israeli parliament) as saying Thursday that "the decisive moment is near" for Israel. The radio also said Defence Minister Ezer Weizman would report today to an emergency meeting of the defence and foreign affairs committees of the Knesset.

Police said the casualty toll had climbed to 1,000 killed and 1,700 wounded in eight months of Christian-Syrian battles for control.

At the United Nations in New York, a well-placed source said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was considering sending Sadruddin Aga Khan, a Moslem, to Lebanon to try to organize a ceasefire.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Lebanese-American groups said in Washington that Christian leaders in Beirut had issued an "S-O-S" for United Nations intervention.

"In the absence of direct military intervention the Christians will be crushed by the Syrian onslaught," said Dory Chamoun, son of former Lebanese president Camille Chamoun and a leader of a principal right-wing Christian faction.

In a statement issued in Geneva, the Lebanese Red Cross said: "The civilian population, hospitals, dispensaries, asylums, shelters, nothing is being spared. In the name of humanity, in the name of the most elementary principles of human rights, in the name of the children, women and aged people who are dying by the hundreds, we urge you to act."

Soviets, U.S. huddle

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union consulted on Lebanon Thursday and an American official said the United States will probably ask the UN Security Council to force a ceasefire if the fighting in Beirut does not end by the weekend.

A top U.S. official said late Thursday that the Security Council could be pressed into action as early as today.

He also said if the fighting continues it could "adversely affect" the Camp David peace initiative. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has spent the last 10 days in New York trying to drum up support for the historic accords.

Asked whether Washington would ask the 15-member Security Council for a meeting if there were no ceasefire by early today, the state department spokesman replied, "I think we probably will."

The official said he expected other countries, primarily Western nations, to join in the appeal. Asked whether Moscow would lend its backing, he replied, "All I want to say is, we've been in touch with the Soviets — and leave it at at that."

The official said President Carter had sent a message to Syrian President Hafez al-Assad in Moscow expressing "deep concern and the need for an immediate ceasefire, to stop the bloodshed."

There was no immediate reply from the Syrian leader, whose troops were involved in fighting with Christian militiamen in the Lebanese capital.

TALKS FAIL WITH MILITANT INSIDERS

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-member conciliation board Thursday admitted failure in its attempt to settle the bitter dispute between the post office and the militant Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

The union will be in a legal strike position Oct. 12 following the release of three separate conciliation reports which graphically described the hostility in relations between the parties.

"I do not believe the Holy Trinity could conciliate the present parties," wrote Roy Heenan, the employer's board nominee. "There is a fundamental distrust between the parties which has lead to a total absence of communication."

Louis Courtemanche, board chairman, noted "with a little bitterness that the parties seem to be following already a path leading to an unavoidable confrontation."

"Indeed, some of the employers' officials have already announced that a strike by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers would be brought to an end by special legislation and, for its part, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers has already set up its strike machinery," Courtemanche said.

The parties remain poles apart on the key issues of wages, technological change and the use of casual, non-union labor in the post office.

Irving Gaul, the union's nominee on the board, called for immediate resumption of negotiations and urged both parties to "demonstrate flexibility and imagination."

Courtemanche said he found his employer's wage offer adequate when combined with continuation of a cost-of-living adjustment clause, but Gaul rejected the offer in his report.

Courtemanche recommended that the basic salary for a third-year mail handler, now $6.13 an hour, be increased to $6.30, retroactive to July 1, 1977, and to $6.58, retroactive to last July 1. He also recommended that the cost-of-living allowance of 46 cents, gained on June 30, 1977, be included in the basic salary on Jan. 1, 1979.

Long-term care program clogs hospitals—doctor

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist reporter

The provincial long-term care program was put into effect last January without sufficient planning and has created severe overcrowding in Victoria's acute-care hospitals, the outgoing president of the Victoria Medical Association said Thursday.

Not only will the situation get worse before it improves, but the provincial government is insisting that long-term care patients blocking acute care beds in the city's two general hospitals will not necessarily be moved out of the hospitals as quickly as alternative accommodation becomes available, Dr. Douglas Critchley said.

The long-term care program, instituted without sufficient planning last Jan. 1, has greatly increased the severity of the bed shortage, Critchley said. The low co-insurance of $6.50 a day is one factor in the increase in the number of patients seeking long-term care, and ending up in hospital.

"We have a very deplorable situation with acute care beds now. Doctors can't get anyone into the hospital except an acute emergency."

Furthermore, doctors can't get many of their patients out of the hospital because there are not sufficient facilities to handle those whose conditions are stable, but still require long-term nursing care.

The latest figures show that 164 of Royal Jubilee Hospital's 625 acute care beds and 76 of the 469 beds at Victoria General Hosptal are now occupied by non-acute patients who have nowhere to go be-

Second 'test-tube baby' born in Calcutta home

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — A three-man research team went on Calcutta television Thursday night to announce that a "test-tube baby"—the world's second—was born this week.

Earlier, the state-owned Calcutta station broadcast Bengali and English language news bulletins reporting the team's claim that a seven-pound, six-ounce baby girl was born Tuesday at an undisclosed nursing home in the city.

The three researchers said in a television interview that their procedure was different in some respects from that which led to the July 25 birth in Oldham, England, of Louise Brown, the world's first baby conceived outside the human body.

The television station said the names of the Calcutta parents were being kept secret, apparently because the stigma of laboratory conception might jeopardize the baby's future marriage prospects in the conservative Hindu society.

The three men who carried out the delicate fertilization and transfer of the embryo were identified by the station as Dr. Sunit Mukherjee and Dr. Subhash Mukherjee of Calcutta Medical College and biology researcher Saroj Bhattacharya of Dajadavpur University.

The three said the mother's egg was fertilized after it was kept in an incubater for 3½ days.

In England, two specialists, Dr. Patrick Steptoe and Dr. Robert Edwards, developed a method whereby they removed an egg from the mother's ovaries, fertilized it with sperm from the father in the laboratory and then implanted the egg in the mother's womb.

In the early television reports, Bhattacharya was quoted as saying that, as in the Brown case, the laboratory method was tried because the mother's Fallopian tubes were blocked.

Salted away?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is close enough to reaching an agreement to limit nuclear arms that he is working on plans for a signing ceremony at a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in December, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

Day's notice for air time edict for PM

OTTAWA (CP) — The next time Prime Minister Trudeau wants television air time he must let the CBC know at least 24 hours in advance, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission was told Thursday.

Under a new policy worked out recently, opposition parties in the Commons will also have an automatic right to reply after the prime minister's statements, said Knowlton Nash, director of news and public affairs for the corporation.

Nash told a reporter later that the new policy had been about eight months in the making and it preceded by months accusations by Peter Kent, former CBC newsreader and now its Africa correspondent, of political intererence in CBC affairs by the prime minister's office.

Kent, who is to appear later this week before the CRTC to make his own arguments, said decisions not to cover Trudeau on television had been changed after the prime minister's office telephoned CBC officials.

Nash told the commission he would resign if he even thought an editorial decision was changed as the result of political pressure.

At no time has this ever occurred in his job, Nash said.

The appearance of Trudeau on CBC-TV in August to announce cuts in government spending—one incident cited by Kent—conformed to this policy, declared Nash.

Marc Thibeault, Nash's counterpart in the CBC's French-language service, also defended his news staff against accusations it was biased in favor of Quebec independence.

Thibeault said Radio Canada's code of ethics for reporters called for absolute impartiality and that Radio Canada went to great efforts to see that was so.

Thibeault said every reporter suffered some constraints by virtue of the organization he worked for and the assignments he was given.

In the case of Radio Canada which took its mandate from Parliament, its reporters did not have the right to become commentators on issues such as separatism.

The network's natural audience is the five million French-speaking Quebecers who also look to the provincial government rather than Ottawa, Thibeault said.

ALCOHOL RATIONING FOR GREENLANDERS

GODTHAAB, Greenland (Reuter) — Greenland's leaders have devised a new tactic to curb drinking in the Danish Arctic province—an alcohol licence.

Under the new scheme, each Greenlander over 18 will be issued with a permit allowing him to buy 24 bottles of beer, three bottles of wine, and a half bottle of spirits each month.

The provincial council, due to become Greenland's home-rule government next May, decided on the system Wednesday. It could become law at the start of next year.

Now they're bullish on the buck

MONTREAL (CP) — Corporations which had been avoiding the Canadian dollar for months began buying into the troubled currency Thursday, helping it make a healthy gain against its American counterpart.

At the close of the interbank wholesale market, where banks trade currencies in huge amounts, the dollar was quoted at 84.85 cents U.S., more that one-third of a cent above Wednesday's close of 84.50 cents.

Foreign exchange traders said the market was orderly.

"People who were worrying for so long began questioning their fears," one relieved trader explained. "The whole trend seems to be one of bullishness on Canada."

B.C. must pay interest on corporate refunds

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Supreme Court ruled Thursday that the provincial government will have to pay the interest on refunded tax overpayments to two of B.C.'s major forest companies.

Crown Zellerbach and B.C. Forest Products appealed the assessment of forest, timber and tree farm land for taxes during 1976 and 1977.

The resulting reversal of assessments meant a refund of overpayment to Crown Zellerbach of more than $1.3 million and $125,000 to B.C. Forest Products.

The payments were made in June without any interest for the time the money was withheld by the provincial government.

The court decision said that because the government had use of the money while the appeals were being heard, the two companies were entitled to receive the interest. Interest rates have yet to be negotiated.

Bennett plans major cabinet shuffle

By JIM HUME
Colonist reporter

FORT ST. JAMES — A major revamping of several provincial government ministries with accompanying changes in cabinet responsibilities is scheduled within the next few weeks, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

The premier told the Colonist that he would very shortly be divesting himself of Energy, Transport and Communications duties held since Jack Davis resigned from the provincial cabinet.

Davis was found guilty of fraud charges last month and has now resigned his seat in the Legislature.

The premier was asked during his trip north on the B.C. Railway how long he intended to keep the extra portfolio. "Not much longer," he said. "Very shortly I expect to be announcing some organizational changes in several ministries. I have always said that some ministries have responsibilities they shouldn't have while others are not responsible for obvious things. We shall be shuffling some of the duties and responsibilities around so there will possibly be some cabinet moves to conform with those changes."

The premier would not say which ministries would be involved or which ministers might be facing new duties.

Asked if British Columbia would be facing a byelection in North Vancouver Seymour before Christmas, the premier said he didn't think so.

He said that while Davis had announced his resignation from the North Vancouver Seymour seat and had presumably forwarded the resignation to Speaker Harvey Schroeder the document had not been officially received.

The speaker's office has confirmed that Davis delivered a sealed envelope to Schroeder's office but with the speaker in Europe it remains unopened.

The Provincial Elections Act states that a byelection must be called within six months of the resignation being received by the speaker.

With cabinet responsibility changes due in the near future, it now appears unlikely that the premier will call a general election this year. He still declines to eliminate that possibility publicly but indications are that he will now make his cabinet changes and give the ministers time to grasp their new duties before going to the people for a new mandate.

Overdose not always a killer, says doctor

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist reporter

A 72-year-old man who died in the emergency room of Royal Jubilee Hospital last month after receiving twice the recommended maximum dosage of Xylocaine would probably have died even if the correct dosage had been given, a heart specialist said Wednesday.

Dr. Michael Cody, who was called to the emergency room by Dr. Jacob Sturmwind on the evening of Sept. 17 to look at Galliano Giovanni Piccoli, 72, said Piccoli's condition was "desperate" when he first saw him.

Piccoli required help with breathing and his heart rate was too slow, Cody said.

"The chances of his surviving this attack, and it was a large one according to the autopsy report, were slight."

The autopsy report, read at the first hearing in the inquest last week, noted that Piccoli was suffering from emphysema, bronchitis, obesity, hardening of the arteries, and a greatly enlarged heart. He had had a previous heart attack, and on this occasion a blood clot had blocked one of the arteries feeding his heart.

Piccoli's low heart rate could have been caused by the massive dose of Xylocaine, a common anaesthetic which is also frequently used in heart attacks to restore normal heart rhythm, Cody said. Sturmwind had testified last week that he had given Piccoli what he thought was a dosage of 30 to 35 milligrams of Xylocaine to begin with, when heart monitors showed Piccoli had an abnormal heart beat, only to discover later that the syringe which he had partially injected contained 1,000 milligrams of Xylocaine, 10 times the amount that Sturmwind thought it had.

As a result of the mix-up in syringes, caused by the fact that emergency room staff were not familiar with a new type of syringe, Piccoli was given a dose of 300-350 milligrams, about twice the recommended dosage for a person of his weight.

While the dosage that Piccoli was given was toxic enough to cause Piccoli to go into convulsions, it was not necessarily a lethal dose, and the very poor condition of Piccoli's heart may have been responsible for his abnormally slow heart beat, Cody testified.

A search of medical literature shows that several heart patients have inadvertently been given up to 1,000 milligrams of Xylocaine and survived, he said.

In other testimony at Wednesday's inquest, nurse Jean Haley appeared to contradict testimony given by Sturmwind last week. Sturmwind had stated that he had asked for a 100-milligram syringe of Xylocaine to be injected as a "bolus," that is, all at once, to restore Piccoli's heart rhythm, and said Mrs. Haley had handed him the 1,000 milligram Xylocaine injection, about a third of which, after some puzzlement over how to use it, he had injected into intravenous tubing.

But Mrs. Haley said Wednesday night that she had never handed Sturmwind any syringes. She had taken two of the 1,000 milligram syringes from a store of drugs, in response to an urgent request from Sturmwind for "Xylocaine and a Xylocaine drip," meaning, she understood, a bolus of Xylocaine as well as a solution of Xylocaine to be given through an intravenous bag.

The 1,000-milligram syringes were to be injected into a bag of prepared intravenous solution, but she had trouble putting one of the syringes together and went to ask her supervisor, Mrs. Susan Drysdale, how to use it. After learning that the syringe was to be used for dilution only, Mrs. Haley said she headed back to Piccoli's room, first stopping at a cupboard to get a 100-milligram bolus of Xylocaine.

When she got back to Piccoli, Mrs. Haley said, she found that Sturmwind had injected the other syringe which she had taken out of the cupboard into the intravenous tubing.

"I said 'this is the Xylocaine for direct injection. You've given the wrong medication.'"

"He said 'Oh, no.' I turned and looked at Mr. Piccoli and saw that the patient was getting into seizure."

The inquest will resume on Oct. 11, at 7:30, at which time pathologist Dr. Jack Cottrell will discuss results of posthumous blood tests.

Late arrival a heart-warmer

It has been a mixed bag in the weather department for quite a few weeks but Island residents got a bit of Indian summer this week. And it's been so warm some days that Drumbeg provincial park on Gabriola Island even had a few summer-like scenes, with people taking advantage of what could be the final warm spell of 1978, which is also expected to continue for rest of this week.

Nanaimo region given chance for catching up

By DONNA REIMER
Colonist Correspondent

NANAIMO — School District 68 was a late comer in initiating French programs, but the district has a chance to catch up and learn from the experience of other school districts in the province.

That is the assessment of the Nanaimo district's co-ordinator of French instruction, Terry Green, who appeared before the school board's education committee this week.

Green appeared before the committee to give school trustees an update on French instruction in district 68 schools, as well as to ask that the school board adopt a series of recommendations supporting French in the schools.

The committee voted to recommend that the board accept all of the six statements supporting and encouraging the French program, although some of the details will be ironed out at budget time.

Green said that he believed the district was a year or two behind other school districts in the province in starting the French programs, but that it was an excellent chance to benefit from the experiences of the other districts.

The school district began a French immersion program in kindergarten classes at Pauline Haarer school last year. This year, the program is in kindergarten and first grade.

Other than the primary immersion program, the district has had no real French program in elementary schools, Green said, except for that which was carried out by interested and talented teachers.

Last year, the work began on offering French as part of the core curriculum of elementary schools. In-service training and workshops were held for interested teachers.

The increase in the number of teachers available and interested in teaching French has been immense, Green said.

Before 1977, only about eight teachers in five different elementary schools were teaching their students any French.

A year ago, in September 1977, there were 18 teachers in 10 schools. By the end of the school year, June 1977, that number had risen to 45 teachers in 17 schools.

This fall, Green said, 70 teachers in 21 schools plan to teach French.

Only 40 of the 70 are now teaching French, he added, but the others plan to teach the language and are involved in in-service training to increase their confidence and competence.

Green suggested that two programs would strengthen the district's French programs. These are a French summer school and a late immersion program.

The recommendations that the committee will pass on to the board include investigations into the idea of a French summer school for grades 4, 5 and 6, and a poll of parents to see if there is interest in the idea of late immersion program for grades 7 and 8.

If the recommendations are accepted, the district would also ask for special project funding from the federal government for a spring course at Malaspina College for teachers who want to improve their oral French, and also for a week-long orientation program for teachers using the district's French programs.

The school board would also be asked to consider hiring an assistant for Green, to help with demonstrations and workshops.

A committee of teachers in the district has drawn up a list of goals towards which they would like to see the district work.

These include giving children exposure to French as a second language as early as possible in their school life, with daily lessons and practical experiences such as exchange programs.

The goal would not be for students to be functionally bilingual by the end of grde 12, Green said, because there is simply not enough time in the classroom to achieve this with each student.

Instead, students would have a strong background, both in their attitudes and skills, to continue their work in French.

He said that over the past few years the interest in the district in French has grown and spread, and that because of the high interest of the teachers and parents involved it will continue to spread.

From Nanaimo to Comox Valley

Hot races on municipal front

A three-way race for the mayor's seat in Nanaimo was guaranteed this week when Pat Barron announced that he will seek the post that has been held by Frank Ney for 12 years.

Barron joins Ney and Mike Sammon in the race.

Local political observers would not be surprised to see at least one more entry in the mayoralty race before nominations close Oct. 30.

Barron, who has previously run unsuccessfully for both mayor and an aldermanic seat, has in the past been strongly identified with the Concerned Citizens Committee, which has accused Ney of conflict of interest.

However, Barron said that he will not use that theme in his campaign, instead adopting the motto of "a mayor who can remain in the chair," a reference to Ney's vacating the chair when a possible conflict of interest arises with his real estate company, Nanaimo Realty.

He said that he would be a full-time mayor, if elected, and would see that both the city budget and the mayor's salary were cut by 10 per cent for 1979.

He said the city must pay attention to its unemployment problems, and that Duke Point will not automatically solve all of those problems.

Secondary industry should be encouraged and projects such as a regional airport at Cassidy, new commercial boat basin and redevelopment of downtown would create more jobs, Barron said.

Meanwhile, when municipal election time rolls around in Comox Valley, there will be 14 vacant seats on councils in the valley and three seats open at the regional level.

The only mayor's seat vacant will be in Cumberland and incumbent William Moncrief will seek re-election to that position. He has served 12 years on council, 10 of which have been as mayor.

Mayor William Moore of Courtenay and Mayor George Piercy of Comox were each elected last year. The election of Moore was surrounded by controversy in regard to his eligibility to run as he was facing a court case in which he had been charged with obstructing justice. However, Moore was returned to office with a strong majority.

In Courtenay, aldermen George Cochrane, Ross Sinclair and A. H. (Sandy) Strachan are all up for re-election and are expected to file nomination papers.

Four seats will be vacant in Comox.

The seat vacated two months ago by William Vincent will be for a one-year term.

Seats for two-year terms held by Aldermen Gary Richardson, Alice Bullen and George Tillotson, are also open this year. Tillotson is also the Comox representative on the regional district board.

Only ALd. Bullen has said definitely she will seek re-election.

Russ Hammond, who lost by one vote to Claire Ensom in the aldermanic race last year, is considering seeking election this year but has not definitely decided.

At the school board level, the terms of board chairman Stanley Hagen and trustees Margaret McGill, Anne Chalifour and Ruth McKellar come to an end.

Trustee McGill, who was ill during the past year, will seek medical advice before announcing her decision.

Trustee Chalifour was in hospital recently and was unavailable for comment.

Trustees Hagen and McKellar have made no statement of their intentions, although it is expected they will seek re-election.

Replacements will be elected on Nov. 18 for Dale Hardy, Electoral Area D; John Frisholz, Electoral Area J, and Ald. Frieda Rogers, Zeballos.

So far there has been no indication of who will be seeking the three seats. The three seats carry one-year terms.

Francophone parents' pleas heard

DUNCAN — Pleas from 30 Francophone parents that French immersion classes continue beyond the board's approved kindergarten program into Grade 1, then through to seven and possibly into more senior levels, were considered by trustees at a recent meeting of School District 65.

Trustees were opposed to the suggestion of implementing Education Minister Pat McGeer's program of instruction in French language only "for any 10 or more students of senior secondary level that demand it," as being just not feasable."

Pat Hocker urged the board to plan a Grade 1 class next year as well as an additional kindergarten class.

She suggested the board consider taking in new students into Grade 1 after a careful screening process. She said such a policy could maintain student numbers which could be depleted by natural attrition.

She also suggested that the board hold information meetings next Spring to let parents know what programs would be available.

Trustee Jerry Joyce said the immersion program to have children "taught French was a very good idea. But the second program suggested by Pat McGeer concerns me."

He cautioned the parents stating: "If grades 1-12 were taught in French, the necessary support services would not be there in District 65.

"There would not suddenly be a new high school complete with library, just for students to be instructed in the French language only."

Joyce said it "was easy for politicians to say we will have a French and English school system, but not easy to provide, especially with the limited funds available."

"We would have to have two school systems similar to those of Ontario and Quebec. I feel strongly that we could not supply these systems with the amount of money available.

"Encouraging two languages is one thing, providing the dollars is another. There has been no indication from the provincial government that they are going to pay for these systems."

Joyce added: "I don't think there is a chance that the quality of education would remain the same."

Trustee Joan Gillatt pointed out that other problems could also take place, particularly with students that were having learning problems.

"We certainly can't provide this service in French," she said.

Pat Hocker thanked the board members for their consideration and said the trustees had given the parents further material for consideration and study.

She said the group's French summer school, which wound up in August, was a success, although the instructor found the teaching day of four hours a little too long for some of the younger students.

Meanwhile, further discussions are to take place on tenders received for the new Discovery elementary school at Shawnigan Lake.

Original tenders for the school came in well over budget estimates and the lowest tender has been asked to delete some items and come up with a revised figure.

Duncan IWA local has battle for top

DUNCAN—International Woodworkers of America Local 1-80's incumbent president Roger Stanyer is being challenged for the presidency by hooktender Joe Lychak.

Lychak, 30, an employee of T&D Carter Logging at Chemainus, is a camp chairman and has been in the lumber industry for eight years, is married and has two children.

Stanyer, 34, president of the huge 4,500-member mid-Island local for the past two years, was born in Duncan and raised in Caycuse. He served on the Caycuse camp committee for four years and spent two years on the Joint Safety Committee.

He was hired as a business agent in 1973 and won election as vice-president by acclamation in 1974. He was named president by acclamation in December of 1976. Stanyer is married and has two children.

All other offices on the union's executive were returned by acclamation at Local 1-80's recent annual meeting in Duncan.

Stanyer told the members that the local was considering starting a low-cost housing project similar to that started by the union in Vancouver.

A committee had been formed and invitations to participate had gone out to Nanaimo, Duncan and District Labor Council.

He said the local had picked up about 18 new certifications in the last two years. While many of the new acquisitions were small, the IWA did secure certification for the new B.C. Forest Products dryland sort at Crofton.

"Looking to the future in our local, we are waiting to see if any of the new mills which have been proposed in this area will materialize," Stanyer said.

E&N group undaunted by poor attendance

NANAIMO — The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway passenger service may be alive and healthy these days, but the committee that helped breathe new life into it appears to have run out of steam—at least for the time being.

"Maybe we've been too successful and now we're finding apathy," said Vancouver Island Steering Committee chairman John Cooper, here Wednesday night as he scanned a meeting room that was embarrassingly short of the turnout he had expected.

Four of 10 committee members showed up, along with seven other participants in the battle to reverse a Canadian Transport Commission ruling which would end the life of the historic service Dec. 13.

Many of those who had been expected were reported attending council meetings in their own areas.

"I guess it's time for politicking," Cooper said later in reference to next month's municipal elections.

None of the federal or provincial politicians who attended a major committe meeting in August made it to Nanaimo this time.

From Cooper's point of view, the key man among the missing was Hugh Anderson, Liberal MP for Comox-Alberni. Cooper felt the time was at hand to ask Transport Minister Otto Lang to reverse the CTC ruling on the basis of the railway's dramatic increase in business, and he had hoped Anderson would carry the message.

One municipal politician said he had it "on good authority" that Anderson was serving hamburgers at Port Alberni as part of Wednesday's fund-raising campaign for crippled children.

The idea of taking the vital question right to Lang will likely have to wait now until the committee meets again, Cooper said.

The death sentence on the passenger service followed CP Rail's argument that it was an economic disaster. The CTC ruling came long after a 1976 hearing in which the province and other bodies tried to prove CP Rail had done little to make the service a success.

The end was to have come earlier, but was delayed to Dec. 13 to give the province a chance to challenge the decision in the courts. The case could start next month.

The steering committee, which has been credited with creating interest and new success for the passenger run, is made up mostly of E&N employees who belong to the United Transportation Union.

If there is now apathy at the committee level, it hasn't shown up on the railway. Cooper said the service had carried 8,400 passengers in August—more than the total for all of 1976—and about 5,000 in September, in spite of the end of the normal tourist season.

But CP Rail was still not providing badly needed time schedules and indications were that it was stalling now to see if the service was really going to be ended, Cooper said.

To which Ladysmith Alderman Ken Stewart quipped: "Don't expect too much from the CPR. They were mentioned in the Bible — God created all things that creep."

Just one more to go for Lopes and Dodgers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "No matter what they throw, I feel confident I can hit it," said Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman Davey Lopes Thursday.

Lopes, in the first two games of the best-of-five National League championship series against Philadelphia Phillies, has put his confidence where his bat is.

The Dodger captain, who said his job is to motivate his team-mates, led by example Thursday. He had three hits, including a home run and a triple, and three runs batted in as Los Angeles recorded a 4-0 triumph over the Phillies for a 2-0 lead in the series.

Lopes said he has dedicated his performance in this playoff to Dodgers coach Jim Gilliam. Gilliam recently suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and is in a coma at a Los Angeles hospital.

"I'm really keyed up for this series," said Lopes. "Jim Gilliam helped everyone on this ball club. And we're hoping God will let a miracle happen and let Jim Gilliam come back to us."

Tonight's third game of the National League championship series will be telecast on channel 4 starting at 5 p.m.

Tommy John, who stopped the Phillies with a four-hit shutout, tried to explain his success in Thursday's second game of the series.

"I just had good stuff today," said John.

Los Angeles manager Tommy Lasorda said he had decided to start John in the second game as soon as he found out the veteran left-hander was healthy.

John had missed four starts between Sept. 3 and last Saturday because of a pulled muscle in his left calf.

He was asked if he wasn't concerned the Phillies might turn to a bunting game because of his recently damaged calf muscle.

"If I could get the Philadelphia Phillies to bunt, they'd be doing me a favor. That would take away their big hitting game," said John.

The Phillies didn't bunt, but John took away their hitting game, anyway. He allowed only four balls to be hit over the infielders.

John said this may have been the best game he pitched since 1967 when he got 23 ground-ball outs for Chicago White Sox while working against Boston Red Sox.

Los Angeles outfielder Reggie Smith set the tone for the Dodgers as they left for the West Coast, where the series continues today.

"We're two up and we're going back to our own back yard," he said. "Things look good from here."

Phillies manager Danny Ozark said what he might be expected to say, facing the task of winning three consecutive at Dodger Stadium.

"The game isn't over until the third out in the ninth inning," said Ozark. "They have to win one. We have to win three. It isn't over until they beat us one more game."

Phillies starter Dick Ruthven shrugged his shoulders and said: "They hit every mistake I made. I don't know if it's discipline or if they're on a hot streak. I've cut down on the mistakes, but they still beat me."

Rice, Ron co-winners

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Ron Guidry of New York Yankees and outfielder Jim Rice of Boston Red Sox were named co-winners of the sixth annual Joe Cronin Award Thursday.

The award, presented in the name of the retired American League president and Hall of Famer, is given each year for "distinguished achievement" in the league.

"To select a single winner this year would be grossly unfair," said AL president Lee MacPhail, commenting on the unprecedented dual selection. "Both Rice and Guidry have enjoyed remarkable seasons of such magnitude that this joint presentation was mandatory."

Guidry established a host of records in 1978, including the highest major league winning perentage (.893) for pitchers with 20 or more victories. Guidry had a 25-3 record as he helped the Yankees win the Eastern Division pennant.

Also, his 1.74 earned run average was lowest for a left-hander (tied with Sandy Koufax) since Carl Hubbell's 1.66 in 1933 and second lowest in AL history. Dutch Leonard had 1.01 in 1914.

Rice had his biggest year with Boston, leading the majors in six categories—hits (213), total bases (406), triples (15), home runs (46), runs batted in (139) and slugging percentage (.600).

Net action scheduled

Opening games start at 2:30 p.m. and continue tonight until 9:30. The two-day round-robin concludes Saturday, with games going from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Favored Raul battles back

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (AP) — Top-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico rallied from a rough first set to beat Eliot Teltscher of the United States, while American Peter Fleming upset sixth-seeded John Newcombe of Australia in the second round of the $100,000 Island Holidays pro tennis tournament Thursday.

Ramirez eliminated Teltscher 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, while Fleming had a relatively easy time beating Newcombe 6-3, 6-3 to gain quarter-final berths in the the 32-man tournament.

Fifth-seeded John McEnroe battled back from a close first set which saw only two service breaks to down Brian Teacher 6-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Stiff penalties for drug users

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (Reuter) — The 31st congress of the International Athletics Federation (IAAF) began Thursday with delegates approving stricter regulations for combatting the use of illegal drugs by athletes.

The 138 delegates from 72 countries also approved several minor changes in the federation's technical rules before considering controversial political issues of the re-admission of China to the IAAF and the participation of Israel in the 1978 Asian Games.

The IAAF approved increasing the minimum period of suspension for infractions in the use of illegal drugs to 18 months from 12 months. The maximum penalty remains a life suspension.

Arthur Gold, British president of the IAAF's European council, said the British sports council has decided to donate $50,000 to help establish a special fund within the IAAF to further its fight against doping around the world.

"I have been a hawk on this matter since 1956 and I am glad to be able to put my money where my mouth is," Gold said.

He said in an interview that the special fund, for which he was seeking other contributions, will be used exclusively for assisting countries in establishing anti-doping programs.

He said the special fund will help national sports federations buy equipment and train personnel to carry on testing in their countries. In addition, some of the money may be used to send teams of experts to certain areas to conduct tests.

Among the changes in the technical rules approved by the delegates was on altering the method of recording times for races longer than 400 metres.

Starting on Jan. 1, the times for such races will be read in hundreths of a second and then converted to the next highest tenth of a second for recording. Previously, the time was read in hundreths and rounded up or down to the nearest tenth.

Under the new rule, a time of one minute 45.21 seconds will be recorded as 1:45.3. It would have been 1:45.2 under the old rule.

The congress also approved a recommendation from its women's committee that from 1981, the women's pentathlon will be replaced by a seven-event heptathlon, held over two days.

Under the new set-up women will compete at 100, 200 and 800 metres and also in the high jump, long jump, shot put, and javelin throw. Currently, they do not compete in the 200 metres or javelin throw in the pentathlon.

Wheat Kings capture third successive win

BRANDON (CP) — Brad Kempthorne and Dave Chartier scored two goals apiece and paced Brandon Wheat Kings to a 7-2 victory over Billings Bighorns in a Western Hockey League game before 2,730 fans Thursday night. It was Brandon's third win without a loss.

Kempthorne opened the scoring after just 43 seconds of play and leftwinger Brian Propp gave the Wheat Kings a 2-0 lead 23 seconds later.

The Wheat Kings—who built up period leads of 3-0 and 4-1—got other goals from Laurie Boschmann and rooke Walt Poddubny.

Brandon controlled the play for most of the game, directing 58 shots at Billings goalie Andy Moog. Rick Knickle made 25 saves for the Wheat Kings.

Referee Glen Agar of Brandon assessed the Bighorns 9 of 17 minors, three of six majors, and the lone game misconduct.

Long season looming

It looks like a long season ahead for Kerry Park Islanders. If possible, even longer than 1977-78.

But now, it's back to the old drawing board.

Memories of late dad inspire Royal starter

NEW YORK (AP) — When Paul William Splittorff, Jr., of Kansas City Royals takes the mound against New York Yankees today in game three of the American League championship series, he will carry the memory of the late Paul William Splittorff, Sr., with him.

The elder Splittorff died of lung cancer last week at the age of 57 and Paul left the Royals for the weekend, going to Chicago for the funeral.

"I'll have some definite thoughts on my mind," Splittorff said Thursday as the Royals prepared to work out at Yankee Stadium following a split of the first two games in Kansas City. Jim (Catfish) Hunter is due to pitch for New York.

Today's third game of the American League championship series will be telecast on channel 4, starting at noon.

"Most of my thoughts will be with my mother," Splittorff said. "As far as dedicating the game to my father, well, I don't know if I'd say that. I'd just as soon keep my thoughts to myself."

It has not been the happiest of baseball seasons for Splittorff despite a 19-13 record and a career-high 13 complete games. In June, Splittorff's father learned he had lung cancer.

"It played with my mind all summer," Splittorff admitted. "He was very into sports and he spent a lot of time with me as a kid. He encouraged me to play sports, not just baseball, but basketball and football, also.

"Maybe I'm in baseball because that's the one thing he couldn't do. He played basketball and football in high school and he could shoot the eyes out of a basket, but he liked baseball more than any other sport. Basically, I guess he was just a sports nut."

The elder Splittorff's illness caused "a real family crisis" during the July 4 weekend, said Paul, a veteran left-hander who will turn 32 on Sunday.

"I flew home from the West Coast and missed a start," he recalled. "The doctors didn't know just how bad the cancer was. He started chemotherapy and up until a month ago we thought it was doing the job. But it became evident that it wasn't working. The last two weeks he was getting worse, but I was unaware how bad it was.

"It sounds strange to say it, but his death was kind of a blessing in disguise for both him and my mom. He didn't have to suffer that much and my mom didn't have to go through all of it."

Islanders deliver note not ready to abdicate

New York's ambitious Rangers, who have a new coach and Swedish stars Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson to spur hopes, got a bit of a reminder Thursday night that their cross-town rivals are going go be as tough as ever.

Now 7-2 in pre-schedule play, the Islanders remained champions of New York by handing out a 3-0 shutout with Billy Smith and Glenn Resch sharing goaltending duties.

Wayne Merrick's power-play goal at 2:24 of the first period was too much for the Rangers as they went down to their fourth defeat, to go with three ties, in nine games. Mike Kaszycki and Bob Bourne clinched it with third period goals.

Wayne Merrick's power-play goal at 2:24 of the opening period was all the home club needed to send their cross-town rivals to their fourth pre-season defeat.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia Flyers, who play in the same NHL division as the New York clubs, pounded out an impressive 7-2 home-ice win over Boston Bruins.

Centre Rick MacLeish scored three times as the Flyers balanced their exhibition schedule at 4-4, and Boston's at 3-2-3.

Rookie-defenceman Behn Wilson, Ken Linseman, Bob Dailey and Mel Bridgman scored the other Philadelphia goals. Bobby Schmautz and Don Marcotte were the Boston marksmen.

Other Thursday hockey highlights:

— Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association continued to do well against NHL opposition, felling Chicago Black Hawks, 5-2, before 12,261 Quebec fans with ex-Hawk Christian Bordeleau getting a goal and two assists in rough action which produced 35 penalties. Richard David Real Cloutier, Danny Geoffrion and Serge Bernier got the other Quebec goals. Stan Mikita and Alain Daigle replied for the Hawks;

— Winnipeg Jets of the WHA managed a 5-5 tie with Minnesota North Stars in Duluth. Kris Manery scored three times and Al MacAdam and Greg Smith once each for the NHL club. Peter Sullivan, Willy Lindstrom, Glen Hicks, John Gray and Rich Preston made the Winnipeg shots which counted;

— St.Louis Blues squared it for the NHL with a 4-3 victory over the Bulls in Birmingham. Inge Hammerstrom shot the winning goal at 5:16 of the third period. Brian Sutter, Mike Walton and rookie Bob Palazarri got the other St. Louis goals, Gavin Kirk, Michel Goulet and Phil Roberto scored for the WHA club;

— Pittsburgh Penguins delighted a home crowd by walloping Detroit Red Wings, 8-2 with Peter Lee and Nanaimo's Wayne Bianchin both scoring twice. Pete Mahovlich, Dave Schultz, Ron Stackhouse and George Ferguson got the other Pittsburgh goals, Errol Thompson and Dale McCourt scored for the wings;

— Colorado Rockies broke away in the third period for four goals which brought a 7-3 win in Denver over Los Angeles Kings, who played without their top six scorers. Joe Contini, rookie Mike Dwyer, Rey Comeau and Wilf Paiement scored in the third-period splurge. Comeau had an earlier goal and set up Paiement with a fine pass;

—Walt McKechnie, 31-year-old centre who scored 16 goals and had 23 assists last season while playing with Washington Capitals and Cleveland Barons, was traded by Minnesota to Toronto Maple Leafs for an undisclosed draft choice.

Canadians struggling

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — Canadian boxers continued to have their problems at an international amateur tournament Thursday when lightwelterweight John Raftery of Elliott Lake, Ont., a bronze medallist at the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton this summer, went down to defeat.

Raftery put up a brave fight against East Germany's Karl-Heinz Krueger, but dropped a 5-0 points decision to the bronze-medal winner at the world championships.

The loss was the second in as many nights for Canadian boxers. Roger Fortin of Montreal, the Commonwealth Games gold medallist in the light-heavyweight category, was outpointed Wednesday night by Alexander Butenko of the Soviet Union.

Butenko subsequently dropped a points decision Thursday to Britain's Vincent Smith, who now advances to the semi-finals.

Hot-shooting Gillian guns down Claremont

Things are unfolding pretty much according to plan in the first division of the Greater Victoria high school field hockey league.

In any case Mount Douglas is still winning. That's nothing new. First-place Mount Doug, now 7-0, has been rolling over all comers since day one of the current campaign.

So, the division-leaders' decisive 5-1 win over Norfolk House wasn't the hottest item Thursday. That distinction went to the goal-scoring knack of a second-division shooter.

Gillian Poole single-handedly destroyed Claremont, as she led first-place Parkland to a 4-0 decision, scoring all four goals.

Parkland improved its mark to 7-0-1 with the victory.

In other second-division contests, Laurel Ormstrong netted three goals and Greer Stewart added two as Belmont dumped Dunsmuir 5-1. Marie Johnson replied for Dunsmuir.

St. Michaels University School bombed Reynolds 6-0 as Carolyn Lamb scored three times, Susanne Crofton chipped in a pair of goals and Mary Anne Anderson rounded out the scoring.

In Wednesday games, Parkland blanked Reynolds 5-0 and Belmont nipped Claremont 3-2.

Back in the first division, Andrea Anderson and Nancy Charlton each supplied two goals for Mount Douglas. Liz Ellis scored the remaining goal and Terry Toone replied with Norfolk's goal.

Second-place Spectrum, now 5-3, whipped St. Margaret's 7-0, getting three goals from Trisha Sherring and two apiece from Bonnie Hutton and Diane Harpham.

Oak Bay, in third with a 4-3 mark, dropped Victoria High 3-1. Cathy Cavin, Linda Shorting and Trisha Ravenhill each scored for the winners while Carrie McConnachie answered for Vic High.

TO CURB ILLEGALLY-PASSING MOTORISTS

Policemen may ride shotgun on school buses

Central Saanich police chief Robert Miles indicated Thursday officers may ride on school buses if motorists continue to ignore the flashing red lights when the buses are stopped to let children on and off.

Bus drivers in Saanich school district are seeking a crackdown by police on motorists who pass school buses illegally in either direction when the lights are flashing.

Lew Wright, co-ordinator of services for the school district, said the drivers were concerned about the number of occasions when motorists pass school buses which have stopped to unload passengers.

Section 142 of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act requires motorists approaching a school bus from either direction to stop if the bus indicates by a sign or flashing red lights that it is stopped to receive or discharge school children. Drivers must remain stationary until the bus resumes motion, or until the driver signals it is safe to proceed.

Penalty on conviction is three demerit points against the driver.

Miles said he sent a letter to the school board requesting information as to the problem area and was informed the bad spots were on West Saanich Road, near Wallace Drive and Mount Newton, and on Lochside Drive.

Miles said Central Saanich municipality has ordered a number of road signs which read "School Bus Stop Ahead, Caution."

The police chief said the main violators are motorists coming toward the stopped bus.

He said if the problem persists in his area, he will order his men to ride on the buses with walkie talkies or a notebook to copy down the licence numbers of offending vehicles. The registered owner of the vehicle will then be charged.

Israeli gunboats shell Beirut

Colonist wire services

BEIRUT — Israeli gunboats Thursday night shelled western Beirut and Jerusalem and informed Washington that the action was intended to thwart a planned operation by the Al Fatah Palestinian guerrilla organization.

The shelling was also interpreted as an apparent warning to Syrian peacekeeping troops to stop battering Christian areas in the eastern part of the city.

The Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the vessels fired on a Palestinian guerrilla naval base in southwestern Beirut. The official Lebanese radio said three gunboats fired on the Ramlet Baida residential quarter, then withdrew when Syrian artillery opened fire on them. No casualties or damage were reported.

A U.S. state department spokesman said in Washington the Israelis had informed the department that "the Israeli naval units shelled Fatah installations in the Beirut area on Oct. 5."

The spokesman added: "We were told that the Israeli intention was to thwart a planned Fatah operation."

Western Beirut was the stronghold of leftist Moslem militias and Palestinian guerrillas during the 19-month civil war that ended in November, 1976. It has remained outside the battle between Syrian troops and Christian militias in the eastern sectors.

Israel has vowed not to allow Lebanon's Christians to be destroyed but had refrained from intervening in Lebanon—apparently for fear of endangering Egyptian-Israeli peace talks set to begin in Washington on Oct. 12.

The Israeli army radio station quoted sources in the Knesset (Israeli parliament) as saying Thursday that "the decisive moment is near" for Israel. The radio also said Defence Minister Ezer Weizman would report today to an emergency meeting of the defence and foreign affairs committees of the Knesset.

Police said the casualty toll had climbed to 1,000 killed and 1,700 wounded in eight months of Christian-Syrian battles for control.

At the United Nations in New York, a well-placed source said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was considering sending Sadruddin Aga Khan, a Moslem, to Lebanon to try to organize a ceasefire.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Lebanese-American groups said in Washington that Christian leaders in Beirut had issued an "S-O-S" for United Nations intervention.

"In the absence of direct military intervention the Christians will be crushed by the Syrian onslaught," said Dory Chamoun, son of former Lebanese president Camille Chamoun and a leader of a principal right-wing Christian faction.

In a statement issued in Geneva, the Lebanese Red Cross said: "The civilian population, hospitals, dispensaries, asylums, shelters, nothing is being spared. In the name of humanity, in the name of the most elementary principles of human rights, in the name of the children, women and aged people who are dying by the hundreds, we urge you to act."

Soviets, U.S. huddle

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union consulted on Lebanon Thursday and an American official said the United States will probably ask the UN Security Council to force a ceasefire if the fighting in Beirut does not end by the weekend.

A top U.S. official said late Thursday that the Security Council could be pressed into action as early as today.

He also said if the fighting continues it could "adversely affect" the Camp David peace initiative. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has spent the last 10 days in New York trying to drum up support for the historic accords.

Asked whether Washington would ask the 15-member Security Council for a meeting if there were no ceasefire by early today, the state department spokesman replied, "I think we probably will."

The official said he expected other countries, primarily Western nations, to join in the appeal. Asked whether Moscow would lend its backing, he replied, "All I want to say is, we've been in touch with the Soviets — and leave it at at that."

The official said President Carter had sent a message to Syrian President Hafez al-Assad in Moscow expressing "deep concern and the need for an immediate ceasefire to stop the bloodshed."

There was no immediate reply from the Syrian leader, whose troops were involved in fighting with Christian militiamen in the Lebanese capital.

TALKS FAIL WITH MILITANT INSIDERS

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-member conciliation board Thursday admitted failure in its attempt to settle the bitter dispute between the post office and the militant Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

The union will be in a legal strike position Oct. 12 following the release of three separate conciliation reports which graphically described the hostility in relations between the parties.

"I do not believe the Holy Trinity could conciliate the present parties," wrote Roy Heenan, the employer's board nominee. "There is a fundamental distrust between the parties which has lead to a total absence of communication."

Louis Courtemanche, board chairman, noted "with a little bitterness that the parties seem to be following already a path leading to an unavoidable confrontation."

"Indeed, some of the employers' officials have already announced that a strike by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers would be brought to an end by special legislation and, for its part, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers has already set up its strike machinery," Courtemanche said.

The parties remain poles apart on the key issues of wages, technological change and the use of casual, non-union labor in the post office.

Irving Gaul, the union's nominee on the board, called for immediate resumption of negotiations and urged both parties to "demonstrate flexibility and imagination."

Courtemanche said he found his employer's wage offer adequate when combined with continuation of a cost-of-living adjustment clause, but Gaul rejected the offer in his report.

Courtemanche recommended that the basic salary for a third-year mail handler, now $6.13 an hour, be increased to $6.30, retroactive to July 1, 1977, and to $6.58, retroactive to last July 1. He also recommended that the cost-of-living allowance of 46 cents, gained on June 30, 1977, be included in the basic salary on Jan. 1, 1979.

Long-term care program clogs hospitals—doctor

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist reporter

The provincial long-term care program was put into effect last January without sufficient planning and has created severe overcrowding in Victoria's acute-care hospitals, the outgoing president of the Victoria Medical Association said Thursday.

Not only will the situation get worse before it improves, but the provincial government is insisting that long-term care patients blocking acute care beds in the city's two general hospitals will not necessarily be moved out of the hospitals as quickly as alternative accommodation becomes available, Dr. Douglas Critchley said.

The long-term care program, instituted without sufficient planning last Jan. 1, has greatly increased the severity of the bed shortage, Critchley said. The low co-insurance of $6.50 a day is one factor in the increase in the number of patients seeking long-term care, and ending up in hospital.

"We have a very deplorable situation with acute care beds now. Doctors can't get anyone into the hospital except an acute emergency."

Furthermore, doctors can't get many of their patients out of the hospital because there are not sufficient facilities to handle those whose conditions are stable, but still require long-term nursing care.

The latest figures show that 164 of Royal Jubilee Hospital's 625 acute care beds and 76 of the 469 beds at Victoria General Hosptal are now occupied by non-acute patients who have nowhere to go be-

Second 'test-tube baby' born in Calcutta home

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — A three-man research team went on Calcutta television Thursday night to announce that a "test-tube baby"—the world's second—was born this week.

Earlier, the state-owned Calcutta station broadcast Bengali and English language news bulletins reporting the team's claim that a seven-pound, six-ounce baby girl was born Tuesday at an undisclosed nursing home in the city.

The three researchers said in a television interview that their procedure was different in some respects from that which led to the July 25 birth in Oldham, England, of Louise Brown, the world's first baby conceived outside the human body.

The television station said the names of the Calcutta parents were being kept secret, apparently because the stigma of laboratory conception might jeopardize the baby's future marriage prospects in the conservative Hindu society.

The three men who carried out the delicate fertilization and transfer of the embryo were identified by the station as Dr. Sunit Mukherjee and Dr. Subhash Mukherjee of Calcutta Medical College and biology researcher Saroj Bhattacharya of Dajadavpur University.

The three said the mother's egg was fertilized after it was kept in an incubater for 3½ days.

In England, two specialists, Dr. Patrick Steptoe and Dr. Robert Edwards, developed a method whereby they removed an egg from the mother's ovaries, fertilized it with sperm from the father in the laboratory and then implanted the egg in the mother's womb.

In the early television reports, Bhattacharya was quoted as saying that, as in the Brown case, the laboratory method was tried because the mother's Fallopian tubes were blocked.

Day's notice for air time edict for PM

OTTAWA (CP) — The next time Prime Minister Trudeau wants television air time he must let the CBC know at least 24 hours in advance, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission was told Thursday.

Under a new policy worked out recently, opposition parties in the Commons will also have an automatic right to reply after the prime minister's statements, said Knowlton Nash, director of news and public affairs for the corporation.

Nash told a reporter later that the new policy had been about eight months in the making and it preceded by months accusations by Peter Kent, former CBC newsreader and now its Africa correspondent, of political intererence in CBC affairs by the prime minister's office.

Kent, who is to appear later this week before the CRTC to make his own arguments, said decisions not to cover Trudeau on television had been changed after the prime minister's office telephoned CBC officials.

Nash told the commission he would resign if he even thought an editorial decision was changed as the result of political pressure.

At no time has this ever occurred in his job, Nash said.

The appearance of Trudeau on CBC-TV in August to announce cuts in government spending—one incident cited by Kent—conformed to this policy, declared Nash.

Marc Thibeault, Nash's counterpart in the CBC's French-language service, also defended his news staff against accusations it was biased in favor of Quebec independence.

Thibeault said Radio Canada's code of ethics for reporters called for absolute impartiality and that Radio Canada went to great efforts to see that was so.

Thibeault said every reporter suffered some constraints by virtue of the organization he worked for and the assignments he was given.

In the case of Radio Canada which took its mandate from Parliament, its reporters did not have the right to become commentators on issues such as separatism.

The network's natural audience is the five million French-speaking Quebecers who also look to the provincial government rather than Ottawa, Thibeault said.

ALCOHOL RATIONING FOR GREENLANDERS

GODTHAAB, Greenland (Reuter) — Greenland's leaders have devised a new tactic to curb drinking in the Danish Arctic province—an alcohol licence.

Under the new scheme, each Greenlander over 18 will be issued with a permit allowing him to buy 24 bottles of beer, three bottles of wine, and a half bottle of spirits each month.

The provincial council, due to become Greenland's home-rule government next May, decided on the system Wednesday. It could become law at the start of next year.

Now they're bullish on the buck

MONTREAL (CP) — Corporations which had been avoiding the Canadian dollar for months began buying into the troubled currency Thursday, helping it make a healthy gain against its American counterpart.

At the close of the interbank wholesale market, where banks trade currencies in huge amounts, the dollar was quoted at 84.85 cents U.S., more that one-third of a cent above Wednesday's close of 84.50 cents.

Foreign exchange traders said the market was orderly.

"People who were worrying for so long began questioning their fears," one relieved trader explained. "The whole trend seems to be one of bullishness on Canada."

Salted away?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is close enough to reaching an agreement to limit nuclear arms that he is working on plans for a signing ceremony at a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in December, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

B.C. must pay interest on corporate refunds

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Supreme Court ruled Thursday that the provincial government will have to pay the interest on refunded tax overpayments to two of B.C.'s major forest companies.

Crown Zellerbach and B.C. Forest Products appealed the assessment of forest, timber and tree farm land for taxes during 1976 and 1977.

The resulting reversal of assessments meant a refund of overpayment to Crown Zellerbach of more than $1.3 million and $125,000 to B.C. Forest Products.

The payments were made in June without any interest for the time the money was withheld by the provincial government.

The court decision said that because the government had use of the money while the appeals were being heard, the two companies were entitled to receive the interest. Interest rates have yet to be negotiated.

Bennett plans major cabinet shuffle

By JIM HUME
Colonist reporter

FORT ST. JAMES — A major revamping of several provincial government ministries with accompanying changes in cabinet responsibilities is scheduled within the next few weeks, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

The premier told the Colonist that he would very shortly be divesting himself of Energy, Transport and Communications duties held since Jack Davis resigned from the provincial cabinet.

Davis was found guilty of fraud charges last month and has now resigned his seat in the Legislature.

The premier was asked during his trip north on the B.C. Railway how long he intended to keep the extra portfolio. "Not much longer," he said. "Very shortly I expect to be announcing some organizational changes in several ministries. I have always said that some ministries have responsibilities they shouldn't have while others are not responsible for obvious things. We shall be shuffling some of the duties and responsibilities around so there will possibly be some cabinet moves to conform with those changes."

The premier would not say which ministries would be involved or which ministers might be facing new duties.

Asked if British Columbia would be facing a byelection in North Vancouver Seymour before Christmas, the premier said he didn't think so.

He said that while Davis had announced his resignation from the North Vancouver Seymour seat and had presumably forwarded the resignation to Speaker Harvey Schroeder the document had not been officially received.

The Speaker's office has confirmed that Davis delivered a sealed envelope to Schroeder's office but with the speaker in Europe it remains unopened.

The Provincial Elections Act states that a byelection must be called within six months of the resignation being received by the speaker.

With cabinet responsibility changes due in the near future, it now appears unlikely that the premier will call a general election this year. He still declines to eliminate that possibility publicly but indications are that he will now make his cabinet changes and give the ministers time to grasp their new duties before going to the people for a new mandate.
